Baker Clear, Bright

It was that kind of a Monday — a crystal-clear Vancouver Island — only day when photographer William E. John paused at the Malahat summit. It was sunny and warm, with temperatures from high eighties to low nineties. Telephoto lens captured this dramatic scene, including portion of Saanich Peninsula in foreground, then James Island, Sidney Island and Washington state's Mount Baker rising in background, about 80 miles away across Juan de Fuca Strait.

Hostilities Ended

Koreas Plan To Reunify

SEOUL (UPI) — South and North Korea Tuesday announced an agreement to end hostilities between the two countries as a step toward reunification of the peninsula, divided since the end of the Second World War.

The surprise agreement came in a joint communique issued simultaneously in Seoul and North Korea's capital of Pyongyang.

The agreement said that the two nations have agreed not to slander or defame each other and not to undertake armed provocations against each other in an effort to ease tensions and foster mutual trust.

The communique was signed by Lee Hu-Rak, director of the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency and Kim Young Joo, director of North Korea's organization and guidance department. Kim is a younger brother of North Korean premier Kim Il-Sung.

The seven-point communique said Lee visited the North Korean capital May 2-5 and held talks with Kim Young-Joo.

On behalf of Kim, North Korean second vice premier Park Sung-Chul visited Seoul May 29 through June 11 and held further talks, it said.

The communique spelled out three principles for national unification on which the two sides agreed:

"First, unification shall be achieved through independent Korean efforts without being subject to external imposition or interference.

"Second, unification shall be achieved through peaceful means, and not through the use of force against each other.

"Third as a homogenous people, a great national unit shall be sought above all, transcending differences in ideas, ideologies and systems."

"In order to ease tensions and foster an atmosphere of mutual trust between the south and the north, the two sides have agreed not to slander or defame each other, not to undertake armed provocations whether on a large or small scale and to take positive measures to prevent inadvertent military incidents," it said.

The communique added:

- The two sides, in order to restore national ties promote mutual understanding and to expedite independent peaceful unification, have agreed to carry out various exchanges in many fields.
- The two sides have agreed to install a direct telephone link between Seoul and Pyongyang in order to prevent the outbreak of unexpected military incidents and to deal directly, promptly and accurately with problems arising between them.
- The two sides have agreed to set up and operate a south-north coordinating committee headed by Lee and Kim in a bid to implement the agreement and solve various problems existing between them.
- The two sides have agree to co-operate positively to seek early success of the south-north Red Cross talks now underway to help separated families unite.

The communique pledged that the two sides will faithfully carry out the agreement contained in it.

Durable Peace Found?

SIMLA, India (UPI) — Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto flew home Monday to summon a special session of the national assembly to ratify his agreement with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi ending 25 years of hostility on the subcontinent.

"The agreement we signed last night represents a breakthrough in our relations," he said in a farewell message to Mrs. Gandhi. "I have no doubt that we can set the foundation of durable peace which we owe to our people."

Indians Trust Bhutto

By MYRON L. BELKIND

NEW DELHI (AP) — The most significant development at the India-Pakistan summit meeting just concluded may be that the Indian government has learned to trust Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Since the summit meeting was announced two months ago, Indian officials repeatedly said India would have to be convinced of the Pakistan president's sincerity before it would agree to any peace settlement.

Anti-Strike Legislation

Try Laws Heath Bid

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday challenged militant British labor unions to give his Conservative government's anti-strike legislation a fair trial and then to discuss it with the government.

"This government will be fully prepared in such a process to discuss this with them," Heath said.

"The unions cannot escape their share of responsibility for the impact of free collective bargaining on the economy and on their own members either in prices or in unemployment," he said.

"The alternatives are stark facing this country. They are either legal intervention, which the trade unions reject, or the confrontation which all of us object to, or inflation."

Heath spoke in a House of Commons debate on a Labor opposition censure motion, attacking the government "for the grave injuries to good industrial relations and the general reputation of the law caused by the operation of the Industrial Relations Act."

Quebec Proposal

Stevedores Will Meet

- B.C. longshoremen urge Ottawa action. Page 3

MONTREAL (UPI) — Quebec's 3,200 striking longshoremen were to meet today to consider back-to-work proposals hammered out with federal labor department officials in a last ditch effort to settle the seven-week-old provincial port dispute.

In Ottawa, Parliament was to reconvene today to possibly consider passing strike-ending legislation if the International Longshoremen's Association and the Maritime Employers' Association do not reach an independent agreement.

The labor department officials met separately Monday with both ILA and MEA representatives. Details of the back-to-work proposals were not disclosed, but they reportedly included lifting the employers' suspension of the striking dock workers.

The longshoremen walked off the job May 16 at the province's three main ports in Quebec City, Three Rivers and Montreal in a dispute over the size of work gangs on the docks.

Last Friday about 2,000 ILA members meeting in Montreal voted unanimously to reject an arbitration ruling and remain on strike.

Judge Alan B. Gold, a veteran arbitrator of maritime disputes, ruled Thursday that the longshoremen's strike violated their contract signed last March and was therefore illegal.

Parliament was originally scheduled to adjourn for the summer last Friday. However, House Leader Allan MacEachen postponed adjournment due to "uncertainty" in the docks dispute.

Truman Cheerful

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former president Harry S. Truman was reported cheerful and in satisfactory medical condition Monday at Research Medical centre as his doctor began what was described as routine testing.

Truman, 88, was admitted to the hospital Sunday. Dr. Wallace H. Graham, his personal physician, said he was to be examined for a "lower gastro-intestinal problem."

Shells Again Hit Citadel in Hue

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese artillery fired four rounds into Hue just after dawn today, marking the third day that the old imperial capital has come under shelling attack.

Field reports said at least one person was killed and several were wounded when four 122 m.m. artillery shells struck inside the Citadel.

Government military spokesmen, meanwhile, reported new fighting just to the south of Quang Tri city and west of Hue, and said troops taking part in the Quang Tri counter-offensive also had recaptured three artillery pieces lost in earlier fighting.

At least 101 shells hit the city Monday and Sunday, most directed at the Citadel which serves as the military command post for the northern region. Twelve persons were reported killed in Sunday's attack, the first shelling of the city since the Communist offensive began March 30.

Communist gunners pounded a base camp Monday on the northwestern approach to Hue with about 500 rounds of artillery and mortar fire, a communique said. They followed with a ground attack that was repulsed.

The North Vietnamese have been pounding bases along Hue's western defences since government forces started their drive north last week to recapture Quang Tri province. The country's northernmost province fell May 1.

Fischer Boards Plane

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

Don't bet against a possibility that Bobby Fischer of the United States knew all along the prize money in the world championship match starting today would be doubled.

It was a chess game within a chess game which finally ended late Monday night with Fischer boarding a plane for Reykjavik, Iceland, where he meets world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union this afternoon.

It was all made possible through British banker James Slater, who at the last moment doubled the prize fund from $125,000 to $250,000 meaning that now the winner of the 24-game series gets $150,000 and the loser $100,000.

Fischer, of course, accepted, and was gone like a shot in a jet from Kennedy International Airport in New York. Up until the offer came, he'd done everything possible to avoid showing up for the match.

But it seems to me the 27-year-old challenger, from Brooklyn knew what he was

Paratroops Stand By

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said Monday it is ready to station about 2,000 paratroopers from the army's 82nd Airborne Division near Miami Beach before the Democratic National Convention opens there next week.

Protestants Back Down Before Might of U.K.

BELFAST (AP) — About 7,000 club-wielding militants, bent on sealing off one of their Belfast strongholds, backed down Monday night before a massive display of British military muscle.

The Protestants barricaded three other areas earlier in the day but the British drew the line when the masked army advanced on the fourth.

Gen. Robert Ford, commander of British forces in Northern Ireland, said: "We now have pulled back from the precipice," when Protestants armed with cudgels and iron bars gave way in the tense confrontation.

The British military display before irregulars of the Ulster Defence Association was one of the strongest in some time in violence-torn Northern Ireland. Several hundred fully-armed soldiers were involved, supported by armored troop carriers, armored cars, jeeps and heavy trucks.

The confrontation lasted four hours. With the contenders lined up within yards of each other, it threatened to develop into a major battle.

The immediate issue was the determination of Protestant militants to build a steel barricade across Ainsworth Avenue in West Belfast and extend the "no-go" areas they have been steadily building in the capital.

The army denied permission on the grounds the barrier would cut off a number of Roman Catholic families.

An officer of the UDA, the Protestant answer to the Catholic-based Irish Republican Army, said: "We will fight the army if we have to . . . all night and all day if necessary."

At one point, women of the neighborhood formed a line between the two forces to keep them apart.

While the confrontation was going on, police headquarters announced the 399th known fatality in Ulster's three years of turmoil.

A bullet-riddled body was found beside a road at Coalisland, County Tyrone. It was the weekend's eighth apparent victim of sectarian execution squads.

Pentagon Reluctant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department refused Monday to say whether the United States has tampered with the weather in Indochina in an effort to hamper North Vietnamese military operations.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said the U.S. has never tried to cause rain over North Vietnam. But when asked whether rainmaking activities have been attempted in South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia, he replied: "I can't enlarge on that."

Final Chapter in Trek

Sons Trickle Back Into Kootenays

The return marks the final chapter in the trek by the radical sect when some 500 members burned their tar-paper shacks at Krestova, in September, 1962, and marched to Agassiz to be near about 100 of their brethren who had been arrested, convicted of terrorist activities and sent to the special fireproof prison that was built at a cost of $300,000 to hold them.

The trek has ended as it began with members of the sect still at odds with the law.

Twenty-five were arrested Sunday after a demonstration in front of the home of John Verigin, leader of about 10,000 Orthodox Doukhobors residing in B.C. They are scheduled to appear in court July 25.

The history of the Freedomites, who claim to be pacifists, has been pockmarked with violence, burnings and nude parades since they first came to B.C. from Saskatchewan about 70 years ago.

The trek started on Labor Day, 1962, with the burning of homes at Krestova, situated atop a bleak, sandy hilltop about 15 miles west of Nelson.

The 500 Krestova Freedomites marched westward for several days, their number swelling to about 1,300 men, women and children as other members of the 3,000-strong sect joined their ranks.

The trek continued by cars, buses and trucks late into 1963 with stops here, and at Princeton, Hope and Vancouver, where they lingered for seven months before finally camping outside Mountain Prison in August, 1963, at the same time their imprisoned brethren began a hunger strike.

Both the prisoners and the trekkers maintained the imprisoned Freedomites were unjustly convicted for acts instigated by others and that they wanted a solution to Doukhobor problems. What doing, and possibly had been aware as early as Sunday — when he begged off the original start — that somethng similar to Slater's offer was forthcoming.

It is also possible it was just another chess move leading to the big match and designed to get Spassky upset. After all, he'd arrived in Iceland two weeks earlier to get ready for the match — yet until late Monday night he still didn't know whether he was going to win it by default.

If he did, all those beautiful prize dollars would've vanished into cool Icelandic air.

Fischer boarded an Icelandic Airlines DC-8 late Monday night and arrived at Keflavic airport near Raykjavik just after midnight Victoria time.

First game of the match was scheduled for 10 a.m. Victoria time today.

Dr. Max Euwe, president of the International Chess Federation (FIDE), said in Iceland Monday Spassky was not happy with the two-day postponement authorized by FIDE after Fischer failed to show up Sunday.

Spassky could hardly, be blamed, for he's spent so much time playing tennis and getting in shape that he might be ready for a Davis Cup series rather than a battle of wits.

Spassky issued a statement in which he said he'd never given FIDE any permission to postpone Sunday's opening game and Euwe expressed some fears over what Spassky might do, now that Fischer was on his way . . . two days late.

Considering that Spassky only gets a small percentage of prize money the state picks up most of it — I'll wager that if Slater's offer is for real, Spassky will play.

In the Soviet Union, $150,000—and even the loser's share of $100,000 — will go a long way.

And so like it or lump it, Spassky will likely sit down this morning to face this incredible creature from the U.S., who's caused more chess consternation in one weekend than others have in a century.

Fischer has been playing his own pre-world championship match with the world federation, the Russians, Spassky and just about every chess player around the globe.

We'd all been waiting breathlessly for this great match, especially after Fischer had disposed of two of Soviet Union's best by convincing scores.

Some of us were even rooting for him.

But after failing to show up Sunday, Fischer has lost a lot of support and he can only regain some of it by beating Spassky at the board.

As Slater put it, Fischer has said that money is the problem. Well, here it is. What I'm saying to Fischer now is 'come out and play.' "

Amen.

Bonn Minister Resigning?

BONN (UPI) — West German Television said Monday night Economics and Finance Minister Karl Schiller had tendered his resignation to Chancellor Willy Brandt. The television said it had "learned" that a letter containing Schiller's resignation was in the mail, addressed to the chancellor. Schiller mentioned Friday as the day his resignation should take effect, the television said.

Frobisher Bay Blaze Fought

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Volunteer firemen and transport department employees were battling Monday night to bring under control a fire sweeping through the Nordair Ltd. warehouse and garage at Frobisher Bay airport. Paul Connolly, president of Procon Enterprises Ltd., said "enormous black clouds" were erupting as the blaze took hold in reservoirs of fuel.

Racetrack Fans Rolled in Bus

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two armed men commandeered a busload of racetrack fans Monday and forced the driver to circle the city while they robbed the passengers. The two men, one armed with a shotgun, fled the bus with $3,413 an hour later in Halethorpe, a small suburban community 10 miles south of here, police said. No one was hurt.

Indians Placing Trust in Bhutto

kistan 5,139 square miles of territory captured in last December's war in exchange for only 60 square miles of lost Indian territory the Indian government, and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in particular, has put its faith in Bhutto.

"I do not know why we should doubt the bona fides of Mr. Bhutto" said a spokesman for the Indian foreign ministry. "Our impression of Mr. Bhutto is that he is sincere, genuine and desirous of improving the relations between the two countries."

An official statement worded that strongly can be considered as significant as the agreement itself, informed observers said.

The Indians have demonstrated that they are willing to deal with Bhutto. Such recognition of his leadership can only help future negotiation toward solution of other problems, including Kashmir, which the summit pact did not settle.

Bhutto put it this way at a news conference on the eve of his departure from India: "With all my failings and shortcomings you will have to deal with me in the next five years unless something else happens or someone knocks me off."

"Whether you like me or not, I request you to learn to like me."

The Indians evidently have concluded that even if they were suspicious of Bhutto, they have little choice.

The alternative to him, it is realized, might be a return to military rule in Pakistan.

Getting to like — or even tolerate — the 44-year-old Bhutto has not been easy for the Indians.

They blame him for a strong anti-Indian policy when he was foreign minister under Ayub Khan.

They also feel he helped provoke last year's army crackdown in East Pakistan — now Bangladesh — by his threatened boycott of the National Assembley.

When Bhutto issued his threat, Yahya Khan postponed the assembly and Bengali leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman started the civil disobedience campaign in east Pakistan that led to civil war.

There is no doubt that the India-Pakistan summit agreement will help Bhutto strengthen his internal position, and thereby perhaps enable him to make further agreements with India.

Bhutto went home with an Indian pledge to return nearly all his occupied land — an area that will allow him to resettle one million Pakistanis who were made refugees by the war and were becoming a political problem for the new president.

In return, he had to give little or nothing.

The only thing Bhutto did not achieve was the release of 91,000 Pakistani civilian and military prisoners in India. But it is acknowledged they will be able to return home once Bhutto recognizes Bangaladesh, which he is expected to do by September.

the solution or even the problem was no one knew, not even the Freedomites themselves.

The hunger strike, joined by Freedomites outside the prison, continued for several months. Most imprisoned Freedomites accepted forcefeedng. Some did not and were taken to an outside hospital and fed intravenously. One of them died in hospital.

Outside the prison, the Freedomite community, established at the side of the road leading to the prison, took on an almost permanent appearance. Tents were replaced by tarpaper shacks with wooden floors. Children attended public schools in Agassiz and many younger members found jobs.

Many remained after the last Freedomite in the prison was released in 1970 but the numbers at the roadside camp dwindled to less than 200.

Mayor Wes Johnson of Kent municipality, which takes in the Mountain Prison area, said Monday he visited the camp Sunday and found it deserted.

Bacteria to Blame

By G. C. THOSTESON

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Dear Dr. Thosteson: This is urgent. My daughter, 21, has a very bad odor on her feet and shoes. She takes baths every day after work but her feet still smell so bad I don't know what to do.

What causes the rotten smell? Is there a special kind of soap or powder? She's tried several. — Mrs. A.J.M.

When sweating feet smell "rotten," just a "special soap" or a powder isn't going to be the entire answer, although either or both may help.

First of all, keep this in mind: odorous sweating is due to bacteria on the skin. The warm moisture of sweat provides just what the bacteria need to proliferate — and make feet smell bad.

The answer is a combination of keeping the skin dry and keeping it clean. Neither of these can be achieved totally, but the idea is to keep the bacteria count low and the skin fairly dry.

Keeping the bacteria count low can best be accomplished by using a daily foot bath with a germicidal soap. (I do not, however, recommend daily use of a germicidal soap for all-over bathing. It can be irritating.)

Reduce perspiration by the use of drying agents. Safest of these is a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride as a foot soak. Various antiperspirant cosmetics also contain aluminum salts, and these could be tried — powders, sticks, liquids, etc.

Another possibility is a weak solution (about 1 to 3 per cent) of formaldehyde, which your pharmacist can prepare.

It may be irritating though for some people.

In any event, the drying agents should be used to treat the inner soles of shoes. Never wear the same shoes two days in a row. If possible, let shoes dry more than a day between wearings.

Nylon hosiery can be a factor, too, since it doesn't absorb moisture. I understand that nylons with cotton soles are available, so try them, too.

Just why some people perspire more (feet and elsewhere) is not always clear, but it is more prevalent among those of a nervous, tense disposition. I haven't much doubt that the person with sweaty feet probably sweats even more just because of worrying about it.

If you can't solve the situation with the above suggestions (although I trust that you will be able to) the best course then would be to see a skin specialist (dermatologist).

Dead Hijacker Violence Would

SEATTLE (AP) — Nguyen Thai-Binh, killed in the attempted hijacking of a 747 jumbo jetliner Sunday at Ton Son Nhut airport in Vietnam, was prepared for violence but hoped he wouldn't have to face it.

Binh, who graduated from the University of Washington college of fisheries with honors last month, left two boxes of his personal effects and a note with Richard Carbray of Seattle, a friend and fellow anti-war protester.

"Please keep those for me," the note asked. "One day, when peace comes to my country and I'm still alive, I will ask you to send them to me. In another case I do not hope that, they will become the last gifts to my family."

He signed the note Viet Thai-Binh.

Mormons' 'Prophet' Dies at 95

SALT LAKE CITY — The Mormon Church's ruling council was expected to name Harold Lee, its ranking member, as successor to Joseph Fielding Smith as "prohet" of the three million-member faith.

Smith, grandnephew of church founder Joseph Smith, died of a heart attack at the age of 95.

HAMILTON, Ont. — Charlie Chamberlain was listed in satisfactory condition in hospital but doctors fear the veteran of the Don Messer television show may never sing again. It was learned that the 61-year-old entertainer collapsed during a rehearsal earlier this week. He was being treated for heart failure and lung congestion.

SILVER SPRINGS, Md. — Albama Governor George Wallace was permitted to leave Holy Cross Hospital for the first time since he was shot May 15. A hospital spokesman said he understood Wallace had lunch with friends.

CAMBRIDGE, Ohio — John Owens, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers union for 27 years, said he would not seek re-election in the upcoming union election ordered by a federal court. Owens said his decision to retire had nothing to do with the recent conviction of UMW President W. A. (Tony) Boyle on charges of funnelling union money into political campaign chests.

VANCOUVER — A 44-year separation for two sisters ended when Lea Witzke arrived in Vancouver after flights from Patzik in southern Russia. The reunion is credited, in part, to the direct consideration of the sisters' plight by Premier Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union. Lea's sister Alicia of Vancouver thought for many years she was dead. Then a stray letter arrived, in 1955, and set off a string of efforts through government sources for Lea to come to Canada. Finally an appeal was handed to an aide of Kosygin by Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell when the Russian leader visited the city last year. "Things suddenly eased up after Kosygin's visit," said Mrs. Naressa Laing, a niece of Lea, who had handled much of the negotiation.

"He never gave anyone any reason to believe that he would resign at 75. Benelli said persistent reports that the pope planned to retire were "very strange" and lacked all foundation.

Frenchmen in Lead?

Chichester Returns

PLYMOUTH, England (Reuters) — Sir Francis Chichester, the ailing round-the-world solo yachtsman, slipped unnoticed into Plymouth harbor early Monday aboard his damaged yacht Gypsy Moth V.

Sir Francis made the trip back home, after retiring from the singlehanded transatlantic yacht race through ill health, with his son Giles and three Royal Navy men aboard his ketch.

They boarded Gypsy Moth V early Saturday to help Sir Francis handle the craft, which had been damaged in a collision with a French weathership which had been trying to help the 70-year-old yachting veteran.

A spokesman for the organizers of the transatlantic yacht race said later that Sir Francis would go into the naval hospital here for a checkup.

Sir Francis had been ill before the race and had taken part against medical advice.

Last week he signalled to an RAF spotter plane that he was weak and cold. It was later reported that Sir Francis had complained of experiencing "an extraordinary hallucination" after taking a pain-killing injection.

In the race, Frenchmen appeared to be battling for the lead Monday as a report came from one competitor who had been unsighted since the race started June 17.

Jean Yves Terlain, sailing the 128-foot schooner Vendredi 13, radioed he was about 700 miles east of the finish line at Newport, R.I.

When news of Terlain's position came, a spokesman for the London Observer newspaper which is sponsoring the race, said: "This could mean that Vendredi 13 is ahead of Pen Duick IV which was leading until now." Both are French craft.

Lone Survivor Walking Again

BELGARDE (UPI) — A Yugoslav airlines (JAT) stewardess who survived a 36,300-foot fall in a January air crash is now able to walk again, the national news agency Tanjug said Friday. Vesna Vulovic, 23, is the sole survivor of a JAT crash in Czechoslovakia in which 26 passengers and crew members died. Yugoslav government officials said the crash is believed to have been caused by a time bomb planted in the plane.

B.C. Dockers Want Ottawa Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia dock workers have called on the federal government to take immediate steps to make port of Vancouver more competitive with Seattle in the handling of export and import cargo.

In a brief mailed during the weekend to the department of transport and every member of the House of Commons, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said such business is being lost to the United States port "at an accelerating rate . . . for reasons over which the federal government has full control."

The union said that every month some 25,000 tons of Canadian cargo moves through Seattle instead of through Vancouver.

The union said such diversions are threatening the jobs of its members and the economy of Vancouver. It estimated the 25,000 tons of Canadian cargo moving through Seattle monthly represents an annual loss of $6 million to the Vancouver economy.

The brief called for the immediate construction of container facilities and elimination of Overland Common Point rail rates, which were originally designed to attract cargo through Vancouver.

The union also asked that the Canadian Transportation Commission take action to ensure that Canadian cargo move through Canadian ports.

The brief noted that port of Vancouver is equipped with only one gantry crane for handling container shipments compared with six cranes in Seattle. It said plans for two additional container terminals had been under study by federal authorities for some time "but all concerned with port development in Vancouver are thoroughly disturbed at the snails pace of progress here compared with the spurts ahead made by Seattle."

The proposed new facilities, estimated to cost about $41 million, have been approved by the National Harbors Board and the Canadian Maritime Administration but have yet to be approved by the transport department and the federal treasury board.

Dead Hijacker Hoped Violence Wouldn't Come

Mrs. Carbray described Binh Monday as "a very sweet, committeed, non-violent, dedicated individual who loved his family and his country."

In a recent interview in Seattle, Binh said, "I only want to be an ordinary person living in a peaceful time." But his concern about the war overshadowed the skills he could bring to his country. "I find that what I study in a technical field is useless to serve my country and my people in this war situation," he said.

In Scottsdale, Ariz., the wife of a Pan American pilot who foiled the hijacking of his 747 jetliner at Saigon Sunday described her husband as a religious man and said it was just like him "to think of the passengers first."

Mrs. Gene Vaughn said that when they had talked in the past about the possibility of his plane being hijacked her husband had told her he would let federal air marshals "take care of any problem coming up."

But when a Vietnamese hijacker tried to force Vaughn to fly his passenger plane to Hanoi Sunday the pilot grabbed him by the throat and ordered an armed passenger to kill him, Vaughn told newsmen in Saigon he had "prayed to God to do the right thing."

In Search of Detente

NON-AGGRESSION TREATIES with Poland and the Soviet Union, negotiations towards closer economic co-operation with other member-nations of the Warsaw Pact and a generally more compromising attitude towards the East German administration, these are among the accomplishments of West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt. All are intended to smooth the way to an easier relationship between West and East Europe, reduction of the massive military precautions each side believes necessary and all the other improvements which are a part of what is conveniently described as detente.

For his past and continuing efforts in this direction, Chancellor Brandt has earned the approval and sometimes grudging admiration of other West European governments.

Now he is bent upon solution of what is understandably one of the most delicate of all the problems between the heirs of Adolf Hitler and the people he victimized: a final declaration that the Munich Pact of 1938 is null and void and has been from the beginning. Great Britain and France bear part of the responsibility for this infamous agreement which severed the Sudeten lands from Czechoslovakia. It was one of the concessions to the Axis powers in the abortive program of pre-war appeasement.

Chancellor Brandt is perfectly willing, indeed anxious, to bury the memory of Munich. The trouble is Czechoslovakia wants West Germany to accept "all the consequences" of the Munich partition.

These involve complex legalities and responsibilities relating to former properties and the citizenship of the Sudeten Germans expelled by the post-war Prague government, and whether, for instance, the Czechoslovak government in 1945 expelled "German" or "Czech" citizens. Depending on its response the Bonn government could be exposed to substantial demands for compensation and redress.

The latest word from Prague is that Dr. Gustav Husak, the Soviet-approved Czech leader, is willing to compromise.

An agreement between Bonn and Prague would remove possibly the last major obstacle to treaties between West Germany and two other eager Soviet satellites, Hungary and Bulgaria.

Chancellor Brandt has still one more difficulty to overcome before he can achieve these ends. He has got to have a mandate from his people. In other words, he has got to win the West German election in November. At the moment the majority of one he can muster in the Bundestag — and even that is uncertain — makes his political position a little doubtful. The electorate, however, has showed enthusiasm for his program for reconciliation with East Europe, and on that issue he can build his hopes for victory.

Who's Suffering?

A ROUND OF CONSUMER APPLAUSE is being given the service station operator in Montreal who is fighting give-away gimmickry by oil companies in promotion of gasoline sales. It's more than support for the under-dog, too. There appears to be a growing feeling that, while not all of the "gifts" that are given with the purchase of so many gallons of gas can be classified as junk, they are adding to car operation costs one way or another.

In most cases, if not all, the service station operators are charged by the oil company suppliers at least part of the cost of the hand-out items.

There has been considerable balking at the practice on the part of individual operators. It has been seen here in Victoria on a small scale. And in Peterborough, Ont., a few weeks ago all of the city's service station men got together and voted as one to discontinue give-away promotions, with 606 of 632 motorists polled supporting their stand.

But nation-wide publicity has been given Montreal objector, Henri Bouskela, because of the challenge he has mounted at his oil company's doorstep. He is picketing head office of BP Oil and calling for a public investigation of "phony gasoline promotions." His sandwich board claims "Nazi methods of intimidation" are used on "helpless dealers" to participate in "costly" give-aways. He says he has been threatened with eviction unless he plays the oil company's "gift" game.

There is no reason to doubt his word. It is a well known fact that the big suppliers in most businesses call the tune for the distributors of their products. This is the way is has to be in the keen competitiveness that exists in selling. But sometimes the tune can go off-key.

And by the way, there may be those who detect a sour note in battler Henri's song. Instead of give-aways he has cut gas prices by two cents, and he stresses the point, "We take the loss, not the company." But is there any great loss? His business is going "great gallons" with resulting increased sales of from 15 to 20 per cent.

And, as far as the give-aways are concerned, while they initially may cut the margin of profit for the operator, there is little doubt that eventually it is recovered from the consumer's pocket by way of other services rendered.

Boat Rules

TRANSPORT MINISTER Don Jamieson announced new regulations last week which according to a departmental spokesman will "clamp down on the outboard-motor cowboys." But reporters were told the regulations were unavailable, and the Canadian Press said that "as explained after repeated inquiries, the federal regulations simply enable provinces to set up authorities to handle complaints about annoying boating practices."

Mr. Jamieson's announcement thus seems to be window-dressing, and it sounds as if the "cowboys" might operate as they like indefinitely. It is perhaps worthwhile to remind them that reckless handling is already dealt with by the Criminal Code, with fines up to $500 and a possible ban from operating in Canadian waters for a year.

Inflation and High Unemployment

By LUBOR J. ZINK from Ottawa

CANADA is groping for some new method of wage-price determination.

The idea of wage-price controls in peacetime, unthinkable only a few years ago, is still repugnant to most Canadians, but they are getting reconciled to the inevitability of some regulatory mechanism that would stop abuses of monopoly power in industrial relations.

The need for change in the existing practices has been made obvious by the persistence of cost-price inflation, high unemployment and frequency of crippling strikes — a perilous combination of contradictory pulls and jolts which are harming the economy and do not respond to orthodox remedial measures.

The Trudeau regime, which inherited mounting wage-price pressures from the Pearson administration, diagnosed the trouble as a case of demand inflation and applied deflationary fiscal and monetary policies. The intention was to cool the presumably over-heated economy, force it to operate for a while well below production and employment capacity, and let the market forces of supply and demand do the rest of the corrective job.

The economy did slow down, unemployment did go up, but the wage-price escalator picked up speed instead of slowing down.

Baffled by the early signs of failure of the deflationary measures to moderate wages and prices while the desired slack in production and employment was taking shape, the government set up in June, 1969, a prices and incomes commission to study the causes of the strange phenomenon and "inform those making current price and income decisions, the general public and the government on how price stability may best be achieved."

Eager to prove its usefulness from the start, the commission sought to slow down the wage-price escalator before finding out why the deflation brakes didn't work. It appealed for voluntary wage-price restraints for the duration of its study of the problem.

The attempt to get the unions, business and governments together to agree on a temporary ceiling on wage-price increase collapsed when organized labor categorically refused to have anything to do with it. After some frantic twisting of arms the commission salvaged from the wreckage of voluntary restraints a pledge from the business community to hold price hikes for a year, well below the rate of cost increases. The honoring of this pledge, which in some instances wiped out the already depressed profit margins and stunted capital investment, expired at the end of 1970 while the commission was immersed in its studies.

Last month, the residue of the now disbanded commission produced a summary of these studies. The gist of the report is that: "Before long the march of events will bring Canadians to the view that serious consideration should be given to a temporary program of (wage and price) controls."

Like the whole record of its largely irrelevant philosophizing, this conclusion of the commission has been overtaken by the march of events. Samples of public opinion taken in the past two years show that the majority of Canadians have perceived the need for wage-price checks without the costly assistance of the commission.

What remains unresolved in the public mind, especially in the light of the far from successful British and U.S. experiments in this field, is what form the intervention should take.

On this important subject the summary report remains as obscure and unhelpful as was the whole existence of the commission. Nor does the summary of the yet unpublished chef d'oeuvre of the commission shed any new light on the causes of the persistence of cost-price inflation and high unemployment.

The impression one gets from the skirting around the role the wage and price-fixing cartels play in jinxing the market mechanism, is that the issue is too touchy in an election year to be handled forthrightly by a creature of the government which had itself committed a major error in diagnosing the trouble as demand inflation.

A thorough, impartial analysis of the malaise would inevitably have to zero in on the root cause of the mess, which is perversion of free bargaining by labor and business monopolies. From there the search for remedy would lead not to control schemes which cannot but compound the distortions of the market forces, but to a temporary but total wage-price freeze for the specific purpose of structural overhaul of the whole machinery of industrial relations.

Latin America

There's a New Name to the Game

By GEORGE G. VINCENT

WITH the recent appointment of a permanent Canadian observer to the Organization of American States, Canada is teetering on the edge of that vacant chair which has long awaited her at OAS headquarters in Washington.

Cynics might suggest that, before our country finds itself coaxed, or pushed, into full membership of this assembly and thus committed to the fine-print terms of its charter — which most Canadians know nothing about — our representatives should be glamorized with handsome uniforms and high military ranks; thus enabling them to achieve buddy terms with the generals and colonels who control, either openly or sub-rosa, most of the nations represented in the OAS today.

They might also urge our pundits concerned with Latin American affairs, to discard the well-worn shibboleths about "cold-war" ideological struggles and the prospects of democracy in Latin America, and to concentrate, more profitably, on comparisons with the state of Europe in the years preceding the First and Second World Wars.

This could be a meaningful exercise. For, to anyone with wide first-hand experience of Latin America today and especially of South America, the name of the game there is now old-fashioned power-politics, increasingly blurring and crossing ideological lines.

The reasons for this are plain. Ever since the wars of independence fragmented Latin America, intense rivalries have flourished among its usually army-controlled republics, quite frequently resulting in bloody wars, with the lesser nations clinging to the sword-belts of the chief contenders for supremacy, Argentina and Brazil.

Today, with the rapidly waning influence of the United States as the controlling "school marm," the "Pax Americana" which she has endeavored to impose, for her own ends, can no longer be enforced. The manoeuvrings of the nations to seek maximum advantages in the power-vacuum that now exists are partly spurred by their ambitions, and partly by apprehension of Brazil's obvious aim to become the new "imperial power" of the hemisphere. Add to this the rule by generals, plus the ingredients of aggressive "National-Socialist" type regimes such as that in Peru, and the picture becomes clear.

The most significent milestone in the shift from ideological polarization to geopolitical power-politics and traditional diplomatic procedures, was last year's meeting of Senor Allende, Chile's Marxist president, and General Lanusse, head of Argentina's far-right military junta, which resulted in joint declarations committing the two nations to collaboration in continental affairs. Thus, as absolute-monarchist "Holy Russia" was the close ally of "atheistic, republican France" in 1914, Argentina and Chile, ideologically poles apart, are today at least on hand-holding, if not quite kissing terms.

Brazil's moves have been of equal import, such as her rivalry with Argentina in wooing the present rightist Bolivian regime, her bedfellow friendship with Paraguayan dictator, General Stroessner, and the much-trumpeted meeting of the Brazilian and Colombian presidents on the upper Amazon last fall, with its implicit warning to Peru that it was "hands off" for that nation, so far as the expansion into the vast unexploited treasure-house of the Amazon was concerned.

And President Nixon's diplomatic emphasis, when President Garrastazu Medici visited Washington last December, that Brazil and the United Stated were "equals" as well as friends, coupled with hints that Brazil would have a free hand in its South American activities, have strengthened the belief that the U.S. will increasingly base its Latin American policies on the principle of Brazil's supremacy there.

As for the part played by the guerrilla movements of Latin America, there is growing evidence that they and other elements of the Left are being increasingly manipulated for non-ideological continental power-policy ends — with both the United States and Russia in on the game, irrespective of the types of regime involved. In this connection, it is worth recalling that Lenin endeavored to further communism, throughout the world, through nationalism.

Perhaps the greatest stimulant to the present manoeuvrings for position, apart from fear of Brazil, and what the rivalry between Brazil and Argentina may bring about, is that most dangerous three-letter word of the modern world — oil. Turbulent Bolivia, with frontiers matching those of Peru, Chile, Argentina Brazil and Paraguay, is now estimated to have more oil beneath its surface than all the rest of the continent put together. Vast new sources, now about to be tapped in Ecuador east of the Andes, bid fair to transform this "banana republic" into the third-biggest oil-producer of Latin America. These two nations could well be flashpoints for battles between their drooling neighbors. But the biggest threat for real war is little Uruguay, bankrupt, plagued by political terrorists, sandwiched between Argentina and Brazil, and in the past claimed by both nations.

Amid the scene of shifting power-ploys, the international arms peddlers are having a record field-day. Yet, despite the present trend, it may well be that large-scale conflicts between the major Latin American republics will never develop. Power-politics posturing are handy instruments for uniting peoples to support their governments, but in Latin America under present conditions, words are apt to be more feasible than armed action.

One could in fact argue that today's surge of nationalism and reversion to power-politics diplomacy may, on the balance, even be of benefit to troubled South America.

Mr. Mackasey's Innovations

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

IMMIGRATION Minister Bryce Mackasey, that inventive genius who introduced a new universal tax and called it unemployment insurance, is coming through with another administrative innovation.

He's going to take apart his department, official by official, he says, "to get rid of the reactionarys who don't like immigrants."

What he's really doing — if he actually does it — is destroying a department to justify government policy that has allowed some 10,000 illegal immigrants to slip into the country and remain here as long as four and five years while they wait their turn for their appeals against deportation.

These 10,000 are apart altogether from the 13,500 other "visitors" waiting for their immigrant applications to be processed. Now Mr. Mackasey is opening the door even wider for the 13,500, while promising to ease things a bit, too, for the other 10,000. That makes a total of 23,500 wanting to slip in through the "back door" by evading regular immigration channels.

But first, just a rundown of the Mackasey unemployment caper.

He saddled every working Canadian with it whether they wanted it or not, or even could or would use it.

"Big-hearted Bryce," as they called him, used his universal unemployment insurance plan to bonus those who really don't want to work, to encourage bad, on and off the job again work habits, to further overload the working taxpayer, and to make the new scheme so complicated as to have everyone concerned, the UIC staff and the jobless running around in circles.

"Think of it," he smiled the other day, "not as just another tax on the working taxpayer, but as his contribution to the welfare of less fortunate workers."

But now, back to Mr. Mackasey's latest aberration . . . his promise to clean out the "reactionaries" of his department, a pledge dramatically made with a symbolical drawing of an imaginary knife across his throat.

He wants to chop them to remove the embarrassment of having some 10,000 illegal immigrants on his hands.

The idea seems to be to axe his officials so the gates may be flung wide to anyone from anywhere who fancies living in Canada.

He says he "strongly favors" a more liberal immigration policy, and hints that to permit every tourist and visitor to apply for admission after entering the country just isn't generous enough.

"With 22,000,000 people we're under-populated," he says.

He has said, too, that while "there may be as many as 10,000 people awaiting appeals, with many people fearing there may be drug-pushers among them, I like to think that among them are future prime ministers."

But that isn't what other parliamentarians say.

Among them, Calgary North Conservative MP Eldon Woolliams has warned that "Canada's loose immigration laws allowing entry of any kook, criminal, communist crackpot and college crazy are the laughing stock of the world."

They're about as funny as Canadian passports without which no member of the international underworld of crime and espionage would be.

And former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has counselled with concern that Canada has become "a safe, secure and comfortable way-station for every assassin, terrorist, big-time drug boss or crime king who cares to stop over for a few days, weeks or months of rest and relaxation."

Others in the opposition — both New Democratic and Conservative — have said much the same thing.

Political bias? Perhaps.

But now listen to the expert, highly-respected Toronto barrister Joseph Sedgewick, QC, who was commissioned by Mr. Mackasey's own government to study and report on immigration.

"The whole immigration system is breaking down," he warned in his royal commission report, "because of the wholesale evasion.

"It is apparently common knowledge that it is easy for anyone from anywhere to enter Canada as a non-immigrant; as a tourist, a visitor; with a great many saying they are only staying a short time in order to avoid examination as immigrants; and with no intention of leaving unless they are deported."

So there are 10,000 of them here now, backed up in an appeal queue four to five years long, and more pouring in every day.

That's government policy.

But the fault, not of the government, says Bryce Mackasey, shoving the blame off into his "reactionary" immigration officers "who don't like immigrants" and insist they comply with the immigration laws and qualify for admission and future citizenship.

"Big-hearted Bryce" seems to want them all in with no questions asked.

The English are preparing to take the blindfold off the traditional figure of Justice.

Major changes in the criminal law are certain to be enacted soon.

The aim will be to restore the balance of advantage which now has swung, so police and many lawyers say, heavily in favor of the hardened criminal.

Very sweeping changes indeed have just been proposed by the Criminal Law Revision Committee set up by Parliament eight years ago.

It is unlikely that all of them will be implemented. They have roused almost unanimous opposition among organizations devoted to civil liberties and considerable criticism within the legal profession. But that some will be implemented is not doubted.

A necessary corollary, however, will be reform of police procedures, too, and, possibly, a drive to restore the full lustre of the British bobby's reputation as a friend of the citizen, a guardian of the law armed only with the necessary air of authority.

Among the recommendations of the law committee are these:

- End the police caution to suspects that anything they say may be taken down and used in evidence at their trial.
- In place of caution give the accused a written notice warning him that the withholding of any fact of which he later relies for his defence in court may then be held against him.
- Removal of, or restriction of, an accused person's right to remain silent.

Sweden's Great Social Experiment Is Splitting at Seams

Crippling Taxation Threatens Economic Base, Neutrality of Showcase Welfare State

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
From Stockholm
Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

Something is happening to this Scandinavian paradise:

- Sweden's lower classes have been moved from the cities to the countryside, only to find themselves in concrete warrens, while the good life is back in the cities where the wealthier remained.
- The machinery of the cradle-to-the-grave welfare concern for everyone is beginning to creak, and the tax structure to support it actually encourages joblessness in some cases.
- The country is approaching zero growth rate and the industrial labor force actually is declining.
- The gross national product is virtually stagnant, and industry is looking to cheaper labor abroad rather than within high-cost Sweden to expand.

Against this background, Swedes are beginning to examine the values of the seeming abundance about them, attained under Social Democrat political leadership that has fascinated the world for four decades.

They are proud of their per capita income of $4,000 a year, and the most equitable distribution of real wealth in any country.

No one earthshaking event has brought about this universal reappraisal. It is a combination of factors that have jarred the Swedes as they consciously try to project into the decades ahead.

One is the approaching end of a political era. During the near half-century the Social Democrats have governed here, they have scored a fantastic achievement, built on the brains and productivity of Swedish labor. But now the welfare state is hard put to keep its chin above water.

Public opinion polls show a growing dissatisfaction with the Social Democrats. They now run a minority government, dependent upon either the communists or the conservative coalition to stay in power.

But this is only the tip of the iceberg.

The major uncertainties:

Many Swedes are unsure whether the supposed ideal of a zero growth rate is a good thing or bad, as it diminishes the labor force.

Welfare has to stop growing, too, if Sweden is to maintain its present balance of expenditures. Further tax increases are virtually ruled out. The last attempt almost brought down the government, and industry's inclination to expand abroad forecloses and expanding tax base.

Societal customs are breaking down. The tax structure not only encourages unemployment, it also discourages marriage in many cases, and both the marriage and birth rate are declining. "Official" marriages are down 20 per cent in recent years.

The population is shifting south, off the farms, into massive new concrete ghettos.

Sweden, now in the late-capitalist phase of development, may be on its way to becoming the first post-industrial society. The material basis is there.

But one of the gnawing doubts here is about statistical measurng of values.

The Swedes are proud of their welfare system, but the elaborate structure they have built is, like everything else, a victim of a cost of living explosion.

More than half the GNP now goes into federal funding, some 20 per cent of pensions, job retraining programs, child welfare, etc. But the quality of service is declining. Small hospitals are closing down around the country because of escalating costs and personnel shortages.

Traditionally an insular people, the Swedes are being forced to look outward. Exports make up some 30 per cent of their GNP, and 70 per cent of this goes to the European common market.

"It would be a disaster to try to cut ourselves off from the world," says Prof. Tor Ragnar Gerholm, a nuclear physicist. "I've turned 180 degrees around and now favor Swedish membership in the common market."

Industry is looking beyond the borders, spurred on by the fact that the markets are there and Swedish labor costs are 50 per cent higher than the common market average.

Economic irritations are inevitable, but should not detract from the accomplishments, which cannot just be measured in money. As sociologist Gunnar Myrdal says, it includes the fact that only disturbed children go to private schools in Sweden.

It also means a man like Myrdal shares his hospital room when he has a minor and uncomplicated operation. Private rooms are the privilege of the seriously ill in Sweden, not of the overly rich.

It is difficult to stay rich in any case. Income taxes run up to 85 per cent, and inheritance taxes are crippling.

Hans Wrethen, the managing director of Electrolux, says he takes home $11,000 a year after taxes, and the structure is such that, for many blue-collar workers, there is no point in working overtime: it is virtually all absorbed in extra taxes.

One result is that workers will take phony sick leave (with tax-free sick pay) so their income stays below a certain level and in a lower tax bracket, and they keep their housing allowances.

Says Werthen: "It's a system under which any intelligent man must be dishonest."

Small and melium-size businesses, particularly in the engineering industry, are being forced out. The industrial labor force is declining by about 10,000 jobs per year in a total of one million.

"We have passed the point of unlimited growth," says Electrolux's Werthen.

In some countires, this would be seen as cause for unmitigated gloom. Not so in Sweden where even the prospect of zero industrial growth has advocates as well as opponents.

"Industrial investment remains static here," adds Prof. Goras Ohlin, a political economist. "This is not necessarily a bad thing. Do we really need more?"

The same thing is happening in agriculture. Sweden remains 80 per cent self-sufficient but the number of farms has been cut in half since the Second World War and is due to drop by another one-third by 1980.

These programs have led to a high labor turnover — it reaches 50 per cent annually in some factories. And it appears to be leading toward a new definition of the old work ethic, even as the Swedes have accepted a new marriage ethic.

The welfare structure has eliminated the urgent need to work.

"It doesn't pay to work hard," says physicist Gerholm. "The extra money is so heavily taxed that people are returning to a system of barter, exchanging their services rather than pay for them — and pay taxes on them."

Action in Poland Creates Alarm

Vatican Upsets Germans

By CY FOX
From London

The Vatican's reorganization of the Roman Catholic ecclesiastical structure in Polish territories once controlled by Germany has seemingly bolstered the church's standing in Poland itself and given Chancellor Willy Brandt's new policy toward Eastern Europe support.

But Pope Paul's action also leaves the Christian Democratic opposition in West Germany confused and even, in some cases, angry.

Much of this indignation comes from Christian Democratic elements representing that large section of the West German population which moved to its present location from the now-divided country's eastern areas after the triumphant Soviets arrived there in 1945.

This refugee element includes opposition leader Rainer Barzel, who spoke sharply of "political misunderstanding" in his highly-critical evaluation of the Vatican's formal establishment of purely-Polish church districts in western Poland.

Adding to the confusion of some West Germans is the fact that, traditionally, the Christian Democrats are a Catholic-based party in a country which remains, to a surprising extent, conscious of religious differences.

The Bonn government, in which Brandt's Social Democrats play a dominant role, considers the Vatican's policy development a logical consequence of the eastern policy, or Ostpolitik, so far as that policy of friendship towards the communist east affects Poland.

A new Bonn treaty with the Poles falls short of formally recognizing Poland's present western fontiers as permanent. But it does say that West Germany will make no territorial demands on Warsaw.

This seemed to be sufficient basis, in the Vatican view, for the long-awaited step designed to make the character of church organization in western Poland thoroughly Polish.

But, in the eyes of some foreign observers, the Brandt government appeared somewhat embarrassed as well as gratified by the Pope's new move.

From Poland's point of view, its western districts were criminally snatched from Warsaw's control by the Germans in the years before 1945.

Cities like Gdansk — formerly Danzig — are historically notorious as centres of German-Polish conflict in former decades.

Thus the Vatican action, which concerns Gdansk as well as other neighboring communities, will come as good news to the present communist leaders of Poland.

Under former communist chief Gomulka, the ruling communists in Poland were involved in a running feud with the church in a country where 80 per cent of the population is still devoutly Catholic.

Edward Gierek, the present communist leader, has sought improved state relations with the Catholic church — though ideological conflict between the two sides is widely considered to be inevitable.

Similarly conciliatory moves have been forthcoming from Polish bishops. And possibly this reason, as well as for reasons of sheer patriotism, the bishops welcomed the Vatican's establishment of, among other things, four new west Polish dioceses "with great joy."

Such moves certainly mark a significantly-fresh stage in Catholic-communist relations in Poland and, possibly, in other East European countries as well.

Major Changes Expected in England

Criminal Law To Be Altered

- In place of caution give the accused a written notice warning him that the withholding of any fact of which he later relies for his defence in court may then be held against him.
- Removal of, or restriction of, an accused person's right to remain silent.
- Enable the prosecution to call wives to the stand in evidence against husbands.
- Unsworn statements in court — often made to avoid cross-examination that would follow a sworn statement — be allowed only "at the accused's risk," the jury being told to draw its own conclusions.
- Make hearsay evidence (now inadmissable) generally admissable.
- Allow tape-recorders to be in general use in police stations.

Main reasons for the proposals, as Scotland Yard commissioner Robert Mark stressed in a speech last week, is the police view "that the English judicial system is ineffective to an alarming and harmful extent in dealing with the non-complaint — those who set out to break the law and are able, by experience or through advice, to exploit its weaknesses."

"It is high time that society stopped running away from the problems of crime and wrongdoing and began to tackle them intelligently and courageously," declared Mark.

"The surest and the quickest way to reduce crime and to achieve a more humane and enlightened penal system is to increase the likelihood that the guilty will be convicted."

The Law Revision Committee states:

"The law should be such as will secure as far as possible that the result of the trial is the right one. That is to say the accused should be convicted if the evidence proves beyond reasonable doubt that he is guilty, but otherwise not."

Broken Rudder Forces Yacht Out of Ocean Race to Maui

The yacht skippered by J. R. Horner, of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, had taken the lead in the 2300-mile race before the mishap.

The U.S. Coast Guard at Astoria Ore. reported about 8 p.m. Monday that the Pandora was about 130 nautical miles southwest of Astoria which is at the mouth of the Columbia River.

A coast guard spokesman said the St. Anthony had left the rest of the group of yachts and was sailing to meet with the disabled Pandora.

The tug would then escort the 47-foot sloop into Astoria where repairs would be made, they believed.

Pandora's crew had succeeded in rigging up an improvised steering system and was able to proceed slowly under its own steam, the coast guard said.

But it was maintaining close radio contact with the Astoria base in case it were to need help.

Before the rudder broke, Pandora had pulled ahead of Flame, a 48-foot Vancouver yacht to take the race lead. The two had shared the lead Sunday.

Sunday Bluey II of Vancouver was about five miles behind the two leaders after a day and a half of competition.

Grouped behind Bluey II were Satin Doll of Seattle, Patiot of Seattle, Siren of Tacoma Wash., and Seattle's Cherokee.

The race began Saturday from Brotchie Ledge justoutside Victoria Harbor, when British Columbia Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson fired the starting gun.

The race is expected to last well over two weeks but the first boat in may not be the actual winner. Because of the disparity in size, a handicap system, using factors such as size of sails, water line length and other factors, is used to decide the winner.

There are 19 yachts entered in the race, most of them from the Seattle-Tacoma area. The 1970 winner, Graybeard from Vancouver, is not in this year's race. It is competing in a Los Angeles to Tahiti race. There was no race in 1971.

One boat, Co-Motion of Seattle, was taking a roundabout route in a bit of strategy that may backfire. She was heading directly down the Washington coast toward California in an effort to avoid the Pacific High a region of low winds which lies directly on the Victoria-Maui route.

However, the Pacific High is not always calm and Co-Motion may be trailing badly if the other boats find a swift passage through the region.

IWA on Brink of Deal?

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

Negotiators looking for a solution to the dispute that has shut down the coast forest industry met again Monday without making any reported headway but there appeared to be a chance of further developments late Monday night.

Jack Moore, western Canada president of the International Woodworkers of America, left his home for a meeting some time after 9:30 p.m., the time he had been expecting a phone call from John Billings president of Forest Industrial Relations.

Indications were that members of the union's coast negotiating committee were meeting among themselves.

Some 30,000 IWA members have been officially on strike since June 22. The strike actually began in stages when the coast contract expired a week earlier without any sign of settlement on a new contract.

The industry's last known offer included a wage increase of 73 cents an hour over two years on a base rate of $3.72. The IWA was asking $1 over the same period.

Union officials confirmed reports Monday that the strikers are not drawing strike pay. They say that traditionally no strike pay is meted out in the first four weeks and after that only if need can be shown.

At the moment it apparently isn't known what will happen if and when the strike reaches the age of four weeks.

"There has been no decision made yet on what we're going to do," said Syd Thompson, president of the big Vancouver local.

Thompson, who is also a member of the coast negotiating committee, said most of the members would have had up to four or five weeks pay after the strike began. This would have included their holiday pay.

The union's defence fund stands at about $3 million, he said. "That's not a helluva lot."

Meanwhile, there was no sign of movement in the province's other major labor conflict—the construction breakdown.

George Johnston, president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, and B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council President Jim Kinaird are scheduled to address a rally in Victoria Wednesday night.

The closed meeting is to include members of the six unions that are holding out for settlement and preventing a return to normal operation in the construction industry.

John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, said the meeting is also open to members of other construction unions affected by the stalemate. The idea, he said, is to let them know how labor stands on the question of compulsion that has arisen during the dispute.

Still Full of Laughs

Two full tanks of laughing gas which went astray in Victoria last week have been recovered by police — apparently before any harm was done.

Victoria police had been concerned about the disappearance of the tanks because the laughing gas, nitric oxide, could have been lethal if used improperly.

The first tank was found about 11:30 a.m. Sunday in bushes off Phelps Ave. in Colwood, police reported Monday. A citizen saw a tank in the bush and called Colwood RCMP.

The second tank was found by two Victoria police constables on patrol about 8 p.m. Sunday. It was lying in a vacant lot in the 1500-block Pembroke and appeared to have been thrown from a passing car.

The tanks had disappeared from a truck, parked on the lot of the Colony Motor Hotel, 2852 Douglas, overnight Wednesday.

Too Close to Airport

'Flying Objects' Dangerous

Model airplane and kite-flying may be fun but to Sidney RCMP, the sky's sometimes the limit.

The federal aeronautics act bans flying any object in an area within five miles of an airport in such a manner as to be hazardous to air traffic.

Victoria International Airport falls within this category and is under jurisdiction of the Sidney RCMP. According to Sergeant Harry Chambers, about three or four "flying-object" complaints a month are received from the airport.

Over the Dominion Day weekend one complaint of flying a model airplane near the airport was dealt with, he said, while other complaints frequently deal with kites.

Children are almost always involved and no action is taken except to ask them to stop flying their toys.

A spokesman for the airport control tower said the flying of objects near the airport is dangerous because pilots can't see them until they're almost on top of them.

Saanich Considers New Park

Saanich is considering a neighborhood park in the vicinity of McRae and Knight streets, just west of Shelbourne.

One estimate puts the cost at $38,000. The proposal which has been discussed by municipal planning committee, is to have the park developed as a local improvement.

The municipality owns nine lots adjoining Bowker Creek and is looking into the possibility of acquiring the remaining nine in the area that are privately-owned. Five sites are owned by H. H. Hamer, 3328 Shelbourne, who wants seven of the municipally-owned lots for a residential development.

Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Racing Marvels Head for Hole At Furious Clip

ESTON, Sask. (CP) — Wouldn't it be marvellous if gophers could talk? A visit to one of their burrows today would unearth some strange stories about the shenanigans in this west-central Saskatchewan town Saturday.

The event was the worlds first Gopher Derby and 64 of the small animals found themselves pressed into service on 26 feet of ground called, for the occasion, Prairie Downs.

Eight rodents participated, not what one would call willingly, in each of eight races and the winners found themselves going for broke in the main event. Dropped at the starting gate by gloved trainers, they had to race for a hole in the ground. First one in was the winner.

The hole, however, wasn't freedom, not yet. Underneath was a cunningly-disguised can with a trapdoor lid. After the races were finished, the gophers were set free . . . until next year.

Nova Scotia Police Strike

Mounties Take

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Amid cleanup of broken glass, it was business as usual at most retail establishments in Yarmouth Monday.

Rowdyism and vandalism which boiled up following the walkout of the town's regular 10-man police force Friday night petered out Sunday night when RCMP was called in to take over policing duties.

Until late Sunday, RCMP had provided only emergency police work in this town of 9,000. Attorney-General Leonard Pace authorized the RCMP to do routine police work following requests from town council.

The RCMP policing Sunday was provided by the Yarmouth detachment's normal strength of about eight men, but additional officers were moved in Monday from other detachments in the province.

There were no reports of vandalism Sunday night, but on the two previous nights plate glass windows were smashed in town business establishments by rampaging hooligans. Tires were slashed on cars and there were drag races on streets.

Meanwhile, town police continued to man a picket line in front of the town hall and police station to support demands that the council agree to a tentative wage agreement worked out by a conciliation officer.

The legal strike, the second in the province within a year, began Friday after the town council rejected a tentative agreement that would have given the police a raise of $467 and $596 in the first and second years, respectively, of

Three Guilty On Smuggling

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A federal court jury here convicted three men accused of conspiracy in smuggling marijuana from Mexico and into the United States and Canada. The jury deliberated only two hours before finding the three guilty of conspiracy to import and to possess marijuana with intent to distribute. Convicted were Wilson Weaver Waggoner, 28, and Ernest Raymond Basurto, 22, both of Tucson, and Cid Travers, 34, of Vancouver, B.C.

Even Trudeau Drops from Sky

Duff Big with Grits

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau dropped from the sky and took Arnold Peters' Dominion Day away from him Saturday, giving it to former hockey star Dick Duff.

Trudeau descended on Kirkland Lake's July 1 celebrations — held at a lake near the once-prosperous gold-mining town — by helicopter.

In his speech greeting the prime minister, Mayor Stan Johnson said "surely party politics will be forgotten on a fine day like this."

But that was not quite to be the case on Canada's 105th birthday.

Duff — the Liberal candidate for the area riding of Timiskaming in the next federal election — was the first person to greet the prime minister on his arrival.

The Liberals lost the seat to Peters, New Democrat MP for the area for the last 15 years, by a scant margin of 8,482 to 7,728 in 1968.

Duff scored 283 goals in a distinguished National Hockey League career, and is expected to give the incumbent a strong run this time in a town that has built a monument to the fact that it has sent 31 players to the NHL over the years.

Peters, rough-hewn, colorful and popular on Parliament Hill, had flown the milk-run through Quebec to Kirland Lake to be on hand for the annual picnic, and was there when the prime minister's helicopters — one of them full of reporters — set down.

But when the honorary guests were invited to the bandshell platform to sit with the mayor and chamber of commerce representatives for the formal ceremonies, Peters was not among them.

Trudeau and Duff sat front-and-centre.

When local celebrities were introduced over the public address system, Peters was not mentioned although Jean Roy, Liberal MP from the neighboring riding of Timmins, was.

And when the prime minister made his July 1 address to the gathering of about 3,000, he ended it by saying, "Thank you Dick Duff for bringing me here."

Peters watched the entertainment from among the crowd.

Asked later whether he was annoyed by the Liberal takeover, Peters said:

"No, because I think the people around here are. Even some Liberal aides told me it was a disgrace they were mad as hell."

Bus Drivers Snarl Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — More than 5,000 bus drivers struck Monday, virtually paralyzing public transportation in Santiago and cutting bus connections between the capital and other cities.

The government denounced the strike and warned the drivers they face sanctions.

The drivers are demanding a pay increase equal to about $7 per month retroactive to January, 1971.

Hope for Gravel Bars

Acres of log debris covered huge gravel bars near Hope (TOP) earlier this year. Later flood peaks of Fraser River would have swept much of litter shown above into Strait of Georgia, creating navigational hazards and clutter on beaches. After Forest Service cleanup program, same area, (BOTTON) looked like this. Nearly 54,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber was salvaged and 2 million cubic feet of log debris covering 90 acres, were burned.

China Spares No Cost To Launch Trade Show

TORONTO (UPI) — China will mount its first all-out North American display of industrial and artistic goods next month at the Canadian National Exhibition (CNE), an exhibition official said Monday.

Fred Vandervelde, the CNE's assistant exhibit space manager, said the Chinese have rented an entire building for $45,000 to stage their exhibition, the largest in the CNE's history.

The structure rented, the Queen Elizabeth building, contains 63,000 square feet. The next largest foreign exhibit will occupy 3,000 square feet.

The CNE, located in the southwest end of Toronto on the shore of Lake Ontario is an annual exhibition for industrial and farm wares. It also includes a large amusement area.

Vandervelde said the Chinese presence would break the attendance records for the CNE. "Nothing — foreign or Canadian — can compare to it," he said.

The exhibit will open Aug. 14 and for the first two days attendance will be by invitation only, enabling businessmen and other interested parties to place orders.

At the same time an all-Canada trade fair will be mounted in Peking, with more than 200 firms participating.

Vandervelde said negotiations for the Chinese exhibit at the CNE began shortly after Canada and China established diplomatic relations in 1970.

U.K. Pound Sinks Without Prop

LONDON (UPI) — The value of the British pound sterling continued to decline Monday, dropping to an effective but unofficial devaluation of 7 per cent. The dollar dipped slightly except in France.

The pound closed in London trading at $2.423, its lowest level since the government ceased supporting it at the official $2.606 rate June 23 and allowed it to float. The 18.3-cent decline in the pound's value against the dollar represents a devaluation of 7 per cent.

The pound's value declined similarly against other major world currencies in light trading in all exchange markets.

Except in France, where the dollar gained slight strength on the commercial market, the American currency was weaker Monday. In West Germany, it slipped to 3.1513 marks from the close last Friday of 3.1530 marks. In relation to the official rate of 3.222 marks, the dollar's decline represents a 2 per cent devaluation against the West German currency.

In conjunction with the money market, the price of gold moved fractionally higher Monday in Europe and in Asia it hit a new record high. In Hong Kong, gold closed at the equivalent of $59.78 per ounce compared with the previous record high of $59.32 set last Thursday.

In Switzerland, the government bank stepped in to support the dollar and moved its value upward in early trading Monday. But when the bank pulled out of the market and stopped buying dollars, the currency fell to 3.748 Swiss francs — just below its floor,

Brentwood Cre

HENLEY, England — Brentwood College of Vancouver Island fell half a length short in their quest for the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup Saturday at Henley Royal Regatta.

The Island schoolboys, who reached the finals of the eights Friday when Ridley College of St. Catherines was disqualified, were edged by Kent School of Connecticut, which rowed the one mile and 500-yard course in seven minutes, two seconds.

Ridley, which defeated Brentwood by four lengths in the semi-final, was disqualified for finishing the race without a full crew. An oarsman fell overboard 200 yards from the finish line.

Brian Powell of Shawnigan Lake, who accompanied the crew to England, said Brentwood hoped to defeat Kent with a strong performance over the last 200 yards of the course.

"But Kent was ready for us," he added.

The only Canadian winner in Saturday's finals of this rowing classic was a coxed four from St. Catharines,

Dolphins Crack

Canadian Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver proved again over the weekend they are the powerhouse of B.C. swimming.

On their romp to the title in the three-day, 15th annual B.C. age-group and seniors swimming championships, at Crystal Pool, Dolphins cracked nine records and left the 29 other clubs far behind. Dolphins finished with 993 points, 422 ahead of the second-place finishers, De Anza Swim Club of De Anza, Calif.

Best Vancouver Island showing in the meet was by Port Alberni Aquatic Club, which placed fifth with 164 points. Juan de Fuca Cohoes of Victoria was eighth with 113 points.

Three Dolphins — Jennifer McHugh, Shannon Smith and Michael Ker — cracked two national age-group records each, Leslie Cliff lowered one of her own marks and two Dolphin teams set relay records on Friday.

Miss McHugh, who bettered her own 100-metre freestyle mark for 13 and 14-year-olds on Friday, stepped up to senior competition Saturday and set the 200-metre butterfly record with a time of 2:31.800 minutes, knocking half a second off her old record.

Miss Smith was timed in 1:21.298 minute in the 10-and-under 100-metre backstroke event Saturday, lowering .082 second off a 1967 mark held by Colette Dehamel of Montreal.

On Sunday, Miss Smith chopped nearly six seconds off the 200-metre individual medley mark set in 1970 by Becky Smith of Edmonton with a time of 2:56.785 minutes.

Ker's records were both in freestyle competition. He swam the 200-metre race for 13-and-14-year-olds in 2:10.025

Shadows Exhibitio

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shadows Dividend, voted the top three-year-old in British Columbia last year, emulated his 1971 form with a three-length victory in the $6,625 Dominion Day Handicap Saturday at Exhibition Park.

After finishing third in his first two starts this year, Shadows Dividend came from far back to score impressively in the one and one-sixteenth mile race for Canadian-breds.

Preuss and Hamann's Ataman took second by a half-length over Mrs. D. P. Richardson's Sky Hunter, and Elwood Farm's favored Winning Charge tired badly to finish sixth and last.

Shadows Dividend, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Druce of Victoria, was clocked in an unspectacular 1:45 4-5.

The holiday crowd of 11,007 wagered a record $622,600 on the ten races. The previous Exhibition Park record of $564,678 was set on Labor Day, 1969.

Brentwood Crew Misses Henley Title

HENLEY, England — Brentwood College of Vancouver Island fell half a length short in their quest for the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup Saturday at Henley Royal Regatta.

The Island schoolboys, who reached the finals of the eights Friday when Ridley College of St. Catherines was disqualified, were edged by Kent School of Connecticut, which rowed the one mile and 500-yard course in seven minutes, two seconds.

Ridley, which defeated Brentwood by four lengths in the semi-final, was disqualified for finishing the race without a full crew. An oarsman fell overboard 200 yards from the finish line.

Brian Powell of Shawnigan Lake, who accompanied the crew to England, said Brentwood hoped to defeat Kent with a strong performance over the last 200 yards of the course.

"But Kent was ready for us," he added.

The only Canadian winner in Saturday's finals of this rowing classic was a coxed four from St. Catharines, which whipped an Oxford University crew by four lengths in 7:22 to capture the Prince Philip Challenge Cup.

But the University of British Columbia coxless four was not as fortunate.

The UBC crew collided with Spartak of Moscow moments after the start of their race for the Steward's Challenge Cup. UBC was disqualified and the title went to the Russian foursome.

Bob Cunliffe, a 21-year-old from Victoria on the UBC crew, said the Canadians had clearly been at fault. He blamed the accident on Strong winds blowing across the Thames during the final events.

Rich Crooker, a member of the St. Catharine's Rowing Club four, said the oarsmen had only three weeks of practice as a team.

Crooker, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, said the crew plans to take part in trials for the Olympic Games in Munich. Trials are scheduled for St. Catharines later this month.

Winner of the other Henley finals:

Ladies' Challenge Plate: Delftsche Laga, Holland.

Grande Challenge Cup: Soviet Union Olympic eight.

Thames Challenge Cup: Harvard University.

Diamond Sculls: Alexander Timoshin, Soviet Union.

Britainnia Challenge Cup: Wallingford Rowing Club Britain.

Silver Goblets and Nickalls' Challenge Cup: Jerzy Broniec and Alfoas Slusavski, Poland.

Wyford Challenge Cup, Leander Rowing Club, Britain.

Visitors' Challenge Cup: University of London.

Best Vancouver Island showing in the meet was by Port Alberni Aquatic Club, which placed fifth with 164 points. Juan de Fuca Cohoes of Victoria was eighth with 113 points.

Three Dolphins — Jennifer McHugh, Shannon Smith and Michael Ker — cracked two national age-group records each, Leslie Cliff lowered one of her own marks and two Dolphin teams set relay records on Friday.

Miss McHugh, who bettered her own 100-metre freestyle mark for 13 and 14-year-olds on Friday, stepped up to senior competition Saturday and set the 200-metre butterfly record with a time of 2:31.800 minutes, knocking half a second off her old record.

Miss Smith was timed in 1:21.298 minute in the 10-and-under 100-metre backstroke event Saturday, lowering .082 second off a 1967 mark held by Colette Dehamel of Montreal.

On Sunday, Miss Smith chopped nearly six seconds off the 200-metre individual medley mark set in 1970 by Becky Smith of Edmonton with a time of 2:56.785 minutes.

Ker's records were both in freestyle competition. He swam the 200-metre race for 13-and-14-year-olds in 2:10.025 minutes, shaving 1.15 seconds off Craig Beattie's 1971 record. On Sunday, Ker finished 12th in a senior, 1500-metre race but still established an age-group mark with the time of 18:07.2 minutes.

Miss Cliff was close to a Canadian open mark in the 400-metre individual medley, winning in 5:09.790 to clip about half a second off her own native mark. Claudia Kolb of the United States holds the world mark at 5:09.700.

Clark Van der Mye of the Prince Rupert Amateur Swim Club was the other record-breaker. He established the 100-metre freestyle mark for 10-and-under on Friday and set his second record on Sunday with a time of 1:21.948 in the 100-metre butterfly event.

Dennis Baker of Portland turned in an outstanding performance over the three days, winning five events in the 10-and-under category. His performance was almost matched by Cyndi McCullam of Seattle, who had four firsts and a second in the 11-and-12 age division.

Shadows Dividend Wins Exhibition Park Feature

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shadows Dividend, voted the top three-year-old in British Columbia last year, emulated his 1971 form with a three-length victory in the $6,625 Dominion Day Handicap Saturday at Exhibition Park.

After finishing third in his first two starts this year, Shadows Dividend came from far back to score impressively in the one and one-sixteenth mile race for Canadian-breds.

Preuss and Hamann's Ataman took second by a half-length over Mrs. D. P. Richardson's Sky Hunter, and Elwood Farm's favored Winning Charge tired badly to finish sixth and last.

Shadows Dividend, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Druce of Victoria, was clocked in an unspectacular 1:45 4-5.

The holiday crowd of 11,007 wagered a record $622,600 on the ten races. The previous Exhibition Park record of $564,678 was set on Labor Day, 1969.

City Track Officials Protest Rival Meet

Only 42 athletes turned up for Saturday's Victoria summer track and field championships at Centennial Stadium.

A large contingent had been expected from the mainland for the meet which was organized to give athletes a tune-up for the Western Canadian championships at Centennial Stadium next weekend.

But, because of a meet arranged at the last minute in Richmond, only five mainland athletes turned up in Victoria.

Because of the small entries, officials had to mix men and women in some events and many races had only two competitors.

Meet director Stan Pelland said he was sending a letter to the B.C. Track and Field Association to voice disapproval that Richmond should hold a meet in direct competition with Victoria.

"Officials are keenly disappointed in what happened," said Pelland. "Lack of communication split a competitive meet."

One of the best performances of the day was by Reg Effa of the Victoria Track Club, who won the 100 and 200 metres and the 110-metre hurdles.

Thirteen-year-old Wendy Davies had a fast time of 15.8 seconds in finishing second to the experienced Jill Pelland in the 100-metre hurdles. Miss Pelland's time was 14.8.

Seagren Cracks Pole Vault Mark

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Bob Seagren, the 1968 Olympic gold medalist, cracked the world pole vault record Sunday, but he doesn't think the new mark of 18 feet 5¾ inches will last long.

"Nineteen feet is near," the 25-year-old Seagren said Sunday after the vault that gave him the No. 1 spot on the United States track and field team for the Olympic Games in Munich.

Seagren turned on a crowd of 14,000 at Hayward Field as he conquered both 95-degree heat and nervousness to snap the world mark of 18-4 he shared with Sweden's Kjell Isaksson.

Seagren, representing the Southern California Striders, might have taken a crack at the 19-foot mark except there were 21 vaulters in contention at the start of the fourth day of the U.S. Olympic Trials.

"I think I could have had a good chance at it today if the competition hadn't lasted so long and it had been earlier in the day," he said.

He said the record vault, which came on his third attempt, wasn't one of his best, but it was good enough for him to finish ahead of Steve Smith and Jan Johnson.

For the first time in history three men cleared 18 feet in the same meet. Smith, from Cal State-Long Beach, and Johnson, from Alabama, finished second and third with vaults of 18-0½.

Dave Roberts, the two-time NCAA winner from Rice, finished fourth at 17-8½. The AAU champion cleared 18 feet earlier this year.

An American record fell in the 400-yard intermediate hurdles as Ralph Mann, former Brigham Young star, clipped the tape in 48.4 seconds, four-tenths of a second under the previous mark he shared.

Frank Shorter, born in Munich, earned a trip there as America's No. 1 runner in the 10,000 metres. He finished first in 28 minutes 35.6 seconds.

Eddie Hart of San Francisco won the 100 metres in 9.9 seconds, a mark shared by three other U.S. runners, Jim Hines, Ronnie Ray Smith and Charles Green.

In the final of the 800, Dave Wottle of Bowling Green State University in Ohio equalled the world mark of 1:44.3, set by Peter Snell of New Zealand in 1962, and Australia's Ralph Doubell in 1968.

212 Jobs Open in B.C.

Nurse Shortage Cuts Hospital Services

Badly-needed hospital services are being curtailed throughout British Columbia because of a shortage of registered nurses, it has been learned.

A spokesman for the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. said in Vancouver recently there were 212 job openings listed with the organization.

However, the number of RNs actually needed could be double or triple that figure because some hospitals do not list their requirements with the RNABC.

The shortage is not serious in Victoria, although the operating room staff at Queen Victoria General Hospital urgently needs additional RNs. Doctors have complained about the nursing shortage in that hospital's surgical service.

Royal Jubilee says it doesn't have a nurse shortage.

However, it has been learned that Jubilee has been telephoning almost every RN known to the nursing department, offering often extravagant inducements if they would return for only part-time work during the summer.

The most seriously affected hospitals are those in remote areas. Prince George Regional Hospital, for example, is looking for 27 registered nurses and is planning to close several wards this summer.

"Prince George is not the only one closing wards," said the association spokesman.

Authorities offer several reasons for the nurse shortage. Often there is a desire to quit a job for the summer so a long holiday might be spent with the family. In other cases, nurses decide the summer is the best time to quit and look for another job.

The RNABC spokesman admitted that it was a peculiar situation when, during the winter, the association often advises nurses not to come to B.C. unless there is a job waiting for them and, during the summer, it buys advertising space in daily newspapers in an attempt to find enough nurses.

Rotary Choice

Directors are Dr. R. T. Wallace, immediate past president; J. F. Gregory, vice-president; D. H. Mollison, vice-president; H. W. Norbert, honorary secretary; H. J. Kennedy, treasurer; and G. M. Coxworth, J. V. Svendsen, Joseph Chell, D. H. Hambleton, R. B. Perry, G. K. Verley, directors.

$500 Tax Cash Goes Missing

Joseph Wong went down to the Victoria city hall Friday morning to pay his taxes with $500 in cash.

But somehow before he got there, he had lost the money.

Victoria police continued to look for it Monday but reported no success in finding it.

Police reported that Wong, 81, of 2524 Vancouver had placed the money in a new brown billfold before he went to give it to the tax collectors. There were no papers or other identification in the wallet they said.

The money was in $10, $20, $50 and $100 bills.

British Lord Lennon Ally

LONDON (AP) — John Lennon has found an ally in his legal wrangle with the U.S. Immigration Service for permission to live in the United States — Lord Harlech, former British ambassador in Washington.

The peer has written to U.S. authorities defending Lennon, the former Beatle. The immigration service has opposed Lennon's application to live permanently in the U.S. on the grounds of a drug conviction in London in 1968.

Harlech expressed doubts that Lennon was guilty of possessing marijuana, although the singer pleaded guilty. He was fined £150, then worth $360.

"Leaving aside the question of whether he was in fact guilty, which now seems to be in doubt, I know personally of a number of cases in which such a conviction has not prevented the granting by the American authorities of a visa to enter the United States," Harlech wrote.

He did not elaborate on his doubts about Lennon's guilt, and was unavailable for comment.

The peer said of the former Beatle: "When the musical history of our times comes to be written there is no doubt that the name of John Lennon will be given a most important place in it."

Harlech, 54, was ambassador in 1961-65. Since then he has been deputy leader of the opposition in the House of Lords and president of the British Board of Film Censors.

Good Citizen on Stage

Band Strikes Up For Show Start

By BERT BINNY

Yet another series of summer shows opened Sunday afternoon when a 35-piece band directed by Howard Denike, gave a pleasant program at the Cameron Bandshell in Beacon Hill Park.

These programs continue every Sunday at 2:30 p.m. through Sept. 3.

For the initial foray there was a large audience, scattered around under the trees for the most part: it was blazing hot in the seats.

The selections played were nicely varied; from Rossini and Romberg to Bart and Bacharach. Tchaikowsky was in there too, but so, also was George Cohan.

Singer Harry Elsdon was heard to advantage in selections from Cohan such as You're A Grand Old Flag, Yankee Doodle Dandy, Give My Regards to Broadway and Mary's A Grand Old Name. These delightful songs date back to the years 1904 to 1908, but in the latter half of the program, Harry took a large leap down through the decades for songs from Bart's Oliver.

But there were instrumental soloists too: Maurice Crawford on piccolo in the March from Desert Song along with percussionists Leigh Anderson and Ernie Durrant.

Clarinetist Barry Moneur was featured in the ballet from Rossini's William Tell, and trumpeter Boyd Hood in Hansson's very delightful march, Valdres.

Master of ceremonies was Fraser McAlpine.

Intermission was occupied with the presentation of the 1972 Good Citizen's Award.

This award, given by Post No. 1 of the Native Sons of B.C., went to Mrs. Elizabeth Watling of 950 Humboldt who received it from Chief Factor John Forrester.

Mrs. Watling has been blind for the past 38 years as a result of an accident suffered three years before.

Married in England in 1921, Mrs. Watling came to Canada and the Victoria district in 1928. She was a member of her church choir for 40 years and has been president of the Canadian Council for the Blind since the inception of that body 26 years ago.

But the award came as much if not more for her service and assistance to others, given quietly and backstage and despite her own handicap.

McPherson Happier Theatre

Smile Show Has Its Ups

By BERT BINNY

This time of year and for 20 years, Jerry Gosley's Smile Show has rolled forth its special brand of larks and laughter.

Saturday's unveiling marked the 21st Victoria program; one year the show was in Korea entertaining the troops.

These and other historical details were recounted to the large audience at the McPherson Playhouse by former mayor, Percy George. He opened the first Smile Show two decades ago and he opened the 20th on yet another significant occasion.

It was his 82nd birthday and he was cheered to the echo.

If the 1972 show has its ups and downs, it had far more ups than downs.

It is happier in the McPherson which is, after all, designed solely as a theatre. Happier, for instance, than it was at Oak Bay junior high where the note of academic austerity is unavoidable. As a result the cast at the playhouse just has to maintain an atmosphere of make-believe, fun and frolic: they don't have to create it in the face of environmental opposition.

Three valuable additions to the 1972 cast are Harry Cossey, Steve Ivings and Rick Simmonds. Steve's impressions do need a bit of polishing here and there but they are a new and pleasant departure.

His Romeo and Juliet interlude with Jerry requires considerably more Shakespearian fervor but these are problems certainly soluble by practise and possibly by experience.

Sonia Croucher proved very popular with her anecdotes and interruptions and received particularly enthusiastic applause when, as a "char", she observed that she didn't like working at city hall.

She spent too much time "dusting off the model of the Reid Centre."

Singer-dancer-comedienne Dorothy Hosie associated with the Smile Show for 14 years, works hard and with technical efficiency as does singer Harry Elsdon. But there are intervals when neither project.

The four dancers, Dawn-Alena Worth, Cynd Connolly, Lana Check and Linda Geddes gave a consistently fine performance.

And it is amazing how a couple of brief wordless appearances can evoke such laughter and hearty applause as did those of Tom Hosie.

The music of Al Denoni and Dennis Boyd was occasionally a bit wild but it was always acceptable.

The settings were especially good as was the lighting. Anton and Tim Gosley, who also appeared on the show, were largely responsible for the former.

Two outstanding numbers were Long Haired Lover from Liverpool and a delightful item on bicycles with Dorothy Hosie, Harry Elsdon and the quartet of dancers.

The latter, using black light, was well contrived and brought spontaneous applause more than once.

Of the ballet item The Dawn of the Druids, one member of the audience pertinently remarked that it was difficult to reconcile a portrayal of human sacrifice with a Smile Show. And Baby Talk, with Sonia Croucher and Steve Ivings, is weak at present.

As a character comedian Jerry Gosley is hard to beat. In Waiting at the Church or Long Haired Lover, he was wonderful but his excursions into the realm of nostalgia don't seem to come off.

There is also a tendency to "milk the audience" at the end of the show. Fortunately the opening night crowd was in a state of high lactation but it may not always be that way and there is an old, shobiz adage of proven value which says: Leave 'em wanting more!

Olympics Draw 123 Countries

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — About 10,500 men and women athletes from 123 countries have been entered for the Summer Olympic Games in Munich, the organizers announced Monday.

West Germany will have the largest delegation with 405 male and 118 female athletes, plus 134 team officials.

The Soviet Union will send the second largest group—382 men and 119 women athletes and 127 officials. Third largest group is the United States with 625—369 men and 100 women athletes and 156 officials.

The organizers said the June 30 deadline for entering passed with eight countries either refusing or not replying to invitations. They were Jordan, Iraq, Zaire, Paraguay, Honduras, Mauritius, Guinea, and the Central African Republic.

Bown Captures Speedway Feature

Dick Bown of Portland, Ore. fought off a spirited challenge by veteran Hershel McGriff Monday night to win the 150-lap NASCAR Western Grand National race at Western Speedway.

Bown grabbed the lead from favorite Ray Elder on the 40th lap and McGriff, a 42-year-old from Bridal Veil, Ore., moved up to challenge when Jack McCoy of Modesto, Calif., second for about 50 laps, dropped out with mechanical problems.

From the 100th lap, McGriff tried every trick he knew to get past Bown but the Portland driver held on desperately for his win.

Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif., was third and John Soares of Hayward, Calif., was fourth.

Elder of Carruthers, Calif., the series points leader, had tire trouble after leading for the first 40 laps and finished sixth in the 21-car field.

The race was watched by 4000 fans.

McGriff won the opening leg of the two Canadian events in the 25-race Western Grand National series, taking a 150-lap race Sunday at Langley Speedway.

On Saturday night, Rick O'Dell missed getting his fourth straight victory at Western when he was involved in a spectacular collision on the 25th lap of the 35-lap super-stock main event.

O'Dell, Bill Price and Ron Hancock were involved in the crash, but Larry Walker roared past the sprawling cars and held on for victory. O'Dell finished fourth behind John Currier and Ted Mortel.

Tony Johnson beat Al Miller over the finish line by only a car length in the 20-lap claimer main event. Bill Bartley was third and Al Smith fourth.

Jonas, Bombers Trounce Alouettes

MONTREAL — Winnipeg Blue Bombers indicated Monday night that they may not have been one-year wonders.

Bombers, who surprised many last season by finishing third and leading the Canadian Football League in scoring, hammered Montreal Alouettes, 43-10 in the season's first exhibition game.

And as last year, quarterback Don Jonas played the leading role for Winnipeg.

Jonas named the CFL player of the year in 1971, threw two touchdown passes, kicked six converts and added a single on a missed field-goal attempt.

And Jonas only shared duties with rookies Tom Pharr and Bob Cutburth. The trio completed 20 of 29 passes for 277 yards.

After Alouettes grabbed a 1-0 lead Jonas marched the Bombers 85 yards in nine plays for a touchdown. Louis Scott made a diving catch in the end zone and Jonas converted to give Bombers a 7-1 edge at the quarter.

Bombers put the game away in the second quarter when Mack Herron took a Jonas pass for a touchdown and defensive back Grady Cavness intercepted a Montreal pass on the next sequence and returned the ball 43 yards for another touchdown.

Quarterback Jim Chasey narrowed the margin to 11 points when he scored from nine yards. Don Sweet, who had earlier kicked a field goal, missed the convert.

Chasey who played the first half for Montreal, hit on 10 of 17 pass attempts and had one pass intercepted.

Sonny Wade and Jim Corcoran shared quarterbacking duties in the second half and combined to complete eight of 19 passes. Wade had one intercepted.

Bomber-halfback Paul Williams scored the only touchdown of the third quarter, on the prettiest play of the night.

Pharr hit flanker Jim Thorpe with a pass on the Montreal 14-yard line and Thorpe drew two defenders before flipping the ball to Williams who went over the goal-line unmolested.

In the final quarter, Doug Strong intercepted a pass at the Montreal 44 and raced to the seven-yard line. One play later Pharr hit Olan Thompson with a touchdown pass and Jonas converted.

Defensive tackle Steve Howell scored the other Winnipeg touchdown when he recovered a Wade fumble and rambled 38 yards into the end zone.

Jonas closed out the scoring with a 27-yard single.

Bombers move on to Toronto for a game with the Argonatus Wednesday night. B.C. Lions are in Regina and Calgary at Edmonton in other exhibition games Wednesday.

The defending American League champions unleashed a 21-hit attack to rout Detroit 15-3 and move into a tie with the Tigers in the Eastern Division.

A crowd of 50,835 and a national television audience watched the spectacular at Tiger Stadium. The Orioles, who won three of four games in the crucial weekend series, scored six runs in the sixth inning, seven in the eighth inning and added two more in the ninth inning.

Merv Rettenmund and Bobby Grich led the Orioles with four hits each and Boog Powell climaxed the rout with a two-run homer in the ninth.

In National League action, St. Louis Cardinals remained the hottest club in major-league baseball by winning their seventh straight game and 14th of the last 15 with a 4-2 decision over front-running Cincinnati Reds.

Cardinals moved into a virtual third-place tie with Chicago in the Eastern Division but failed to gain on Pittsburgh Pirates, who shaded the Cubs, 3-2.

Ted Simmons snapped a 2-2 tie with a two-run double in the fifth inning and Rick Wise, who contributed a home run, pitched his 10th complete game in recording the win for the Cardinals.

Atlanta prevented Houston from moving up on the Reds when Hank Aaron pounded his 656th career home run, a three-run drive, to give the Braves a 13-9 win over the Astros.

Aaron, who reached the 2000 runs-batted-in mark with the home run, has hit four homers in the last six games and trails Babe Ruth by 58 in all-time homers. Aaron is also second to Ruth's 2209 runs batted in.

Weekend highlights:

- Willie McCovey blasted his 14th career grand-slam home run, tying him with the Late Gil Hodges and Aaron for the National League record, as San Francisco blasted Los Angeles, 9-3, Sunday;
- Gary Nolan became the National League's first 11-game winner when Cincinnati clubbed San Diego Padres 12-2 Sunday;
- Chicago Cubs completed a triple play in the seventh inning but lost their seventh in nine games to Pittsburgh Sunday when Pirates scored a 7-4 victory;
- Vida Blue, pitching out of two bases-loaded jams, won his second game of the season when Oakland Athletics scored a 3-1 win over California Angels;
- Mickey Lolich of Detroit scattered seven Baltimore hits in becoming the first 13-game winner in the majors when Tigers trimmed the Orioles, 2-0;
- Richie Scheinblum, the American League leading hitter, upped his average to .341 with six hits in nine at bats to help Kansas City Royals earn a doubleheader split against Texas Rangers;
- Minnesota Twins may have lost pitcher Jim Kaat for the remainder of the season. The lefthander injured his wrist Sunday while sliding into second base against Chicago White Sox, continued pitching until the eighth inning but needed relief help in running his record to 10-2.

Ahearne Retains Hockey Position

NANAIA, Romania (Reuter) — John "Bunny" Ahearne of Britain has been re-elected chairman of the International Ice Hockey Federation at the league's summer congress here, it was announced Monday.

The congress granted West Germany's application to hold the 1975 world championships in Munich and Duesseldorf, while Austria will hold the 1976 tournament in Vienna and Innsbruck.

Moscow had already been awarded next year's championships and Helsinki 1974's.

It was also decided to inaugurate in 1974 a world junior championships for players under 21.

Canadian delegates again proposed that professionals should be allowed to play in world championships and the congress appointed a four-member commission to look into the question.

A final decision on the subject will be made at the federation's congress in Moscow next April.

Four New Faces in Lions Lineup

PENTICTON — Two on defence two on offence.

That's the number of new faces B.C. Lions will have in the starting lineup when the Canadian Football League club meets Saskatchewan Roughriders in an exhibition game Wednesday in Regina.

Head-coach Eagle Keys, in announcing the makeup of his team Monday, left several positions on defence open to competition.

He named Ron Estay an all-American with Louisiana State, to his defensive line which includes veterans Garrett Hunsperger and Gary Robinson and second-year man Bob Liggett.

Alternating at end with Robinson will be Greg Findlay, a veteran who has been switched from linebacker this season.

The other newcomer on defence is Ray Nettles, the highly-regarded graduate of Tennessee, who will share right-linebacking duties with Peter Palmer a second-year player. Carl Weathers and George Anderson, both Lions last season, will hold down the middle and left-linebacking spots respectively.

Keys will start the same secondary that finished the 1971 campaign. That includes Mike Wilson Wayne Matherne, Brian Donnelly, Wayne Holm and Dave Easley.

Two running backs are the only newcomers on the offensive formation.

All-American Johnny Musso from Alabama will start at left halfback and Monroe Eley from Arizona State will fill the right-halfback slot. Completing the backfield will be quarterback Don Moorhead fullback Jim Evenson, and flanker Larry Highbaugh.

Jim Young, who has played running back for several seasons, switches to wide receiver this year. Dave Denny will play tight end, Bob Howes centre, Trev Ekdahl and Ted Wheeler guards, and Ken Sugarman and Dave Golinsky tackles.

Lions will dress 52 players for Wednesday's game.

Young Net Rivals Make It to Semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Teen-aged sensation Chris Evert of the United States and defending-champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia, the young rivals of the tennis courts, reached the Wimbledon semi-finals Monday and at last were set for a match against each other.

Cool little Chris, 17, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Monday eliminated Patti Hogan of La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, and Evonne, 20, the curly-haired Australian, ousted Francoise Durr of France, 8-6, 7-5, although she was way below her best form.

Fans are expected to wait all night for standing room at the long-anticipated confrontation between the two girls in Wednesday's semi-finals.

Mrs. Billy Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., seeded second behind Miss Goolagong and a three-time winner of the Wimbledon women's title, will meet her old friend, Rosemary Casals of San Francisco in the other semi-final.

Mrs. King defeated Virginia Wade of Britain, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, Monday and Miss Casals came from behind to beat Mrs. Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex., 3-6, 6-4, 6-0.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND

Every fan at Wimbledon — crowds of between 25,000 and 30,000 have poured into the All-England Club every day — has been longing for a clash between Chris and Evonne.

As usual, the little American girl was cool and apparently quite unexcited by the prospect.

"I am trying not to get this out of perspective," she said. "I shall not worry about the match.

GAME VARIES

"My game is always on the same level. Evonne's game varies so much. Sometimes it's terrific and sometimes she hits stupid shots."

Miss Goolagong did not look like a champion in her match against Miss Durr—at least until the last five games. Then, coming from 2-5 in the second set, she produced some of the volleys and cross-court placements which helped her win the 1971 crown.

DOUBTFUL CALL

Miss Evert played her usual controlled game from the baseline, but for once her opponent won a large share of the crowd's sympathy. Miss Hogan, trying to draw Chris forward, had some tough luck in the final set, including a doubtful line call in the fourth game which virtually ended the match.

Chris was leading 2-1 at the time, and the score was 15-15 on Patti's service. Patti hit a backhand down the line and it appeared to be in. But the linesman called it out.

LOOKED DEJECTED

Patti looked dejected and failed to win another point in that game. And she failed to mount a strong challenge after that.

Mrs. King, in her match against Miss Wade, had to play against 13,000 excited partisan fans on the centre court who cheered excitedly every time the British girl won a point.

Mrs. Gunter, the former Nancy Richey, started well against Miss Casals but failed to keep up the pace. Mrs. Gunter fired away from her baseline, while Miss Casals rushed to the net and piled up points with volleys.

Carrasco had a chance to tie Norman on the 18th green but missed a four-foot putt.

His game started to go sour on the 12th, a par-five 463-yard hole. He took an eight after hitting his tee shot into a creek.

He also went one over par on the 15th and 16th holes and two-over on the 17th.

Box Cox Jr. of North Vancouver, signed a wrong score card on the first day and disqualified himself after shooting 70 in the second round.

Tom Moryson of North Vancouver played nine holes, shot 44 and then quit Saturday and Dale Tallon, of Vancouver Canucks, blew to a 44 on the front nine and missed the cut with his second 81.

Olympic Spot for Victorian

Earning one of six berths on Canada's first Olympic archery team in weekend competition at Regina was Vi Muir (above) of Victoria while Wanda Allan, another member of the Victoria Seaview Archers, was named an alternate to the team which will compete in Munich next month. Four Ontario archers, Don Jackson, Wayne Pullen, Elmer Ewart and Mary Grant and former world champion Dorothy Lidstone of Vancouver also earned berths on the team.

Three City Archers Win Island Titles

Lil Jones of Seaview Archers and Fred Usher of Victoria Bowmen won the senior titles and Ken Rundell of Seaview Archers captured the junior boys' division.

Mrs. Jones, who didn't compete in the Island event last year because of surgery, beat Adele Bishop president of Victoria Bowmen, and Mary Wills of Cedar Forest Bowmen of Victoria, who finished second and third, respectively.

Usher finished with a score of 1261 to beat George Pearce of Ladysmith Golden Arrows by nine. Mike Darrell of Nanaimo Totem Archers was third with 1244.

Rundell led a sweep of the first three places by Seaview Archers. Stewart Lagieri came second and Michael Paul took third spot.

At the annual meeting, Frank Jones of Victoria and Art Morgan of Courtenay were elected president and vice-president respectively, of the B.C. Archery Association. Nanaimo Totem Archers were named as hosts for next year's event.

Wright Right

Eric Wright — not White — was the winner of the two-day Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association tournament last week.

The Gorge Vale veteran won the 36-hole event, at Royal Colwood and Uplands courses, with a total of 149.

An earlier story in The Daily Colonist had the name as White.

Graham Tops Devlin In Cleveland Playoff

CLEVELAND (AP) — David Graham, a 26-year-old tour rookie from Australia, sank a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff Monday to win the $150,000 Cleveland Open golf tournament.

Graham had finished the regulation 72 holes of this rain-delayed tournament tied with fellow Australian Bruce Devlin at 278, six under par on the 6907-yard par-71 Tanglewood Country Club course.

Devlin had missed a six-foot birdie putt on the final hole that would have given him a victory. Instead, he and Graham, World Cup partners last fall, set out in the mist and fading sunlight for the playoff for the $30,000 first prize.

Graham, playing with a set of clubs he obtained from Arnold Palmer in a swap for a used putter, shot a two-under-par 69 Monday, while Devlin finished with a 70.

Devlin, too, had a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the second play-off hole. But he missed.

EARNINGS WERE SLIM

Graham, a pro since 1962 in Australia, joined the U.S. tour after graduating last year from the Professional Golfers school.

Through the U.S. Open two weeks ago, Graham hadn't won enough money on the tour to rank in the top 100. But his paycheque here, in a tourney skipped by most of golf's big names, will vault him into the top 40.

Devlin picked up $17,100.

Larry Hinson who led the field into the last round, finished with a two-over-par 73 to finish third at 279. Lanny Wadkins and Miller Barber tied for fourth at 280.

On the first sudden-death hole, Graham drove into a fairway bunker, blasted out, chipped up and two putted for a bogey five. Devlin was on the green in two but three-putted for a bogey. He missed a three-foot putt.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a final-round 70 for a 291 total and $5,400 in prize money. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had a 74 and finished two strokes behind Knudson at 283, earning $2,900. Homenuik had a hole in one Sunday when he finished with a 68.

Two other Canadians, Gary Bowerman and Ben Kern, both of Toronto, each won $300. Bowerman fired a final 76 for 297 while Kern had an 81 for 298.

Susie Berning U.S. Golf Queen

MARARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Susie Maxwell Berning captured the 20th U.S. Open golf championship for women Sunday with a final-round 71 as third-round leader, Pam Barnett, soared to a 76.

Mrs. Berning, 30, who won the event in 1968, started the day at 12 over par and climaxed a round with a birdie two on the tough 17th hole to gain her one-stroke edge when Miss Barnett took a bogey four.

Scores soared generally on the final two days of the tournament with Mrs. Berning finishing at 299, 11 over par.

Miss Barnett finished at 300 while Judy Rankin and Kathy Ahern were at 301. Betty Burfeindt was alone at 302 while Gloria Ehret, four-time winner Mickey Wright and Jane Batanchury Booth, a member of the 1970 and 1972 U.S. Curtis Cup teams were all at 304. Mrs. Booth took low amateur honors.

At 305 were carol Mann, the 1965 winner, Amateur Carol Semple and Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan Quebec.

Winning at the Races May Not Be Your Idea of Fun, But...

Here I sit, trying to write about Larry Voegele. And all the while I'm working and sweating, the guy I'm writing about is out at the racetrack. Not a worry in the world—and probably making more money in a day than I make in a week.

What's his secret? He knows how to beat the races. Really knows. Knows so much that he runs a school for handicappers. (It's the only one of its kind in the world. Which is why he was asked to appear on "What's My Line.")

He charges his "students" two hundred bucks apiece. He tells them that if they're not completely satisfied he'll return every cent they've paid, and nobody has ever asked for his money back.

What's more, he went on a live radio show (The Pete Smith Show on KMPC, February 20, 1971) and did something that had never been done before. Mr. Smith really threw it to him: asked him to pick the winners in the 7 races that were being run at Santa Anita, while the program was on the air. Two out of seven would have been good enough to show a profit. Three would have been phenomenal. Larry Voegele picked five!

If he'd been at the track betting, say $20 on each race, he would have picked up a cool $404 . . . net profit! Not bad for an afternoon's "work."

And all the knowledge that Larry publicly proved that day . . . every fact that he teaches in his $200 course . . . is in his book.

If you've never bet on a horse in your life, you'll read and enjoy every word. And end up understanding more than most guys who have been following the ponies all their lives.

If you're an oldtimer, you'll skip the background and get right down to the nitty gritty. If you can forget what you think you know, if you have the nerve—and the discipline—to follow his methods to the letter, you could make more money than you ever dreamed possible.

Why? Because you'll know more than 95% of the people who go to the track—and you're betting against them! The money they lose, you'll win! The track and the state take their cut, but there's plenty to go around.

At Santa Anita, for example, over two million dollars is bet every day. And it's a statistical fact that only one out of 20 walks out a big winner. You can be one of them!

Larry Voegele doesn't look like a racetrack tout. He's not. He's a college graduate. He was the editor of a newspaper. He was a legislative assistant to a congressman.

He was a stockbroker, working for a major Wall Street firm. Was because he found out that investing in horse races was safer—and more profitable—than trying to beat the Bulls and the Bears at their own game.

And that's the secret of his book. He approaches handicapping as a professional. It's scientific. No "hunches." No "tips." No so-called "systems."

It isn't even "inside information." Just simple, hard facts. Facts that anyone could see if they knew what to look for. In short, if they knew what Larry Voegele knows—and tells in his book.

It'll take you about an hour to read it. Another hour to practice what he preaches.

Then if you do exactly as he says, step by step . . . if you don't get reckless or greedy . . . you'll be on your way to the kind of life you want.

Is that worth a 2-hour investment? Because that's all you're risking. Just time. Not money.

Here's why: your check or money order will not be deposited for two weeks after your copy of the book is mailed. That'll give you plenty of time to receive your book, read it thoroughly, and put the principles into action.

If you're not thrilled with what you've gained, just send the book back within 14 days. Your uncashed check or money order will be in the return mail!

Ever heard of an offer like that? No. But there's never been a book like this either.

As to the price—if you decide to keep the book. Frankly, we didn't know what to charge. It isn't just paper and ink. It's information. Facts that dozens of people have paid $200 to gain—and were satisfied to pay.

But there aren't many people who can afford that kind of money. Even for a sure thing.

So what do you think about 10 dollars? That's all—10 dollars. And you have something better than a money back guarantee. Because your check or money order won't even be cashed unless—and until—you decided to keep the book because it's worth a lot more.

Winning at the horse races, traveling first class and living in the best hotels may not be your idea of fun. As for me, I think it sure beats working for a living. See you at the track.

"I've driven cabs a million miles. 170,000 out of one car, 140,000 with another. You just can't beat Bardahl."

Peter Simone has been a cab driver in Toronto for 25 years. He figures he's put on a million miles in that time.

"My cars run better with the stuff in it...had a '63 Ford and put 170,000 miles on it. It was still good when I gave it to a cousin of mine. Drove a Rambler and put 140,000 miles on that.

How Bardahl works.

Engine oils prevent metal-to-metal contact. But sometimes they can fail. At start-up, for instance, when the oil has drained down into the crankcase. Or, where moving parts meet, high pressures and high temperatures can heat oil to its "flash point." When this happens, oil burns off allowing the metal surfaces to touch.

With your engine robbed of protection, temperatures soar where metal meets metal. Tiny, microscopic welds and tears occur rapidly. This is a major cause of engine wear.

This won't happen with Bardahl. Bardahl, in effect, "plates" itself to metal surfaces. Even if your oil burns off at "flash point," Bardahl won't. A tough, slippery layer of molecules stay on the job. Wear is dramatically reduced.

No other oil—or other additive—has the Bardahl polar organic formula. Or anything like it.

If you care about your car, add Bardahl when you change oil.

Note: Use Bardahl 1 if your engine is in good condition and not burning oil. Bardahl 2 if it's "chattery" or smoky.

Bardahl helps engines last longer

A link with Vancouver Island's maritime past ends at noon today when Northland Navigation's Skeena Prince pulls into Vancouver harbor after a final trip round the Island to serve the needs of its remote west coast ports.

The cherished passenger and mail service, cut off from road transportation, had been served by a government-subsidized service for nearly 80 years.

But Northland says it has not heard of any federal subsidies to help keep the west coast run operating — and they don't expect there will be any. Now the Skeena Prince will oper-

Divers Resun
For Body of

Canadian Forces divers will resume a search today for the body of a 14-year-old boy presumed drowned in a weed-choked area of Beaver Lake Monday.

Saanich police declined to identify the boy until the body is found and positive identification made. However, the boy's cousin who was with him at the lake identified him as Jim Quan, address not known.

Quan was picnicking with the cousin, Brent Quan, 16, of 1032 Balmoral, and two other youths on the west shore of the lake away from the designated swimming area and swimming there when the incident occurred shortly after 10 a.m.

The drowning prompted Saanich police Insp. John Post to issue a warning to people to swim only the specially marked swimming areas in Beaver and Elk lakes.

Brent Quan said he, Jim Quan, Colin Wong, 14, of 1630 North Park and Sid Tang, 17, of 2101 Chambers had bicycled out to the lake from their Victoria homes for a picnic Monday morning, getting to the area just before 10 a.m.

They hadn't planned on going swimming, he said, and had biked around the lake to an open area on the west side. However, after a few minutes Jim had decided to swim out to a small island nearby.

"He almost made it," said Wong. "He only had another 10 or 15 feet to go, but then he turned around and started to come back, I don't know why."

Just after he turned around Wong heard him call for help and saw him caught in the thick weeds in that part of the lake.

Wong jumped in to try to help his friend, but quickly found himself in trouble tangled in the weeds too, he said. He had to stop, slowly work himself free and start to return to shore.

Bunn on Riding Academy Issue:

'A Rather Irregul

Handling of a proposal by a contruction firm to build an Oak Bay recreation centre in return for the Victoria Riding Academy site was done in "a rather irregular way" an Oak Bay Recreation member charged Monday.

The member, Peter Bunn, has written a letter to Oak Bay council protesting the proposal by Farmer Construction Ltd.

In an interview Bunn explained that what irked him most about the offer was the way it was handled by Mayor Frances Elford.

"The mechanics of setting about the construction of a recreation centre should hardly be through a common proposal with one contractor talking to the mayor of the municipality," said Bunn, a 10-year member of the recreation commission.

"It's not for some speculator-cum-contractor to go to the mayor and say 'Hey, you let us have that site that's been hanging around — that's supposed to be worth a million bucks or so — to do with as we like, and then we'll build you what we think you should have'," Bunn said.

Skeena Prince nears trip's end

A link with Vancouver Island's maritime past ends at noon today when Northland Navigation's Skeena Prince pulls into Vancouver harbor after a final trip round the Island to serve the needs of its remote west coast ports.

The cherished passenger and mail service, cut off from road transportation, had been served by a government-subsidized service for nearly 80 years.

But Northland says it has not heard of any federal subsidies to help keep the west coast run operating — and they don't expect there will be any. Now the Skeena Prince will operate on a reduced run, mainly in Port Hardy and upper mainland areas.

Northland Navigation took over the service in 1958 and operated three ships on the run, which has been restricted to areas north of Barkley Sound in recent years.

The federal government announced withdrawal of its subsidy at the end of 1971, but protests from west coast residents resulted in a six-month extension of service.

Some of the ports will continue to be served by Barkley Sound Transportation Co., which operates a ship out of Port Alberni. Some freight from Vancouver will be transferred by B.C. ferries and truck to Port Alberni.

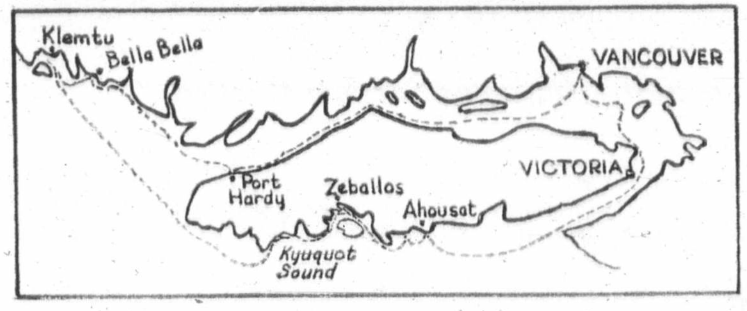
Northland will continue to use the Skeena Prince for freight and passenger service to points in the northern end of Georgia Strait including Alert Bay, Port Hardy, Beaver Cove, Port McNeill, Bull Harbor, Bella Bella, Namu and Klemtu — most on the mainland.

When the cutback in federal subsidies to private companies was announced last winter it brought sharp protests in the province.

At the time, a spokesman for the Canadian Transportation Commission said alternative shipping methods were available to the west coast villages. He cited barges, aircraft and trucks — a network of logging roads.

Alberni MLA Howard McDiarmid called for the six-month delay in cutting off the subsidy.

"Sure," he said, "there is a road from Gold River to Zeballos, but particularly in winter it is pretty primitive. And I'd like the guy who wrote that report to tell me what road runs to Ahousat."



Supply route now gone

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell also said then that wrong information led to the cutting-off of federal subsidies, referring specifically to the report that coast communities were connected by roads.

This, he said, was simply incorrect.

Of all the points served by the Skeena Prince — about a dozen in all — only two are on the Gold River-Zeballos road. That road is a linkup of two logging roads and is open to the public only from 5 p.m. each night to 6 a.m. next morning and all day on weekends.

The federal subsidy to Northland's west coast run was $130,000 annually. Northland states flatly that "without payment of an operating subsidy, it is economically impossible to continue to provide a service. . . ."

A letter from Transport Minister Don Jamieson to provincial Highways Minister Wesley Black in February said that "the Canadian Transport Commission is well aware of the problems related to the road connection between Gold River and Tahsis and is also aware that development not only of this but of the other roads cannot be expected to provide transport connection to all coastal communities and that some water links between, or extensions of, local roads will continue to be necessary."

Further, Jamieson made reference to an investigation of possible improvements in communications to the west coast communities.

He notes: "I am informed that no particular problems are anticipated and that the design of a system to accomplish the purpose will be completed in the near future.'

A CTC source took the minister's statement to indicate that small independent marine shippers will be able to handle the situation now that the Skeena Prince is gone.

Divers Resuming Search For Body of Young Boy

Canadian Forces divers will resume a search today for the body of a 14-year-old boy presumed drowned in a weed-choked area of Beaver Lake Monday.

Saanich police declined to identify the boy until the body is found and positive identification made. However, the boy's cousin who was with him at the lake identified him as Jim Quan, address not known.

Quan was picnicking with the cousin, Brent Quan, 16, of 1032 Balmoral, and two other youths on the west shore of the lake away from the designated swimming area and swimming there when the incident occurred shortly after 10 a.m.

The drowning prompted Saanich police Insp. John Post to issue a warning to people to swim only the specially marked swimming areas in Beaver and Elk lakes.

Brent Quan said he, Jim Quan, Colin Wong, 14, of 1030 North Park, and Sid Tang, 17, of 2101 Chambers had bicycled out to the lake from their Victoria homes for a picnic Monday morning, getting to the area just before 10 a.m.

They hadn't planned on going swimming, he said, and had biked around the lake to an open area on the west side. However, after a few minutes Jim had decided to swim out to a small island nearby.

"He almost made it," said Wong. "He only had another 10 or 15 feet to go, but then he turned around and started to come back, I don't know why."

Just after he turned around Wong heard him call for help and saw him caught in the thick weeds in that part of the lake.

Wong jumped in to try to help his friend, but quickly found himself in trouble tangled in the weeds too, he said. He had to stop, slowly work himself free and start to return to shore.

Jim seemed to manage to break free of the weeds, but didn't then have any strength left to return to shore, Wong said.

"He was swimming fast toward shore for a few strokes, and then he just seemed to drop. He managed to float back up to the surface twice, but when he went down the third time, he didn't come back up."

Brent Quan, meanwhile, had run down the trail toward the main swimming area to get help, he said. But by the time he got back with some other people, Jim had disappeared.

They helped Wong out of the water, and Saanich police and fire departments were notified.

Police brought with them the Saanich civil defence rescue boat and probed the waters near the little island without success.

Two naval divers also came out and made an attempt to find the body but were driven back by the weeds which stretched like a green underwater blanket from the shore to the island.

The divers couldn't get down more than about five feet for weeds, although the water is about 20 feet deep, a policeman said.

When the full diving team tries today, the men will carry more equipment to get through the weeds and conduct a systematic search of the area.

Monday's search stopped about 1 p.m.

Post said conditions are "treacherous" for people who attempt to swim in parts of Beaver and Elk lakes which are not specially designated. Not only are there no lifeguards at other points but there is danger of getting caught up in weeds in nearly all the rest of the two lakes.

The marked areas were cleared by the municipality to make sure it was safe to swim in them, Post said, "and it only makes sense to swim there and not anywhere else."

Monday's incident was the fourth drowning in Beaver Lake since 1967. An eight-year-old boy drowned there June 13, 1967; a 22-year-old man died May 14, 1969, and just two months later on July 17, 1969, a 16-year-old boy drowned.

Canadian Forces Rescue Nine Over Weekend

Coast Guard cutters and Canadian Forces rescue squadron 442 from CFB Comox were credited with saving the lives of nine people during the long Dominion Day weekend which rescue officials described as "hectic."

The Pacific Rescue Centre in Victoria said Monday that the nine persons would likely have died if quick rescues had not been accomplished.

Five of the persons were saved Friday night by the coast guard cutter Racer when their pleasure craft was sinking near Active Pass.

Three others were rescued in two other separate marine incidents and a mountaineer was winched from a cliff on the face of Mount Slesse near Chilliwack after he suffered leg injuries in a fall.

The five people were not identified, but they were reported to be aboard the Pegasus, a pleasure craft, when it began to sink just north of Active Pass.

The Racer was sent to the scene, and took the five, who were still aboard the vessel, off. The cutter also managed to beach the vessel before it sank completely.

Two other persons, also unidentified, were taken from their sinking pleasure boat in the Alert Bay area at the north end of Vancouver Island, while one man was plucked from the waters of English Bay near Vancouver by the crew of the cutter Moorhen after his small boat capsized.

The mountaineer was rescued by a helicopter from CFB Comox from the 7,600-foot level of the mountain which he had been climbing.

He had apparently fallen, crushing his legs, Monday morning. A mountain rescue team from North Vancouver helped in the rescue which had the Labrador helicopter landing on a ledge so narrow it had only two feet of clearance when it took off to take the injured man to Chilliwack.

The four major incidents were the highlights of the long weekend in which the rescue centre said it handled "literally dozens" of marine calls, mostly dealing with broken-down boats and those which had run out of gas.

A search was launched Saturday for four young people from the small Vancouver Island community of Hopetown Village near Alert Bay after they failed to return from a canoeing expedition.

A Buffalo aircraft from the rescue squadron located them on a nearby island camp Sunday afternoon, and they were reported in no difficulty.

A search was also begun in the Active Pass - Tsawwassen area Sunday for a sailboat which had not made an appointed rendezvous with two other boats. It also turned up safely a short time later.

Bunn on Riding Academy Issue:

'A Rather Irregular Way'

Handling of a proposal by a contruction firm to build an Oak Bay recreation centre in return for the Victoria Riding Academy site was done in "a rather irregular way" an Oak Bay Recreation member charged Monday.

The member, Peter Bunn, has written a letter to Oak Bay council protesting the proposal by Farmer Construction Ltd.

In an interview Bunn explained that what irked him most about the offer was the way it was handled by Mayor Frances Elford.

"The mechanics of setting about the construction of a recreation centre should hardly be through a common proposal with one contractor talking to the mayor of the municipality," said Bunn, a 10-year member of the recreation commission.

"It's not for some speculator-cum-contractor to go to the mayor and say 'Hey, you let us have that site that's been hanging around — that's supposed to be worth a million bucks or so — to do with as we like, and then we'll build you what we think you should have'," Bunn said.

"It's a rather irregular way for the mayor to act on a municipal problem and a most undesirable way to carry out the actions of council," added Bunn, who is also a trustee on Greater Victoria school board.

Bunn suggested a better way would be for council to define the recreational needs of the community with the help of recreation groups and its own administration and on the basis of this definition decide what facilities were required and how much they would cost. Then would be the time to have a referendum on the issue, he said.

Ships Break Free of Warm Zone

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

They're not leaving to escape the heat — they'd be going to the Arctic anyway, the icebreaker Camsell and the scientific ship Parizeau. They leave Victoria at 1 a.m. today.

They'll rendezvous at Icy Cape, Alaska, and the Camsell will see the Parizeau safely around Point Barrow to the Beaufort Sea.

Camsell will go on about her business of checking navigational aids, providing icebreaking assistance for other ships and, if necessary, taking part in search and rescue.

She'll travel as far east as Spence Bay in the Arctic, which is just about due north of Thunder Bay, Ont.

Parizeau has a crew of 36 under the command of Capt. A. G. Chamberlain. Camsell carries a crew of 50 under Capt. Jack Lennis, and she'll be carrying out chores she began doing in 1960.

She'll have aboard as trainee officer (engineering) Christopher Clack, son of former city planner Rod Clack, who is celebrating his 23rd birthday today.

Christopher, who graduated from the Canadian Coast Guard College, Sydney, N.S., a month ago, won the Cadet Council Service Award this year and last and was also winner of the Centennial gold medal for excellence as outstanding cadet of this year's graduating class.

He chose to work on the West Coast and will probably be here for several years.

Aboard Parizeau is a group of 13 scientists including hydrographers, electronics engineers, geophysicists and geologists headed by R. W. Sandilands of Victoria, senior hydrographer of the Marine Sciences Directorate, Pacific Region.

The group will continue charting and geophysical and geological surveys of the Beaufort Sea begun in 1970, an area of prime importance to oil companies in the quest for Arctic oil.

The hydrographers will return to Victoria early in September but three scientists will continue the geological survey until mid-September when the ship will again rendezvous with the Camsell, this time in the Beaufort Sea, to be escorted through the ice.

Camsell is due back in Victoria the last week in September but Parizeau will head for Japan for the Second International Ocean Development Exhibition in Tokyo, Oct. 4 to 9.

Senior hydrographer W. S. Huggett of Victoria will fly to Tokyo to set up the ship display and open house to be held aboard Parizeau during the exhibition.

Dr. C. S. Wong of Ottawa, head of the ocean chemistry division, will be in charge of the scientific experiments to be conducted aboard Parizeau on her way back from Tokyo.

She is expected back in Victoria late October.

Oak Bay Woman Killed

A 47-year-old Oak Bay woman was killed and two children injured Monday afternoon in a two-car collision at the intersection of Kenmore and Torquay in the Gordon Head area of Saanich.

Richard Tanner, 10, was reported in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital Monday night with a broken shoulder and two broken legs. His sister, Catherine, 6, was also in satisfactory condition with lacerations.

The driver of the other car, Gregory Ronald Grunewald, of 930 McKenzie, Saanich, was not injured.

Police said that Mrs. Tanner was driving south on Torquay with her two children as passengers in the small car. Grunewald was driving a larger car west on Kenmore.

Mrs. Tanner was pronounced dead on arrival at Jubilee.

Award Meant Everything To 48-Year-Old Student

The older, mature student going to university can have a tough time findng access to financial help through age limitations.

But not at University of Victoria, says Mrs. Elizabeth Bristowe of 2546 Killarney, Saanich, who has been granted a $1,500 fellowship award by the western Canada region of Soroptimist clubs.

Mrs. Bristowe, 48, is a widow and a grandmother.

The award, she says, was more than a boost to her morale. "I couldn't have carried on without it." She has subsequently received a Canada Council grant.

The Soroptimist Club of Greater Victoria was especially delighted with the award, according to Mrs. Margret Wells, president. It is the first time it has been won by a Victoria woman.

Mrs. Bristowe competed against entries from the four western provinces, including four others from Victoria.

On the death of her husband in 1966, Mrs. Bristowe entered UVic and earned her bachelor's degree in psychology and her master's degree in counselling psychology. She is now working toward her doctorate in counselling psychology, and intends to enter the file of counselling in Victoria, her home for 20 years. She is from England and has five children, one of them married with two children.

"The older, mature student may have a lot to contribute to universities and to the professions," she said Monday. "But it can be hard to get financial support — the majority of funding sources have sex and age limitations."

UVic, she added, "has been wonderful; I've had nothing but support and none of these age limitations." The Soroptimist award, too, was open.

The Soroptimist club of Greater Victoria paid tribute to Mrs. Bristowe at its installation dinner held recently in Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

The group, comprised of about 28 business and professional women, had as guest speaker writer Mrs. Agnes Newton Keith, and guests included Peggy Couse, governor of northwestern region clubs and 10 members from the Soroptimist club of Bremerton, Wash.

Also attending to receive a citizenship award given annually by the club to a Grade 12 student, was Jill Osman.

Club officers for 1972-73 besides Mrs. Wells, a pharmacist, are Mrs. Doreen Russell, vice-president; Mrs. Emily Lee, secretary; Miss Muriel Vincent, treasurer, and Mrs. Laura Blackmore and Miss Rosalie Frampton, directors.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I've been writing to a young man who is stationed in Germany. I have never met him but he is a friend of my cousin who is also stationed there. According to my cousin, this fellow is tops. We have been corresponding for five months and he sounds like my kind of man. We have exchanged snapshots, poetry and small gifts.

My aunt came to visit last week and my mom mentioned my "Mail-order romance" Auntie asked if she could see a sample of my friend's handwriting because, according to her, handwriting can tell more about a person than months of face-to-face conversation. "A person can fool you by being a good actor, but his handwriting tells the real story," she announced with a tone of finality that has always made me dislike her.

I reluctantly showed Auntie three paragraphs of a recent letter. She bellowed, "Drop him. The way he dots his 'i's' shows he is impatient. The style of his 'm' indicates he is caustic and sharp-tongued. He does not close his 'o's' at the top, which means he is talkative, shallow, and probably a bore." I was crestfallen and annoyed. Is there anything to what she says? I am very upset. — Need to Know in Jacksonville

Dear Jack: Handwriting analysis is more of a parlor game (and a business) than a science. It is not possible to analyze a person's personality or character by examining his handwriting. I have made this statement before and the results have been incredible. Thousands of letters from indignant handwriting "experts" poured in — nearly every one typewritten!

Dear Ann Landers: I see by your new picture that there is something shiny on your left shoulder that looks like a hearing aid receiver. You've been frank enough to tell your readers that you can't read without glasses, but your teeth are your own. Now, how about your hearing? Is that an aid or not? — Nunuvmybizznizz

Dear Nun: My hearing is still pretty good. So far I can hear just about everything I want to.

That "shiny thing" is a gold pin, the centre of which is the Vice-Presidential seal — a gift from Senator Hubert Humphrey on my 50th birthday.

Doctor Writes

Pill-Popping Perilous

OTTAWA (CP) — Doctors and advertisers need to show more responsibility in curbing the worrisome North American phenomenon of a "pill-popping population" says Dr. J. D. Wallace, secretary general of the Canadian Medical Association.

In an article in the association's Journal, Dr. Wallace says advertising promotes the idea that people can take a "pill, potion or beverage," then "sail through life on a euphoric pink cloud without a care in the world."

"Many of those who have attempted to achieve that perpetual happy state on a do-it-yourself basis have suffered disastrous consequences."

Dr. Wallace said that a great majority of the products are relatively safe but there are two factors that introduce complications.

One was a tendency for individuals to experiment with a variety of medications at the same time. For example a person might take a pep-up pill, then later another to go to sleep, another to "keep regular", and another for something else.

"Heaven only knows what confused physiological messages are transmitted throughout the body by some of these self-administered medicinal conglomerates."

But another equally dangerous complication is that some doctors help people to "fall into the pill-popping trap," he said. This may happen because people now come expecting to get a prescription or because the doctor now has such a wide variety of useful drugs available.

"We now have at our disposal, on prescription only, a wide variety of emotional psychological and physiological crutches that will at least temporarily relieve the symptoms that trouble a patient and perhaps improve his capacity to function as an effective member of society."

To control the over-the-counter preparations Dr. Wallace recommends a code of ethical advertising and control over the quality and quantity of promotional exposure.

And he urges doctors not to "drift" into a situation where the use of drugs is harmful. Professional and governmental controls have had to be placed on the use of amphetamines, which were misused for easy treatment of obesity.

Dr. Wallace said it is better to find and eradicate the cause rather than to provide a "temporary and potentially dangerous crutch."

Erma Bombeck

It seems you cannot go to a party anymore without finding yourself in the middle of a group of do-good missionaries who are trying to reform you.

These are the sanctimonious people who have foresaken some vice and now want to rack up another convert. I call them the "I quit" disciples.

For example, when you are stuffing your face with a rolled piece of salami filled with cream cheese, an "I quit" person will appear at your elbow and warn, "That little nibble will cost you 1,325 calories. I quit eating when I stumbled upon this marvellous little diet of bread crumbs and 9 gallons of water a day. Of course, you have to wear a nose plug and a life vest but . . ."

Or the "I quitter" who announces loudly, "Know what's in this glass? Plain soda water. That's right. Ever see what your drink does to a liver in a lab? Incredible. Look at my hand. Steady as a rock."

The other night, I kept count and I was accosted by a caravan of "I quitters" who had abandoned everything from a job (Which discriminated), having babies (to control the population), driving a car (which contributed to pollution), watching television (which insulted the average intelligence), using insecticides on roses (which endangered other life), travelling abroad (which contributed to foreign economy), to a woman who quit lying about her age (a woman is only as old as she feels).

I was still trying to find some loophole in the "age" theory when a man came up to me and said, "I quit smoking a year ago. Did I tell you that?"

"I think that's nice," I said easing away.

"I think you should know that an expectant mother who smokes is subjecting her unborn child to the adverse effects of tobacco," he continued.

"I think I read that somewhere,' I said unsteadily.

"A lot of people don't realize that four-fifths of the country do not smoke. Ever notice when you fly how much space is given over to the non-smoking section? Well, I am here to tell you that I have more energy, I feel better, and for the first time in a long time I can actually taste food."

"Look," I said quietly, "I don't smoke either."

His face fell. "Anything you've quit lately you want to tell me about?"

"Only parties," I said, heading for the door.

By NANCY BROWN

If women have a place on any of Greater Victoria's police forces, it's a lowly place without chance of promotion, Status of Women Action Group representatives have found after a survey.

A complaint will be made to the Human Rights Commission about discrimination against women in pay scales on the Victoria force, said group president Kathleen Ruff. But that is only part of the story.

"In Victoria the police mind is firmly back in the 19th century when it comes to hiring women," she said. "In Saanich there is a little chink in the door."

Group representatives interviewed Chief Bob Petersen in Saanich and Deputy Chief Ray Maitland in Victoria, while they got a "don't call us, we'll call you," response to an interview request in Oak Bay.

"Oak Bay doesn't have a policewoman, doesn't intend to have a policewoman and could see no point in talking to us."

Chief Earl Sarsiat of Esquimalt was out of town when the interview request went in and he will be contacted again, said Mrs. Ruff.

In Saanich, they found there are 81 police officers and one woman — hired three months ago — and a possibility that other women will be hired.

In Victoria there are 125 police officers, and there was one woman in the spring when Janet Holmes quit because of lack of opportunity.

There is a vacancy for one policewoman in Victoria, but for one only.

"This is apparently their policy," said Mrs. Ruff.

"The only reason they have one woman is because there are some functions, such as searching women, or accompanying female suspects to the toilet, that a male constable simply can't do," she said.

Maitland told the group that he wouldn't consider exposing a woman to the unpleasant, embarrassing and physically hazardous jobs faced by policemen. Such jobs would be degrading to women.

There would be need, he felt, to protect women against the possibility that someone might pull a gun.

Specialty R Reflect Cha

Things happen very fast around Victoria these days. You can hardly turn around but you see another apartment going up on the site of an old landmark. And new restaurants have been keeping pace — they have been coming at us fast.

The newest, Felice's Ristorante, opened its door to the public on Saturday evening.

This new eating house which has Italian dishes as specialities, is in Nootka Court at 634 Humbolt. It is in the premises formerly occupied by the liquor store. As the group of stores planned on the first floor are not quite completed there is another entrance from Courtney Street.

Felice Avoledo is the owner of the new restaurant and as he hails from Italy, the food specialities are the real thing.

Felice, whose home was in Bolzano in northern Italy, studied hotel management at a school in Switzerland for three years.

Since then he has worked at a variety of jobs in Europe and even as a cruise ship cabin steward. He came to Canada a little over six and one-half years ago and opened a restaurant of Italian food specialties shortly after arrival.

The background decor of the new restaurant is old brick and solid oak. In the front part, Humboldt Street, windows look out on three sides and towards the back dark-backed mirrors give the impression of light.

There is indirect lighting (and air conditioning) in the ceiling and amber and smoky globe lights are placed about the room. The milano chairs have Venetian cane high backs set in oak frames and the side booth seats are covered in a black leather-like material.

'Victoria Police Mind Firmly in 19th Century On Hiring of Women'

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

If women have a place on any of Greater Victoria's police forces, it's a lowly place without chance of promotion, Status of Women Action Group representatives have found after a survey.

A complaint will be made to the Human Rights Commission about discrimination against women in pay scales on the Victoria force, said group president Kathleen Ruff. But that is only part of the story.

"In Victoria the police mind is firmly back in the 19th century when it comes to hiring women," she said. "In Saanich there is a little chink in the door."

Group representatives interviewed Chief Bob Petersen in Saanich and Deputy Chief Ray Maitland in Victoria, while they got a "don't call us, we'll call you," response to an interview request in Oak Bay.

"Oak Bay doesn't have a policewoman, doesn't intend to have a policewoman and could see no point in talking to us."

Chief Earl Sarsiat of Esquimalt was out of town when the interview request went in and he will be contacted again, said Mrs. Ruff.

In Saanich, they found there are 81 police officers and one woman — hired three months ago — and a possibility that other women will be hired.

In Victoria there are 125 police officers, and there was one woman in the spring when Janet Holmes quit because of lack of opportunity.

There is a vacancy for one policewoman in Victoria, but for one only.

"This is apparently their policy," said Mrs. Ruff.

"The only reason they have one woman is because there are some functions, such as searching women, or accompanying female suspects to the toilet, that a male constable simply can't do," she said.

Maitland told the group that he wouldn't consider exposing a woman to the unpleasant, embarrassing and physically hazardous jobs faced by policemen. Such jobs would be degrading to women.

There would be need, he felt, to protect women against the possibility that someone might pull a gun.

Kathleen Ruff
hope in Saanich

Maitland told the women interviewing him that it would be all right to hire women if you could be sure of the nature of a job before they were dispatched to answer a call so that they wouldn't face dangers onthe job.

In Victoria policewomen start at $603 monthly — the same salary paid to a probationary police constable. Her salary could increase to $788 monthly as a grade one policewoman, but not to the $861 paid a grade one constable.

"We feel that this discrimination is contrary to the provisions of the Human Rights Act," said Mrs. Ruff. "The police force in particular should set a good example in honoring the provisions of this act."

She acknowledged that the difference in job titles could provide a loophole for differences in pay, but insisted that women are prevented from the opportunity to perform the same duties as men.

"Deputy Maitland felt that this was a good salary for a little girl," she said.

"They should hire a clerk if they want someone to fulfil clerk's duties, instead of limiting a woman's opportunities and wasting her abilities," she said.

"This is the usual serious misunderstanding," said Mrs. Ruff.

"That policewoman had been fully trained in all sections of police work in England but there was no chance here that she could fulfill her role. After eight years on the force she wasn't even allowed to write her examinations for sergeant."

Saanich, she said, which has only recently hired its first policewoman presents a more hopeful scene.

Ray Maitland
thinks of risks

The woman hired had been a secretary who had performed functions of a police matron in certain situations where a male constable could not cope with female prisoners.

"This is typical of the way barriers are broken into formerly all-male domains," said Mrs. Ruff. "They find that there are some situations in which they have to hire a woman and so the sex barrier is kind of sidled around more than broken."

There are still stringent limits on the policewoman, especially in regard to promotion — there is no way she can rise above the rank of second class constable no matter how efficient she proves.

However, Chief Petersen had said there is a likelihood that more women will be hired and in that case an outstanding woman might be promoted to take charge of a woman's squad.

"There is no likelihood at the moment of an integrated force there, but there is a chink in the door and possibilities of better things to come," she said.

However there is little limitation on the jobs the policewoman performs, and the Saanich experience has been that she has been particularly successful in such cases as fraud investigations where violence could be expected against a policeman, but the reaction to a woman has been quite different.

"This bears out other studies of women police officers in various places where they have found that a man will react aggressively in a violent situation, triggering more violence, while a woman's response in generally quite different and calms a fiery situation down," she said.

Mrs. Ruff compared the Victoria unfavorable attitude with attitudes in other countries and cities where there are either entirely integrated forces or women's forces performing all duties.

"At the moment a girl arrested for drugs is free from fear of search until she has had a chance to dispose of any drugs in her possession," said Mrs. Ruff. "This almost encourages the use of girls to carry dugs, while the presence of women officers along with the men would put a stop to this.

"Police work covers the whole human spectrum, and all human beings should be represented on the force."

Specialty Restaurants Reflect Changing Pace

Dorothy Wrotnowski

Things happen very fast around Victoria these days. You can hardly turn around but you see another apartment going up on the site of an old landmark. And new restaurants have been keeping pace — they have been coming at us fast.

The newest, Felice's Ristorante, opened its door to the public on Saturday evening.

This new eating house which has Italian dishes as specialities, is in Nootka Court at 634 Humbolt. It is in the premises formerly occupied by the liquor store. As the group of stores planned on the first floor are not quite completed there is another entrance from Courtney Street.

Felice Avoledo is the owner of the new restaurant and as he hails from Italy, the food specialities are the real thing.

Felice, whose home was in Bolzano in northern Italy, studied hotel management at a school in Switzerland for three years.

Since then he has worked at a variety of jobs in Europe and even as a cruise ship cabin steward. He came to Canada a little over six and one-half years ago and opened a restaurant of Italian food specialties shortly after arrival.

The background decor of the new restaurant is old brick and solid oak. In the front part, Humboldt Street, windows look out on three sides and towards the back dark-backed mirrors give the impression of light.

There is indirect lighting (and air conditioning) in the ceiling and amber and smoky globe lights are placed about the room. The milano chairs have Venetian cane high backs set in oak frames and the side booth seats are covered in a black leather-like material.

A slightly raised dias is for the orchestra and it is fronted by a half moon dancing floor.

But it is the bar that is Felice's pride — "I have the most beautiful bar in Victoria," he says. Of solid oak the bar has dark mirrors inset under the counter.

In the kitchen everything is gleaming new stainless steel including a ravoli-making machine made in Italy.

"We will make our own ravioli, lasagne noodles and pizzas," Felice tells you.

He stresses the importance of the homemade ravioli, noodles and pizza. Everyone makes these dishes just a little different — the sauce, the seasonings.

Prior to the opening Felice and his wife gave a champagne party for more than 200 people on Friday evening. The Pharoahs provided the music and Ben Aylesworth was the soloist.

Glanced over a menu to notice that as well as Italian food there is a good steak list including Chateaubriand. And prime ribs of Alberta beef with Yorkshire pudding and horseradish.

Dolby Turner and I were at a table next to Russell and Norma Fitzsimmons and Bill Leggett. Later one of the waiters brought a pretty little dark-haired girl to sit at their table.

Norma, always friendly, tried to bring the girl into the conversation. But as it turned out she was having a little difficulty with English. However, Norma managed to learn that she had only arrived from Paris three weeks ago. She came here to marry Thierry Gostin, a waiter in the new restaurant, who also is from Paris and has only been here six weeks.

Norma became quite excited about the romance and the upcoming wedding in two weeks time and offered to make up the bridal bouquet. "What would you like?" — then making pictures with her hands Norma demonstrated the different types of bridal bouquets.

So when Parisienne Helene Ruvat walks to the altar she will be carrying a round, red rose bouquet, a gift from a new Canadian friend.

"I think I read that somewhere,' I said unsteadily.

"A lot of people don't realize that four-fifths of the country do not smoke. Ever notice when you fly how much space is given over to the non-smoking section? Well, I am here to tell you that I have more energy, I feel better, and for the first time in a long time I can actually taste food."

"Look," I said quietly, "I don't smoke either."

His face fell. "Anything you've quit lately you want to tell me about?"

"Only parties," I said, heading for the door.

Chinese Free British Man

HONG KONG (UPI) — David Edmunds, an 87-year-old British businessman held by Chinese authorities during the cultural revolution of 1967, was released and crossed the Sino-British border into Hong Kong Monday, a government spokesman said.

Edmunds' release resulted from negotiations between Anthony Royle, British under-secretary of state for foreign and commonwealth affairs, and Chinese officials during Royle's week-long visit from May 30 to June 6 to China, the spokesman said.

Almost Word Perfect

Magician Alla Scoops The Colonist!

Alla be praised! Al LaCoste, the Sidney magician who goes by the name of Alla, was almost perfect Saturday at the Sidney Days celebration when he unveiled his predictions of what would be in the headlines of the Colonist that morning.

Capping his act at the afternoon entertainment in Tulista Park, LaCoste had bank manager John Tate and RCMP Constable Tom Brown — both members of the sponsoring Sidney Kinsmen Club — open the aquarium tank, canvas bag and sealed box that contained the predictions.

They had been written June 16, initialled by both Tate and Brown and locked away until Saturday.

The predictions said: "Time Short for Quebec Rebels" and "Unemployed Painter Admits Hijack Plot." The Colonist's front page, headlines for which were written late June 30, said: "Time short for Rebels in Quebec" and "Unemployed Painter admits Hijack Plot."

Other events of Sidney Day were the morning parade in which LaCoste drove a car blindfolded and without incident (except for a close brush with another constable) and the annual walkathon won for the second consecutive year by Sidney area resident Robby Whelan.

Late Monday, Colonist officials declined comment on reports that LaCoste was considered a candidate for a position as a headlinewriter — with or without his blindfold.

Order of Canada Medal Holders Named Officers

OTTAWA (CP) — Holders of the medal of service of the Order of Canada now are officers of the order.

The officer category, a new one, is provided for in a new constitution for the order which takes effect Saturday.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced May 31 that levels in the five-year-old order would be increased to three from two.

Now, instead of companions of the order and holders of the medal of service, there are companions, officers and members.

Trudeau's statement said the officer category would absorb the 289 holders of the service medal.

Companions and officers generally are persons who have achieved national prominence.

The member category is designed to recognize prominence at the community level or in professional or other groups.

The formal announcement that service medal holders are officers was made by Governor General Roland Michener, chancellor and principal companion of the order, in the July 1 edition of the Canada Gazette.

Officers are entitled to have the letters O.C. (officer Canada) placed after their names, in lieu of S.M. (service medal), "on all occasions when the use of such letters is customary."

Several Victorians and persons with Vancouver Island connections have been honored since the order was established five years ago.

In 1967 Maj.-Gen. George Pearkes, then lieutenant-governor, and the late Dr. Brock Chisholm, one-time federal deputy minister of health and director of the World Health Organization, were created Companions of the Order of Canada. At the same time Bruce Hutchison, editorial director of the Vancouver Sun and former editor of the Victoria Daily Times, was awarded the medal of service of the order.

In 1968, the late Gen. Charles Foulkes, commander of Canadian troops in Italy and Holland during the Second World War, was named a Companion of the order.

In 1969 Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chancellor of Notre Dame University and former co-chairman of the B.C. Hydro and former United Nations administrator, was named a Companion of the order.

Last December, Laurie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, and James Sewid, hereditary chief of Kwakwasutenuk and former chief councillor of the Alert Bay band, were awarded service medals of the order.

KING FISHERMAN

Plenty Fish in Sea for Gals?

Sunday will be women's Day on Saanich Inlet.

The occasion will be the annual Victoria-Saanich Inlet Angler's Association Sweetheart Derby in which all women anglers are invited to test their skills.

The women don't have to be members of VSIAA. Any woman can enter the derby by buying a $1 entry ticket and these are available from Saanich Inlet boathouses and sporting goods stores.

The only stipulation to the fun derby is each woman must catch the fish herself but she can fish with her husband or any man they wish.

For any woman wanting some special advice about how to catch big salmon the Sweetheart Derby committee members are ready to tell a few secrets. They include Ema Rosin, Marie Sidaway, Wyn Silburn, Bessie Craig and Marie Wright, and they have all taken button-winning fish from Saanich Inlet.

They won't tell their husbands how they get the big salmon but for Sunday they will tell the gals.

Derby hours will be daybreak to 2 p.m. with prize presentations at Anglers-Anchorage Marina shortly after 2 p.m.

Old Folks' Homes Project Awaits Sod Ceremony

The Oak Bay Kiwanis Club's $750,000 low-rental housing project for senior citizens will begin at 2 p.m. Wednesday when Premier Bennett turns the first sod of the excavation for the building on Milton Street. Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford will also attend.

The apartment project, to be called Golden Age Manor, will be built on the site of the old Municipal Yard between Foul Bay Road and Elgin Street.

It will have 72 units, 66 bachelor suites to rent at $67 a month and six one-bedroom suites to rent at $77.

The project was made possible by an initial gift of $50,000 by Al Bennett, retired Calgary contractor, who is a member of the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club.

The B.C. government is providing a grant of $247,000 and the remainder will be raised through a Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. mortgage and by the efforts of the Oak Bay club.

Fred Usher, president of the club, said Monday that 32 applications already have been received for accommodation.

Chairman of the project is John Bond, Victoria chartered accountant. Treasurer is A. J. Bowering, retired deputy minister of commercial transport in the provincial government.

The project was conceived in 1970 during the term of office of Norman Pimlott was president x the club. Architects are Siddall, Dennis, Warner. Farmer Construction Ltd. is builder.

Tend Iris Now

"The common Iris or Floure-de-luce hath long and flaggy leaves like the blade of a sword, among which spring up smooth and plaine stalks, two foot long, bearing floures toward the top. The rootes be thicke, long and knobby, with many hairy threds hanging thereat.

"The rootes of the Iris, being crushed and laid plaisterwise upon the face of man or woman, doth in two daies at the most take away the blacknesse or blewensse of any stroke . . . or bruse."

—John Gerard's Herbal . . . 1597.

One job to be done at this season of the year is the taking up, dividing and replanting of the bearded iris plants. The iris is so accomodating and seems to get along with an absolute minimum of attention, we rather tend to neglect it. A little intelligent care when the clumps become congested and overcrowded, however, will be repaid a hundredfold in improved health, length of stem, size of bloom and purity of coloring in the flowers next year.

It is often recommended that the job of planting or transplanting iris be undertaken in late summer or early fall, and in truth, it does seem to be a bit strange to be digging up and dividing any plants at the height of the growing season.

For my money, though, the best time to perform this operation on iris clumps is immediately after the flowers fade. There are several advantages in getting the job done early; not the least of these is that lifting, dividing and replanting in July gives the plants plenty of time to make some root growth and get themselves securely anchored in the soil before winter, with its consequent heaving from frost.

Take up the roots carefully and gently, easing them out of the ground with a digging fork much as you would potatoes. Clean them up a bit so you can see what you're doing, then cut up the fleshy roots, called rhizomes, into smaller pieces, allowing two or three fans of leaves to each piece.

In selecting the new planting site, choose a position in full sun. While the bearded iris will perform after a fashion in light shade, this plant is really a confirmed sun worshipper and never gives its best without a good baking in the sun.

The new site should be dug or rototilled deeply, incorporating about 1½ cupfuls of 11-48-0 ammonium phosphate fertilizer per square yard and the lumps broken down with the rake. Set the rhizomes in horizontally, with the fine bottom roots pointing outward and downward but with the top of the rhizome only just barely covered with soil.

This is one place where the novice often goes wrong — he plants too deeply. The bearded iris insists upon shallow planting, and if covered too deeply, it will produce all leaves and no flowers.

Work the soil with your fingers down and under the rhizomes so the fine bottom roots are in intimate contact with it, then complete the job by giving each plant a full quart of water, ideally with a little Alginure or vitamin B-1 in it to prevent transplanting shock.

After replanting, the sword-like foliage should be trimmed back to about eight inches long. This reduces the strain on the roots while the plant is settling down in its new home. It is a good idea, too, to rig up a bit of shade for the first week. A few old shingles stuck in the ground on the slant, for instance, will keep off the hot sun while the plants are recovering from the effects of the transplanting.

Hellsburg Papers

The papers were found 20 miles outside of London in the wine cellar of the country home of a legendary historical figure named Sir Daniel Hellsburg.

Sir Daniel worked for the Lord Rand Corp. During the reign of George III but became disenchanted with the way the British were conducting the war with the Colonies and resigned.

He apparently took a copy of the Whitehall Papers with him and turned over the contents to The Times of London.

Report to Lord North, prime minister, from Gen. Thomas Gage, 1774.

I am happy to inform you that all goes well here in Boston and despite discontent amongst the natives over taxes, I cannot foresee any difficulty in putting down a revolt.

Kindly send me some advisers to train the Loyalists to defend themselves against the Rebels, who are preaching insurrection in the cities and villages.

P.S. Have blockaded the port of Boston which will make the Rebels sue for peace.

Report to George III from Lord North, July 30, 1775.

Gate sends good news from the Colonies. His troops have won critical battle of Bunker Hill and the Rebels are in disarray.

Gage believes things are going so well that you can safely announce that our boys will be home by Christmas.

Memorandum to George III from Lord Portsmouth, 1776.

General Howe reports that Rebel Gen. George Washington surprised our loyal mercenary Hessian troops at Trenton and took 1,000 prisoners.

Suggest you go before parliament and ask for a Bay of Delaware Resolution giving you authority to send in as many troops as possible to put down uprising.

With added troop strength and Washington facing a terrible winter at Valley Forge next year, I can see the light at the end of the tunnel.

From Minister of Defence to Lord North, 1777.

Our mathematicians have just concluded on the basis of their calculations, as well as captured enemy documents, that the rebels cannot hold on much longer.

They took heavy losses at Saratoga and army morale is at a low ebb. Desertions are running high, and there is prostitution in their cities. By sending more troops we should be out of America by 1778.

From General Cornwallis to Lord North, 1780.

My search-and-destroy methods have been completely successful, and I can report that the entire 13 colonies have been pacified.

In 12 months we can turn all the fighting over to the Loyalists and start withdrawing our forces.

Although the French have been supplying the Rebels with equipment, the revolutionaries are still a ragtag army without discipline or initiative. They are no match for our highly trained Redcoats and our sophisticated British equipment.

For the first time I have confidence we can do the job.

From Lord North to George III, December 12, 1781.

Apparently Washington surprised him and Cornwallis had no choice but to surrender his entire army on Oct. 19, 1781. This may put a crimp in our pacification plans.

Suggest we send a delegation to Paris to dicuss peace. It must of course be an honorable peace.

If the Rebels refuse to make a peace treaty, then we have no choice but to bombard their cities and blockade their harbors until they agree to our terms. You must not go down in history as the first English king ever to have lost a war.

Which Ex-Wife?

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Eddie Fisher must be doing okay. Saw him the other day in the Beverly Hills hotel for the first time in five years and remarked that I had been in touch with his ex-wife. "Which one?" said Eddie. Now when you number Elizabeth Taylor among your three ex-wives and you ask "Which one?" then the world is okay. And so it is with Eddie. He finally found some good financial advice from a new friend — millionaire stockbroker Tom Richardson. Richardson, who owns Gourmet Wines among other enterprises, got Eddie to invest at $2 a share. It's now $15. What's more, Richardson has made an Irishman out of Eddie. The two had just returned from Country Clare where Eddie fell in love with the country and the people. It was his first visit. "It's my country," said Eddie. "I was over at Durty Nellie's singing in the bar every night."

Durty Nellie's is a 500-year-old pub next to Bunratty Castle which was known as Ryan's for years. Richard Harris, Malachy McCourt and others of like persuasion hung the name Durty Nellie's on the pub — and the owners decided to make it official.

Eddie has a new romance — young and beautiful Barbara Heyman. He's in love but he is a little wary of marriage. His career is in good shape. He's been playing rooms such as the Latin Casino in his native Philadelphia and doing well. He says his voice is better than ever. Not immodestly, just matter-of-factly. In his prime Fisher sold more records for RCA than all their other artists combined.

Eddie and I were on the outs for all those years but it was reconciliation time the other day. The feud started when I once asked Eddie when he was going to marry Connie Stevens, his most recent ex-wife. This was about two years after Elizabeth Taylor had met Richard Burton on the Cleopatra episode. Eddie said he couldn't marry Connie because he was still legally married to Elizabeth Taylor.

I wrote: "Final word from Eddie Fisher. 'I am still married to Elizabeth Taylor'." Technically, he was right but I added this comment: "Someone should tell him that Richard Burton is having a hell of a lot of fun with his wife." In retrospect, it was a cruel thing to say.

Hard Work Most Fun

No matter what it is, the better you can do something, the more you enjoy it.

No duffer gets the pleasure out of a bridge hand that the expert can find in it; no hacker on the tennis court enjoys the game nearly as fully as the trained player; no two-fingered pianist can find in a piece of music the satisfaction of a virtuoso.

Agreed? But the other side of the coin is this: nobody gets to attain the deep pleasure of proficiency without the willingness to go through a great deal of boredom. This is a truth we are beginning to lose sight of.

The fine bridge (or chess, or what have you) player studies and analyzes hundreds of hands in order to play one correctly.

The budding tennis expert hits a ball a thousand times against a backboard in order to be able to put it exactly where he wants to.

The pianist, of course, practices relentlessly and monotonously in order to explore the deepest beauty of a piece.

In short, you have to be willing to be bored before you can be truly gratified.

We accept this truth in certain areas such as sports and games and special talents — but we prefer to ignore it when it comes to the learning process generally, and to formal education in particular.

It is the familiar case of the pendulum swinging too far from the other extreme.

In past generations, education and study were conceived of in punitive terms: learning was grim and dull and repetitive, and the idea of "fun" or "pleasure" was anathema to most school teachers.

Then, as progressive ideas took hold, the educational system swung over to the opposite extreme: learning was supposed to be jolly and easy, without straining the mind or taxing the patience.

It all became a merry game, and it didn't matter so much what you learned as long as you had fun doing it.

But this approach is as absurd and ineffectual as the earlier one.

Learning is a combination of work and play; part of it is difficult, and part of it is pleasurable; and the paradox consists in the fact that the more we grapple with it, the more enjoyable it becomes.

The earlier pedagogy ignored the delight and made the travail and end in itself; the new pedagogy ignores the travail and tries to make the delight an end in itself.

Life indeed, and not just learning, is a perpetual tension between the polarities of work and pleasure: those who don't work soon get bored with their pleasures, and those who work only for its own sake soon dry up and die spiritually.

The most fun comes — as in sailing a boat — when you work the hardest to win it.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MALONEY — In loving memory of a dear father, Jack, who passed away July 4, 1970.
What would we give to say
"We'll go and see our Dad today,"
To see his face and see him smile,
To sit and talk with him awhile.
But we have lost and God has gained
The best of Dads the world contained.
To those who have a husband and Dad—
Cherish him with care,
You'll never know the heartache
'Til you see his empty chair.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Rosemarie, Danny, Joe, Barry and Judy.

SYLVESTER: In loving memory of Peggy Sylvester, who passed away July 4th, 1969.
"In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same."
—Always remembered by Mom, Dad, Sharon and Wayne.

SYLVESTER: In loving memory of Peggy Sylvester, who passed away July 4th, 1969.
"And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep."
—Always remembered by Pat, Chopper and family.

ALL SORTS: Kirk Douglas is the latest big-name star to try television. He will star in a 90-minute musical special version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde on NBC next season. I'd guess one of the songs could be I've Grown Accustomed to Your Face — Ooops! There He Goes Again!

I have received a note from someone identified only as D.C. asking for more information on Dennis Rucker. I don't have any but can steer D.C. on to a source if he or she would kindly phone me with the name.

The U.S. networks estimate they will spend about $20 million to cover this summer's two presidential conventions, about the same as 1968, and won't get half of it back from sponsors . . . Apropos of nothing, if Noah's Ark had two of everything, it must have had two termites, and if it did, it must have sunk quickly.

"Now, back to Storyland and 'Little Ms. Muffet'."

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — How did the 1971-72 National Football League playoffs go? Dallas beat Minnesota, Miami outlasted Kansas City, Baltimore beat Cleveland, Frisco beat Washington, Dallas beat Frisco, Miami upset Baltimore and Dallas thumped Miami in the Superbowl by a boring 24-3 margin. How soon you forget.

Today's question — A guess is close enough. There are 55 seats in the B.C. Legislature. How close can you come to the party standings? That's as they were last week, when this was typed. Answers Wednesday.

Tuesday Highlights

C-1:30 p.m. — Only two specials are planned on the U.S. Independence Day and one of them is a car race, the Pocono (N.Y.) 500 — 13.

C-6:00 — And the other is a two-hour PBS look at Milwaukee's great circus parade, which children should love — 9.

C-8:00 — Start of a CBC summer series of variety from Winnipeg. It's called Good Times and features singer Catherine McKinnon — 2, 6.

C-8:30 — Another summer series, this one a five-weeker on CBS, has Winnipeg-born comic David Steinberg as the host — 2, 6.

C-8:30 — PBS brings back Boston Pops reruns for the summer. First music is by Aaron Copland and Leroy Anderson — 9.

CABLE 10 — Summer schedules begin: 8:00 p.m., Scottish soccer, Rangers vs. Celtic; 8:30, the Empty Hand karate program; 9:00, the Helen Biernes show Outlook; 10:00, Island Hobbyist with Daphne Goode. All are reruns.

Tuesday Movies

C-9:30 a.m. — Texas Carnival (wishy-washy 1951 MGM romanticomedy), Red Skelton, Esther Williams. This isn't a bad day for TV movies but Texas Carnival is a bad part of it — 4.

C-4 p.m. — The Ghost and Mr. Chicken (1966 Don Knotts) — 7.

C-8:30 — Halls of Montezuma (fairish 1951 war action), Richard Widmark, Richard Boone, Robert Wagner, Jack Palance, Jack Webb. Same old bang-bang plot but the cast is first-rate — 5.

11:00 — Blazing Frontier (1941 Buster Crabbe fizzle) — 13.

● C-11:30 — American in Paris (1951 Oscar-winning musical), Gene Kelly, Leslie Caron. Overblown at times but still one of the best dance films — 7, 12.

C-12:00 — 4-D Man (fairish 1959 sci-fi), Robert Lansing — 6, 8.

12:30 — Arizona Days (1937 Tex Ritter disaster). Another cross gag, with more Wednesday. Cross Texas with a March hare and you find Dallas in Wonderland — 13.

Tuesday Radio

8:00 p.m. — CBC Tuesday Night features John Ciardi's verse autobiography about a second-generation Italian-American growing up in the U.S. — CBU (690).

ALL SORTS: Kirk Douglas is the latest big-name star to try television. He will star in a 90-minute musical special version of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde on NBC next season. I'd guess one of the songs could be I've Grown Accustomed to Your Face — Ooops! There He Goes Again!

I have received a note from someone identified only as D.C. asking for more information on Dennis Rucker. I don't have any but can steer D.C. on to a source if he or she would kindly phone me with the name.

The U.S. networks estimate they will spend about $20 million to cover this summer's two presidential conventions, about the same as 1968, and won't get half of it back from sponsors . . . Apropos of nothing, if Noah's Ark had two of everything, it must have had two termites, and if it did, it must have sunk quickly.

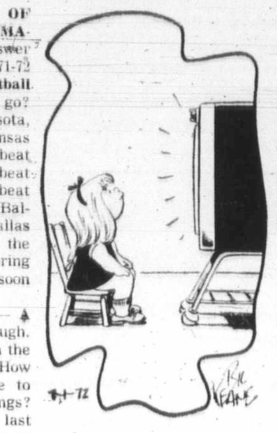
BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — How did the 1971-72 National Football League playoffs go? Dallas beat Minnesota, Miami outlasted Kansas City, Baltimore beat Cleveland, Frisco beat Washington, Dallas beat Frisco, Miami upset Baltimore and Dallas thumped Miami in the Superbowl by a boring 24-3 margin. How soon you forget.

Today's question — A guess is close enough. There are 55 seats in the B.C. Legislature. How close can you come to the party standings? That's as they were last week, when this was typed. Answers Wednesday.



"Now, back to Storyland and 'Little Ms. Muffet'."

C-12:00 — 4-D Man (fairish 1959 sci-fi), Robert Lansing — 6, 8.

TEAM CAPTAIN

A defensive signal to show the number of cards held in a suit is one of the most useful tools for the defense. The most common of these signals is the "high-low come again" signal. The high-low by the third-hand player usually denotes a doubleton or a strong desire to have the suit continued.

However, as useful as these conventional signals are to the defense, declarer is also "tuned in" and is at liberty to use the information for his own gain. Today's game hand is a prime example of this principle.

Vulnerable: Both
Dealer: West

NORTH
♠ Q 10 8
♥ A 7 6

WEST
♠ 6 5 4
♥ K Q 10 9 5
♦ A Q 5
♣ J 4

EAST
♥ 8 4 2
♦ J 10 9 7 3

SOUTH
♥ J 3
♦ K 6 2
♣ 7 5 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of hearts.

The bidding was fairly standard, with North having a good raise after South voluntarily introduced the spade suit. South had no reason to "stop on a dime" and, therefore, continued on to game.

West led the heart king and declarer made a routine duck. He had nothing to lose unless East had a singleton. This was a very unlikely situation since that would place seven hearts with West — a possibility not in accord with the bidding.

East played his heart deuce, a discouraging card and one that denied a doubleton. Both West and South now had a clear idea of the distribution. West continued with the heart queen because he knew East had three hearts and the play could not lose and would probably "pin" declarer's jack.

West analyzed the situation well but declarer went one better. He ducked the heart queen!

What was the reason for that? Declarer knew that his heart ace was safe and he wanted to guard against East gaining the lead for an attack on his vulnerable diamond king.

Since East could only gain the lead in clubs, declarer developed a guard against that possibility.

The third heart lead was won by the ace and declarer discarded a club. He then played two high spades and two high clubs. A third club was ruffed high to prevent an overruff and the clubs were established.

A spade was led to dummy to draw the remaining enemy trump and to cash the two good clubs. Two diamonds were discarded and the game was made.

Note that had declarer not played in this manner East would have been in with a club to make the fatal diamond switch.

The moral? Defensive signals are not only for the benefit of the defenders. They are "public property" and the alert declarer can turn them to his own advantage.

[illegible] BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

ON THE WATERFRONT
This up-island property is extremely profitable for the present owner. It should be even more so for a really aggressive group of new owners willing to expand both the season and the facilities. 51 trailer pads, 4 unit motel, a four-room house on (get this point please) 6 acres of land having 626 feet of waterfront including 100 ft of foreshore rights with marine way "small boat" launching apparatus, tackle sales shop, 5 boats (rentals), 3 trailers (rented). Many guests have been visitors for 12 years and come from far afield with their trailers on a seasonal basis. Others live all the year round in the trailer park. And so important, the property has frontage on BOTH sides of the Island Highway. How about building a motel? Generous terms to qualified buyer. About $65,000 down payment required. Inspection by appointment and details from JOHN RUSSELL, 386-2955 or res. 592-3278. Mayfair Realty.

VEGAS ON ROAD HOME

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Monday asked owners of virtually every Chevrolet Vega on the road to return them to dealers to check a defective axle shaft that could cause rear brake failure and the axle itself to fall off.

It was the third major recall of Vegas in the last three months and affected 500,000 of the subcompact cars — nearly every one built in the 1971 and 1972 model years.

All Veags built since the car was introduced are affected by at least two recall campaigns and many owners are involved in all three.

The Vega, constructed at GM's labor-troubled Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant, was introduced as GM's answer to the challenge of small foreign cars in the 1971 model year.

A GM spokesman denied the latest defect was the result of an assembly problem. Rather, he said, it was caused by production of shorter axle shafts at a Chevrolet manufacturing plant.

Plug-In Hair Twanger

Navy chief's job can be hair-raising at times, and Chief Warrant Officer Tip Brush, HMCS Terra Nova, had trouble checking military hair length of crew, until he came up with his invention using ear plugs, elastic band and marking chalk. Directions: insert plugs in ears; attach elastic, stretch, wait for "twang" . . . and presto . . . instant proof of excess growth. Private Brian Hopkins passed with ease.

Space Talks

Anti-Strike Legislation

Try Laws Heath Bid

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday challenged militant British labor unions to give his Conservative government's anti-strike legislation a fair trial and then to discuss it with the government.

"This government will be fully prepared in such a process to discuss this with them," Heath said.

"The unions cannot escape their share of responsibility for the impact of free collective bargaining on the economy and on their own members either in prices or in unemployment," he said.

"The alternatives are stark facing this country. They are either legal intervention, which the trade unions reject, or the confrontation which all of us object to, or inflation."

Heath spoke in a House of Commons debate on a Labor opposition censure motion, attacking the government "for the grave injuries to good industrial relations and the general reputation of the law caused by the operation of the Industrial Relations Act."

Fischer Boards Plane

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

Don't bet against a possibility that Bobby Fischer of the United States knew all along the prize money in the world championship match starting today would be doubled.

It was a chess game within a chess game which finally ended late Monday night with Fischer boarding a plane for Reykjavik, Iceland, where he meets world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union this afternoon.

It was all made possible through British banker James Slater, who at the last moment doubled the prize fund from $125,000 to $250,000 meaning that now the winner of the 24-game series gets $150,000 and the loser $100,000.

Fischer, of course, accepted, and was gone like a shot in a jet from Kennedy International Airport in New York. Up until the offer came, he'd done everything possible to avoid showing up for the match.

But it seems to me the 27-year-old challenger from Brooklyn knew what he was

Baker Clear, Bright

It was that kind of a Monday — a crystal-clear Vancouver Island — only day when photographer William E. John paused at the Malahat summit. It was sunny and warm, with temperatures from high eighties to low nineties. Telephoto lens captured this dramatic scene, including portion of Saanich Peninsula in foreground, then James Island, Sidney Island and Washington state's Mount Baker rising in background, about 80 miles away across Juan de Fuca Strait.

Hostilities Ended

Koreas Plan To Reunify

SEOUL (UPI) — South and North Korea Tuesday announced an agreement to end hostilities between the two countries as a step toward reunification of the peninsula, divided since the end of the Second World War.

The "surprise agreement came in a joint communique issued simultaneously in Seoul and North Korea's capital of Pyongyang.

The agreement said that the two nations have agreed not to slander or defame each other and not to undertake armed provocations against each other in an effort to ease tensions and foster mutual trust.

The communique was signed by Lee Hu-Rak, director of the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency and Kim Young Joo, director of North Korea's organization and guidance department. Kim is a younger brother of North Korean premier Kim Il-Sung.

The seven-point communique said Lee visited the North Korean capital May 2-5 and held talks with Kim Young-Joo.

On behalf of Kim, North Korean second vice premier Park Sung-Chul visited Seoul May 29 through June 11 and held further talks, it said.

The communique spelled out three principles for national unification on which the two sides agreed:

"First, unification shall be achieved through independent Korean efforts without being subject to external imposition or interference.

"Second, unification shall be achieved through peaceful means, and not through the use of force against each other.

"Third as a homogenous people, a great national unit shall be sought above all, transcending differences in ideas, ideologies and, systems."

"In order to ease tensions and foster an atmosphere of mutual trust between the south and the north, the two sides have agreed not to slander or defame each other, not to undertake armed provocations whether on a large or small scale and to take positive measures to prevent inadvertent military incidents," it said.

The communique added:

- The two sides, in order to restore national ties promote mutual understanding and to expedite independent peaceful unification, have agreed to carry out various exchanges in many fields.
- The two sides have agreed to install a direct telephone link between Seoul and Pyongyang in order to prevent the outbreak of unexpected military incidents and to deal directly, promptly and accurately with problems arising between them.
- The two sides have agreed to set up and operate a south-north coordinating committee headed by Lee and Kim in a bid to implement the agreement and solve various problems existing between them.
- The two sides have agreed to cooperate positively to seek early success of the south-north Red Cross talks now underway to help separated families unite.

The communique pledged that the two sides will faithfully carry out the agreement contained in it.

Durable Peace Found?

"The agreement we signed last night represents a breakthrough in our relations," he said in a farewell message to Mrs. Gandhi. "I have no doubt that we can set the foundation of durable peace which we owe to our people."

Indians Trust Bhutto

By MYRON L. BELKIND

NEW DELHI (AP) — "The most significant development at the India-Pakistan summit meeting just concluded may be that the Indian government has learned to trust Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Since the summit meeting was announced two months ago, Indian officials repeatedly said India would have to be convinced of the Pakistan president's sincerity before it would agree to any peace settlement.

Anti-Strike Legislation

Try Laws Heath Bid

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday challenged militant British labor unions to give his Conservative government's anti-strike legislation a fair trial and then to discuss it with the government.

"This government will be fully prepared in such a process to discuss this with them," Heath said.

"The unions cannot escape their share of responsibility for the impact of free collective bargaining on the economy and on their own members either in prices or in unemployment," he said.

"The alternatives are stark facing this country. They are either legal intervention, which the trade unions reject, or the confrontation which all of us object to, or inflation."

Heath spoke in a House of Commons debate on a Labor opposition censure motion, attacking the government "for the grave injuries to good industrial relations and the general reputation of the law caused by the operation of the Industrial Relations Act."

Shells Again Hit Citadel in Hue

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese artillery fired four rounds into Hue just after dawn today, marking the third day that the old imperial capital has come under shelling attack.

Field reports said at least one person was killed and several were wounded when four 122 m.m. artillery shells struck inside the Citadel.

Government military spokesmen, meanwhile, reported new fighting just to the south of Quang Tri city and west of Hue, and said troops taking part in the Quang Tri counter-offensive also had recaptured three artillery pieces lost in earlier fighting.

At least 101 shells hit the city Monday and Sunday, most directed at the Citadel which serves as the military command post for the northern region. Twelve persons were reported killed in Sunday's attack, the first shelling of the city since the Communist offensive began March 30.

Communist gunners pounded a base camp Monday on the northwestern approach to Hue with about 500 rounds of artillery and mortar fire, a communique said. They followed with a ground attack that was repulsed.

The North Vietnamese have been pounding bases along Hue's western defences since government forces started their drive north last week to recapture Quang Tri province. The country's northernmost province fell May 1.

Fischer Boards Plane

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

Don't bet against a possibility that Bobby Fischer of the United States knew all along the prize money in the world championship match starting today would be doubled.

It was a chess game within a chess game which finally ended late Monday night with Fischer boarding a plane for Reykjavik, Iceland, where he meets world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union this afternoon.

It was all made possible through British banker James Slater, who at the last moment doubled the prize fund from $125,000 to $250,000 meaning that now the winner of the 24-game series gets $150,000 and the loser $100,000.

Fischer, of course, accepted, and was gone like a shot in a jet from Kennedy International Airport in New York. Up until the offer came, he'd done everything possible to avoid showing up for the match.

But it seems to me the 27-year-old challenger from Brooklyn knew what he was

Quebec Proposal

Stevedores Will Meet

- B.C. longshoremen urge Ottawa action. Page 3

MONTREAL (UPI) — Quebec's 3,200 striking longshoremen were to meet today to consider back-to-work proposals hammered out with federal labor department officials in a last ditch effort to settle the seven-week-old provincial port dispute.

In Ottawa, Parliament was to reconvene today to possibly consider passing strike-ending legislation if the International Longshoremen's Association and the Maritime Employers' Association do not reach an independent agreement.

The labor department officials met separately Monday with both ILA and MEA representatives. Details of the back-to-work proposals were not disclosed, but they reportedly included lifting the employers' suspension of the striking dock workers.

The longshoremen walked off the job May 16 at the province's three main ports in Quebec City, Three Rivers and Montreal in a dispute over the size of work gangs on the docks.

Last Friday about 2,000 ILA members meeting in Montreal voted unanimously to reject an arbitration ruling and remain on strike.

Judge Alan B. Gold, a veteran arbitrator of maritime disputes, ruled Thursday that the longshoremen's strike violated their contract signed last March and was therefore illegal.

Parliament was originally scheduled to adjourn for the summer last Friday. However, House Leader Allan MacEachen postponed adjournment due to "uncertainty" in the docks dispute.

Truman Cheerful

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former president Harry S. Truman was reported cheerful and in satisfactory medical condition Monday at Research Medical centre as his doctor began what was described as routine testing.

Truman, 88, was admitted to the hospital Sunday. Dr. Wallace H. Graham, his personal physician, said he was to be examined for a "lower gastro-intestinal problem."

Paratroops Stand By

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said Monday it is ready to station about 2,000 paratroopers from the army's 82nd Airborne Division near Miami Beach before the Democratic National Convention opens there next week.

Protestants Back Down Before Might of U.K.

BELFAST (AP) — About 7,000 club-wielding militants, bent on sealing off one of their Belfast strongholds, backed down Monday night before a massive display of British military muscle.

The Protestants barricaded three other areas earlier in the day but the British drew the line when the masked army advanced on the fourth.

Gen. Robert Ford, commander of British forces in Northern Ireland, said: "We now have pulled back from the precipice," when Protestants armed with cudgels and iron bars gave way in the tense confrontation.

The British military display before irregulars of the Ulster Defence Association was one of the strongest in some time in violence-torn Northern Ireland. Several hundred fully-armed soldiers were involved, supported by armored troop carriers, armored cars, jeeps and heavy trucks.

The confrontation lasted four hours. With the contenders lined up within yards of each other, it threatened to develop into a major battle.

The immediate issue was the determination of Protestant militants to build a steel barricade across Ainsworth Avenue in West Belfast and extend the "no-go" areas they have been steadily building in the capital.

The army denied permission on the grounds the barrier would cut off about 2 Roman Catholic families.

An officer of the UDA, the Protestant answer to the Catholic-based Irish Republican Army, said: "We will fight the army if we have to . . . all night and all day if necessary."

At one point, women of the neighborhood formed a line between the two forces to keep them apart.

While the confrontation was going on, police headquarters announced the 399th known fatality in Ulster's three years of turmoil.

A bullet-riddled body was found beside a road at Coalisland, County Tyrone. It was the weekend's eighth apparent victim of sectarian execution squads.

Pentagon Reluctant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department refused Monday to say whether the United States has tampered with the weather in Indochina in an effort to hamper North Vietnamese military operations.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Freidheim said the U.S. has never tried to cause rain over North Vietnam. But when asked whether rain-making activities have been attempted in South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia, he replied: "I can't enlarge on that."

Final Chapter in Trek

Sons Trickle Back Into Kootenays

The return marks the final chapter in the trek by the radical sect when some 500 members burned their tar-paper shacks at Krestova, in September, 1962, and marched to Agassiz to be near about 100 of their brethern who had been arrested, convicted of terrorist activities and sent to the special fireproof prison that was built at a cost of $300,000 to hold them.

The trek has ended as it began with members of the sect still at odds with the law.

Twenty-five were arrested Sunday after a demonstration in front of the home of John Verigin, leader of about 10,000 Orothodox Doukhobors residing in B.C. They are scheduled to appear in court July 25.

The history of the Freedomites, who claim to be pacifists, has been pockmarked with violence, burnings and nude parades since they first came to B.C. from Saskatchewan about 70 years ago.

The trek started on Labor Day, 1962, with the burning of homes at Krestova, situated atop a bleak, sandy hilltop about 15 miles west of Nelson.

The 500 Krestova Freedomites marched westward for several days, their number swelling to about 1,300 men, women and children as other members of the 3,000-strong sect joined their ranks.

The trek continued by cars, buses and trucks late into 1963 with stops here, and at Princeton, Hope and Vancouver, where they lingered for seven months before finally camping outside Mountain Prison in August, 1963, at the same time their imprisoned brethren began a hunger strike.

Both the prisoners and the trekkers maintained the imprisoned Freedomites were unjustly convicted for acts instigated by others and that they wanted a solution to Doukhobor problems. What

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — About 10,500 men and women athletes from 123 countries have been entered for the Summer Olympic Games in Munich, the organizers announced Monday.

West Germany will have the largest delegation with 405 male and 118 female athletes, plus 134 team officials.

The Soviet Union will send the second largest group—382 men and 119 women athletes and 127 officials. Third largest group is the United States with 625—369 men and 100 women athletes and 156 officials.

The organizers said the June 30 deadline for entering passed with eight countries either refusing or not replying to invitations. They were Jordan, Iraq, Zaire, Paraguay, Honduras, Mauritius, Guinea, and the Central African Republic.

Bown Captures Speedway Feature

Bown grabbed the lead from favorite Ray Elder on the 40th lap and McGriff, a 42-year-old from Bridal Veil, Ore., moved up to challenge when Jack McCoy of Modesto, Calif., second for about 50 laps, dropped out with mechanical problems.

From the 100th lap, McGriff tried every trick he knew to get past Bown but the Portland driver held on desperately for his win.

Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Calif., was third and John Soares of Hayward, Calif., was fourth.

Elder of Carruthers, Calif., the series points leader, had tire trouble after leading for the first 40 laps and finished sixth in the 21-car field.

The race was watched by 4000 fans.

McGriff won the opening leg of the two Canadian events in the 25-race Western Grand National series, taking a 150-lap race Sunday at Langley Speedway.

On Saturday night, Rick O'Dell missed getting his fourth straight victory at Western when he was involved in a spectacular collision on the 25th lap of the 35-lap super-stock main event.

O'Dell, Bill Price and Ron Hancock were involved in the crash but Larry Walker roared past the sprawling cars and held on for victory. O'Dell finished fourth behind John Currier and Ted Mortel.

Tony Johnson beat Al Miller over the finish line by only a car length in the 20-lap claimer main event. Bill Bartley was third and Al Smith fourth.

The defending American League champions unleashed a 21-hit attack to rout Detroit 15-3 and move into a tie with the Tigers in the Eastern Division.

A crowd of 50,835 and a national television audience watched the spectacular at Tiger Stadium. The Orioles, who won three of four games in the crucial weekend series, scored six runs in the sixth inning, seven in the eighth inning and added two more in the ninth inning.

Merv Rettenmund and Bobby Grich led the Orioles with four hits each and Boog Powell climaxed the rout with a two-run homer in the ninth.

In National League action, St. Louis Cardinals remained the hottest club in major-league baseball by winning their seventh straight game and 14 out of the last 15 with a 4-2 decision over front-running Cincinnati Reds.

Cardinals moved into a virtual third-place tie with Chicago in the Eastern Division but failed to gain on Pittsburgh Pirates, who shaded the Cubs, 3-2.

Ted Simmons snapped a 2-2 tie with a two-run double in the fifth inning and Rick Wise, who contributed a home run, pitched his 10th complete game in recording the win for the Cardinals.

Atlanta prevented Houston from moving up on the Reds when Hank Aaron pounded his 656th career home run, a three-run drive, to give the Braves a 13-9 win over the Astros.

Aaron, who reached the 2000 runs-batted-in mark with the home run, has hit four homers in the last six games and trails Babe Ruth by 58 in all-time homers. Aaron is also second to Ruth's 2209 runs-batted in.

Weekend highlights

- Willie McCovey blasted his 14th career grand-slam home run, tying him with the Late Gil Hodges and Aaron for the National League record, as San Francisco blasted Los Angeles, 9-3, Sunday;
- Gary Nolan became the National League's first 11-game winner when Cincinnati clubbed San Diego Padres 12-2 Sunday;
- Chicago Cubs completed a triple play in the seventh inning but lost their seventh in nine games to Pittsburgh Sunday when Pirates scored a 7-4 victory;
- Vida Blue, pitching out of two bases-loaded jams, won his second game of the season when Oakland Athletics scored a 3-1 win over California Angels;
- Mickey Lolich of Detroit scattered seven Baltimore hits in becoming the first 13-game winner in the majors when Tigers trimmed the Orioles, 2-0;
- Richie Scheinblum, the American League leading hitter, upped his average to .341 with six hits in nine at bats to help Kansas City Royals earn a doubleheader split against Texas Rangers;
- Minnesota Twins may have lost pitcher Jim Kaat for the remainder of the season. The lefthander injured his wrist Sunday while sliding into second base against Chicago White sox, continued pitching until the eighth inning but needed relief help in running his record to 10-2.

Jonas, Bombers Trounce Alouettes

MONTREAL — Winnipeg Blue Bombers indicated Monday night that they may not have been one-year wonders.

Bombers, who surprised many last season by finishing third and leading the Canadian Football League in scoring, hammered Montreal Alouettes, 43-10, in the season's first exhibition game.

And as last year, quarterback Don Jonas played the leading role for Winnipeg.

Jonas named the CFL player of the year in 1971, threw two touchdown passes, kicked six converts and added a single on a missed field-goal attempt.

After Alouettes grabbed a 1-0 lead Jonas marched the Bombers 85 yards in nine plays for a touchdown. Louis Scott made a diving catch in the end zone and Jonas converted to give Bombers a 7-1 edge at the quarter.

Bombers put the game away in the second quarter when Mack Herron took a Jonas pass for a touchdown and defensive back Grady Cavness intercepted a Montreal pass on the next sequence and returned the ball 43 yards for another touchdown.

Quarterback Jim Chasey narrowed the margin to 11 points when he scored from nine yards. Don Sweet, who had earlier kicked a field goal, missed the convert.

Chasey who played the first half for Montreal, hit on 10 of 17 pass attempts and had one pass intercepted.

Sonny Wade and Jim Corcoran shared quarterbacking duties in the second half and combined to complete eight of 19 passes. Wade had one intercepted.

Bomber-halfback Paul Williams scored the only touchdown of the third quarter, on the prettiest play of the night.

Pharr hit flanker Jim Thorpe with a pass on the Montreal 14-yard line and Thorpe drew two defenders before flipping the ball to Williams who went over the goal-line unmolested.

In the final quarter, Doug Strong intercepted a pass at the Montreal 44 and raced to the seven-yard line. One play later Pharr hit Olan Thompson with a touchdown pass and Jonas converted.

Defensive tackle Steve Howell scored the other Winnipeg touchdown when he recovered a Wade fumble and rambled 38 yards into the end zone.

Jonas closed out the scoring with a 27-yard single.

Bombers move on to Toronto for a game with the Argonatus Wednesday night. B.C. Lions are in Regina and Calgary at Edmonton in other exhibition games Wednesday.

Victoria McDonalds won the game 12-9, but it was the second time in three nights the clubs have been involved in last-period fisticuffs. The same two players were thrown out of Saturday's contest in Victoria, won by the Bakers, 25-6 and Victoria's Pete Gibson was assessed a match penalty for fighting with John Hanna and was suspended for Monday's match pending a league hearing.

Lynch powered Saturday night's lopsided victory with six goals and four assists. Junior "B" recruit Kevin Alexander also had six goals for Victoria.

Adanacs, who tripped Salmonbellies by 13-12 last week, have 12 points, two less than Victoria Shamrocks. Shamrocks and Adanacs play a home and home series this week, Wednesday at Memorial Arena and Saturday in Coquitlam.

Bob Ormand, Brian Bergum and Keith Scott each scored two goals for Adanacs and Kevin Parsons and Wayne Spooner added a goal and two assists each.

Kerry Gallagher topped Salmonbellies with two goals and singles were added by Paul Parnell, Fred Greenwood, Mac Tyler, Wayne Goss, Ray Bennie, and Jim Giles. Al Lewthwaite had five assists for the losers.

Salmonbellies meet Vancouver Burrards in a home and home series this week that could decide first place.

Burrards lead the defending WLA champions by six points but New Westminster has four games in hand.

Four New Faces in Lions Lineup

PENTICTON — Two on defence two on offence.

That's the number of new faces B.C. Lions will have in the starting lineup when the Canadian Football League club meets Saskatchewan Roughriders in an exhibition game Wednesday in Regina.

He named Don Estay an all-American with Louisiana State, to his defensive line which includes veterans Garrett Hunsperger and Gary Robinson and second-year man Bob Liggett.

Alternating at end with Robinson will be Greg Findlay, a veteran who has been switched from linebacker this season.

The other newcomer on defence is Ray Nettles, the highly-regarded graduate of Tennessee, who will share right-linebacking duties with Peter Palmer a second-year player. Carl Weathers and George Anderson, both Lions last season, will hold down the middle and left-linebacking spots respectively.

Keys will start the same secondary that finished the 1971 campaign. That includes Mike Wilson Wayne Matherne, Brian Donnelly, Wayne Holm and Dave Easley.

Two running backs are the only newcomers on the offensive formation.

All-American Johnny Musso from Alabama will start at left halfback and Monroe Eley from Arizona State will fill the right-halfback slot. Completing the backfield will be quarterback Don Moorhead fullback Jim Evenson, and flanker Larry Highbaugh.

Jim Young, who has played running back for several seasons, switches to wide receiver this year. Dave Denny will play tight end, Bob Howes centre, Trev Ekdahl and Ted Wheeler guards, and Ken Sugarman and Dave Golinsky tackles.

Lions will dress 52 players for Wednesday's game.

Island Supply Fades Into H

A link with Vancouver Island's maritime past ends at noon today when Northland Navigation's Skeena Prince pulls into Vancouver harbor after a final trip round the Island to serve the needs of its remote west coast ports.

The cherished passenger and mail service, cut off from road transportation, had been served by a government-subsidized service for nearly 80 years.

But Northland says it has not heard of any federal subsidies to help keep the west coast run operating — and they don't expect there will be any. Now the Skeena Prince will operate on a reduced run, mainly in Port Hardy and upper mainland areas.

Northland Navigation took over the service in 1958 and operated three ships on the run, which has been restricted to areas north of Barkley Sound in recent years.

The federal government announced withdrawal of its subsidy at the end of 1971, but protests from west coast residents resulted in a six-month extension of service.

Some of the ports will continue to be served by Barkley Sound Transportation Co., which operates a ship out of Port Alberni. Some freight from Vancouver will be transferred by B.C. ferries and truck to Port Alberni.

Northland will continue to use the Skeena Prince for freight and passenger service to points in the northern end of Georgia Strait including Alert Bay, Port Hardy, Beaver Cove, Port McNeill, Bull Harbor, Bella Bella, Namu and Klemtu — most on the mainland.

When the cutback in federal subsidies to private companies was announced last winter it brought sharp protests in the province.

At the time, a spokesman for the Canadian Transportation Commission said alternative shipping methods were available to the west coast villages. He cited barges, aircraft and trucks — a network of logging roads.

COURTENAY — Sociologists and other educators are too "offender-oriented." Their doctrines tend to justify and excuse the offender as a victim, rather than what he is, a victimizer and parasite.

This of course, is an exemplification of the permissive attitude which has crept into and is taking over our educational system, Vancouver Judge Larry Eckardt told Rotarians here recently.

He delivered a punch-packed address to club members on the subject of permissiveness and its relation to crime.

"What is permissiveness, when and where did it all start," Eckardt asked his audience.

He said one school of thought fixes the Second World War as its origin. He outlined how the stresses and demands of war take not only the father from the home but also the mother. In many instances a whole family was on shift work and the result was deterioration and breakdown of family life with thousands of children being left unsupervised to fend for themselves.

The speaker said these children then grew up, married and had children of their own with the result that an "entirely new concept" of our home and family life has ap

Skeena Prince nears trip's end

Island Supply Link Fades Into History

A link with Vancouver Island's maritime past ends at noon today when Northland Navigation's Skeena Prince pulls into Vancouver harbor after a final trip round the Island to serve the needs of its remote west coast ports.

The cherished passenger and mail service, cut off from road transportation, had been served by a government-subsidized service for nearly 80 years.

But Northland says it has not heard of any federal subsidies to help keep the west coast run operating — and they don't expect there will be any. Now the Skeena Prince will operate on a reduced run, mainly in Port Hardy and upper mainland areas.

Northland Navigation took over the service in 1958 and operated three ships on the run, which has been restricted to areas north of Barkley Sound in recent years.

The federal government announced withdrawal of its subsidy at the end of 1971, but protests from west coast residents resulted in a six-month extension of service.

Some of the ports will continue to be served by Barkley Sound Transportation Co., which operates a ship out of Port Alberni. Some freight from Vancouver will be transferred by B.C. ferries and truck to Port Alberni.

Northland will continue to use the Skeena Prince for freight and passenger service to points in the northern end of Georgia Strait including Alert Bay, Port Hardy, Beaver Cove, Port McNeill, Bull Harbor, Bella Bella, Namu and Klemtu — most on the mainland.

When the cutback in federal subsidies to private companies was announced last winter it brought sharp protests in the province.

At the time, a spokesman for the Canadian Transportation Commission said alternative shipping methods were available to the west coast villages. He cited barges, aircraft and trucks — a network of logging roads.

Alberni MLA Howard McDiarmid called for the six-month delay in cutting off the subsidy.

"Sure," he said, "there is a road from Gold River to Zeballos, but particularly in winter it is pretty primitive. And I'd like the guy who wrote that report to tell me what road runs to Ahousat."

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell also said then that wrong information led to the cutting-off of federal subsidies, referring specifically to the report that coast communities were connected by roads.

This, he said, was simply incorrect.

Of all the points served by the Skeena Prince — about a dozen in all — only two are on the Gold River-Zeballos road. That road is a linkup of two logging roads and is open to the public only from 5 p.m. each night to 6 a.m. next morning and all day on weekends.

The federal subsidy to Northland's west coast run was $130,000 annually. Northland states flatly that "without payment of an operating subsidy, it is economically impossible to continue to provide a service. . . ."

A letter from Transport Minister Don Jamieson to provincial Highways Minister Wesley Black in February said that "the Canadian Transport Commission is well aware of the problems related to the road connection between Gold River and Tahsis and is also aware that development not only of this but of the other roads cannot be expected to provide transport connection to all coastal communities and that some water links between, or extensions of, local roads will continue to be necessary."

Further, Jamieson made reference to an investigation of possible improvements in communications to the west coast communities.

He notes: "I am informed that no particular problems are anticipated and that the design of a system to accomplish the purpose will be completed in the near future.'

A CTC source took the minister's statement to indicate that small independent marine shippers will be able to handle the situation now that the Skeena Prince is gone.

Sinkings, Cliffhanger . . . . . . Make Hectic Holiday

Rescue Missions Save Nine

Coast Guard cutters and Canadian Forces rescue squadron 442 from CFB Comox were credited with saving the lives of nine people during the long Dominion Day weekend which rescue officials described as "hectic."

The Pacific Rescue Centre in Victoria said Monday that the nine persons would likely have died if quick rescues had not been accomplished.

Five of the persons were saved Friday night by the coast guard cutter Racer when their pleasure craft was sinking near Active Pass.

Three others were rescued in two other separate marine incidents and a mountaineer was winched from a cliff on the face of Mount Slesse near Chilliwack after he suffered leg injuries in a fall.

The five people were not identified, but they were reported to be aboard the Pegasus, a pleasure craft, when it began to sink just north of Active Pass.

The Racer was sent to the scene, and took the five, who were still aboard the vessel, off. The cutter also managed to beach the vessel before it sank completely.

Two other persons, also unidentified, were taken from their sinking pleasure boat in the Alert Bay area at the north end of Vancouver Island, while one man was plucked from the waters of English Bay near Vancouver by the crew of the cutter Moorhen after his small boat capsized.

The mountaineer was rescued by a helicopter from CFB Comox from the 7,600-foot level of the mountain which he had been climbing.

He had apparently fallen, crushing his legs, Monday morning. A mountain rescue team from North Vancouver helped in the rescue which had the Labrador helicopter landing on a ledge so narrow it had only two feet of clearance when it took off to take the injured man to Chilliwack.

The four major incidents were the highlights of the long weekend in which the rescue centre said it handled "literally dozens" of marine calls, mostly dealing with broken-down boats and those which had run out of gas.

A search was launched Saturday for four young people from the small Vancouver Island community of Hopetown Village near Alert Bay after they failed to return from a canoeing expedition.

A Buffalo aircraft from the rescue squadron located them on a nearby island camp sunday afternoon, and they were reported in no difficulty.

A search was also begun in the Active Pass - Tsawwassen area Sunday for a sailboat which had not made an appointed rendezvous with two other boats. It also turned up safely a short time later.

Mill Zoning Bid Withdrawn

COWICHAN BAY — Residents in the Cowichan Bay area have been informed that Denis Hagar has withdrawn his application to have his property on the south bank of the Cowichan River rezoned to the industrial classification.

This decision was taken after discussions between a representative of Hagar's and Trevor Daniels, the regional director of the area which took place over the weekend.

As a result of the discussion, there will be no action on this matter at a public hearing called for July 5.

Hagar had made the application in a bid to have a shingle mill constructed on his property. Cowichan Bay residents strongly opposed this action on the basis that much of the area is under water for the winter months and serves as a bird-nesting ground and salmon-spawning area.

If the mill were constructed, the land would likely be filled in which residents feel would upset the river ecology.

"This does not mean that Hagar has given up his attempt to obtain the right to construct and operate a shingle mill on his property," said Daniel. "Mr. Hagar is, for the time being, yielding to the very unfavorable reaction of the public to the zoning of his property for unrestricted industrial use.

"He intends to approach his problem from a more reasonable angle of trying to negotiate a land-use contract with the regional board. This would restrict the use of the land to a specific purpose on specified terms under the control of the regional board."

Daniel said the manner in which operations are to be carried out and what was to be built would be specified in a contract if land use were restricted. He added:

"No land-use contract can be entered into until the regional board had enacted a bylaw declaring the land involved a development area, and a public hearing held to hear the views of those persons who may be for or against the contract."

COURTENAY — Sociologists and other educators are too "offender-oriented." Their doctrines tend to justify and excuse the offender as a victim, rather than what he is, a victimizer and parasite.

This of course, is an exemplification of the permissive attitude which has crept into and is taking over our educational system, Vancouver Judge Larry Eckardt told Rotarians here recently.

He delivered a punch-packed address to club members on the subject of permissiveness and its relation to crime.

"What is permissiveness, when and where did it all start," Eckardt asked his audience.

He said one school of thought fixes the Second World War as its origin. He outlined how the stresses and demands of war take not only the father from the home but also the mother. In many instances a whole family was on shift work and the result was deterioration and breakdown of family life with thousands of children being left unsupervised to fend for themselves.

The speaker said these children then grew up, married and had children of their own with the result that an "entirely new concept" of our home and family life has appeared — one of deterioration in the home.

Eckardt said much of the present day permissiveness has evolved from a wilful misrepresentation by certain elements as to the "rights of privacy — under the loose heading of the "invasion of privacy."

Permissiveness, he said, is a private thing. Permissiveness in public "is a horse of a different color," Eckardt told the Rotarians, "It is an interesting facet of the minds of those who shout the loudest about privacy that they seem to insist on their right to permissiveness in public, like doing their own thing in public." He named as examples, rioting at rock festivals, the drug scene, distribution of obscene literature and preaching sedition.

If the meaning of the word privacy is perverted into permissiveness then what we end up protecting is not privacy but lawlessness, the judge said.

He named many "classic examples" of this lawlessness which he claimed is taking place very day "before our very eyes." Eckardt called such actions as those at the Vancouver Coliseum June 3 "a public disgrace."

Has crime increased and does permissiveness have any relevancy? he asked his listeners and answered his own question with statistics to show that crime is increasing at a frightening rate.

In 1948 two magistrates handled the court in Vancouver in 1960 the number rose to five, in 1969 to 14 and in 1972 to 18 criminal division judges, three small claims division judges and three family division judges — a rise of 400 per cent.

"During the next 15 years," the judge said, "it is anticipated those figures will be at least doubled."

He listed five main causes for the growth in crime, including population growth, growth of legislation from federal, provincial and municipal levels, growth of traffic offences, growth in juvenile delinquency including drug offences and growth in permissiveness.

"It is not for the lack of laws that we have this permissiveness, it is the failure to enforce these laws. Our present day society is too tolerant and indulgent and these words are the very essence of permissiveness," Eckardt said.

Again he cited many cases in which he said no arrests were made as police stood by and watched, which the judge said clearly indicated permissiveness.

Violent crime in Canada doubled between 1962 and 1970, murders were up by 98 per cent, assault up by 53 per cent, robbery up by 83 per cent and rape up by 43 per cent, he related.

He said there has also been a sharp increase in illegal drug use in Canada. There were 2,300 drug arrests in 1967 and in the first 11 months ending February 1972 drug arrests totalled 14,700. Last year in Vancouver the illegal use of drugs was up by 47 per cent over 1970 and, the judge warned, it is no longer confined to large urban areas.

What can be done to curb the ever increasing permissiveness, he asked. He said proper education at all levels — the home, school and the college is a good part of the answer.

"Parents must inculcate in the minds of their children that laws are made to protect society." They must be taught responsibility and knowing right from wrong.

Sociologists and other educators are "offender-oriented" and their doctrines tend to justify and excuse the offender as a victim rather than what he is, a victimizer and a parasite.

The judge claimed that revolutionary teachings have invaded colleges and he named several instances to prove his point.

His closing thought was, "the greatest investment that you and I have in this country today is our children. Please don't gamble away this investment in the market of permissiveness."

VEGAS ON ROAD HOME

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Monday asked owners of virtually every Chevrolet Vega on the road to return them to dealers to check a defective axle shaft that could cause rear brake failure and the axle itself to fall off.

It was the third major recall of Vegas in the last three months and affected 500,000 of the subcompact cars — nearly every one built in the 1971 and 1972 model years.

All Veags built since the car was introduced are affected by at least two recall campaigns and many owners are involved in all three.

The Vega, constructed at GM's labor-troubled Lordstown, Ohio, assembly plant, was introuduced as GM's answer to the challenge of small foreign cars in the 1971 model year.

A GM spokesman denied the latest defect was the result of an assembly problem. Rather, he said, it was caused by production of shorter axle shafts at a Chevrolet manufacturing plant.

Elcock clean-bowled nine batsmen for the cost of only 19 runs as Incogs defeated Alcos by 61 runs in a Victoria and District Cricket Association match at St. Michael's University School.

Alcos, chasing a score of 142 for eight wickets declared by Incogs, reached only 81 runs, despite a crisp 36 by Michael Nation.

John Wenman scored 26 runs for Incogs and Elcock had 20.

On Saturday, Cowichan and Albion stayed tied for first place when they battled to a draw at Beacon Hill Park.

Keith Dixon scored 95 runs not out as Albion reached 167 and Cowichan played out the innings for a total of 63 for seven at the close.

Oak Bay scored 85 all out and then dismissed their opponents for 57. It was the first loss for the third-place Castaways.

Revolution In Schools

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

"The concept of school attendance should be understood to include every learning experience directed by a certificated teacher who is employed by the school district."

This innocent-sounding resolution, passed by the Greater Victoria school board last month, may actually allow teachers and students to break away from the traditional pattern of compulsory school attendance, according to its originator.

Its originator is school board member Dr. Phillip Ney who believes the move is a first step toward a school adapted far better than the present one to meet the needs of children in today's modern technological society.

What the resolution really means, Ney said, is that students need no longer spend all their school time in structured classrooms to be considered as attending school.

This is important because under the Public Schools Act, attendance is compulsory for all children up to the age of 16, and they have previously been locked into traditional classroom-type education, he said.

He noted, however, that some teachers and students have been going out of the classroom for studies in the community, but in doing so have possibly taken a chance of breaking provincial regulations.

Now that the new resolution has been passed that danger won't be there, and Ney hopes this will encourage others to begin innovative educational programs.

He offered several suggestions as to how teachers and students might take advantage of the broader concept of school attendance given in the resolution.

He suggested that a teacher might have his class attend school for only half of each day. For the other half, the class could do directed independent study, using school resource centres, public and university libraries and community facilities such as factories, social agencies and businesses.

Such independent study would be under the direction of a teacher and the student would give reports on what he had learned during his time on his own.

A sideline benefit of this system could be that class sizes would be cut in half with each group of students coming for only half a day, Ney said.

He suggested the system would also allow groups of students with their teachers to take extended grips away from the school; for example, to study biology and ecology in a camp setting.

Anti-Strike Legislation

Try Laws Heath Bid

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday challenged militant British labor unions to give his Conservative government's anti-strike legislation a fair trial and then to discuss it with the government.

"This government will be fully prepared in such a process to discuss this with them," Heath said.

"The unions cannot escape their share of responsibility for the impact of free collective bargaining on the economy and on their own members either in prices or in unemployment," he said.

"The alternatives are stark facing this country. They are either legal intervention, which the trade unions reject, or the confrontation which all of us object to, or inflation."

Heath spoke in a House of Commons debate on a Labor opposition censure motion, attacking the government "for the grave injuries to good industrial relations and the general reputation of the law caused by the operation of the Industrial Relations Act."

Shells Again Hit Citadel in Hue

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese artillery fired four rounds into Hue just after dawn today, marking the third day that the old imperial capital has come under shelling attack.

Field reports said at least one person was killed and several were wounded when four 122 m.m. artillery shells struck inside the Citadel.

Government military spokesmen, meanwhile, reported new fighting just to the south of Quang Tri city and west of Hue, and said troops taking part in the Quang Tri counter-offensive also had recaptured three artillery pieces lost in earlier fighting.

At least 101 shells hit the city Monday and Sunday, most directed at the Citadel which serves as the military command post for the northern region. Twelve persons were reported killed in Sunday's attack, the first shelling of the city since the Communist offensive began March 30.

Communist gunners pounded a base camp Monday on the northwestern approach to Hue with about 500 rounds of artillery and mortar fire, a communique said. They followed with a ground attack that was repulsed.

The North Vietnamese have been pounding bases along Hue's western defences since government forces started their drive north last week to recapture Quang Tri province. The country's northernmost province fell May 1.

Fischer Boards Plane

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

Don't bet against a possibility that Bobby Fischer of the United States knew all along the prize money in the world championship match starting today would be doubled.

It was a chess game within a chess game which finally ended late Monday night with Fischer boarding a plane for Reykjavik, Iceland, where he meets world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union this afternoon.

It was all made possible through British banker James Slater, who at the last moment doubled the prize fund from $125,000 to $250,000 meaning that now the winner of the 24-game series gets $150,000 and the loser $100,000.

Fischer, of course, accepted, and was gone like a shot in a jet from Kennedy International Airport in New York. Up until the offer came, he'd done everything possible to avoid showing up for the match.

But it seems to me the 27-year-old challenger from Brooklyn knew what he was

Baker Clear, Bright

It was that kind of a Monday — a crystal-clear Vancouver Island — only day when photographer William E. John paused at the Malahat summit. It was sunny and warm, with temperatures from high eighties to low nineties. Telephoto lens captured this dramatic scene, including portion of Saanich Peninsula in foreground, then James Island, Sidney Island and Washington state's Mount Baker rising in background, about 80 miles away across Juan de Fuca Strait.

Hostilities Ended

Koreas Plan To Reunify

SEOUL (UPI) — South and North Korea Tuesday announced an agreement to end hostilities between the two countries as a step toward reunification of the peninsula, divided since the end of the Second World War.

The surprise agreement came in a joint communique issued simultaneously in Seoul and North Korea's capital of Pyongyang.

The agreement said that the two nations have agreed not to slander or defame each other and not to undertake armed provocations against each other in an effort to ease tensions and foster mutual trust.

The communique was signed by Lee Hu-Rak, director of the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency and Kim Young Joo, director of North Korea's organization and guidance department. Kim is a younger brother of North Korean premier Kim Il-Sung.

The seven-point communique said Lee visited the North Korean capital May 2-5 and held talks with Kim Young-Joo.

On behalf of Kim, North Korean second vice premier Park Sung-Chul visited Seoul May 29 through June 11 and held further talks, it said.

The communique spelled out three principles for national unification on which the two sides agreed:

"First, unification shall be achieved through independent Korean efforts without being subject to external imposition or interference.

"Second, unification shall be achieved through peaceful means, and not through the use of force against each other.

"Third as a homogenous people, a great national unit shall be sought above all, transcending differences in ideas, ideologies and systems."

"In order to ease tensions and foster an atmosphere of mutual trust between the south and the north, the two sides have agreed not to slander or defame each other, not to undertake armed provocations whether on a large or small scale and to take positive measures to prevent inadvertent military incidents," it said.

The communique added:

- The two sides, in order to restore national ties promote mutual understanding and to expedite independent peaceful unification, have agreed to carry out various exchanges in many fields.
- The two sides have agreed to install a direct telephone link between Seoul and Pyongyang in order to prevent the outbreak of unexpected military incidents and to deal directly, promptly and accurately with problems arising between them.
- The two sides have agreed to set up and operate a south-north coordinating committee headed by Lee and Kim in a bid to implement the agreement and solve various problems existing between them.
- The two sides have agree to co-operate positively to seek early success of the south-north Red Cross talks now underway to help separated families unite.

The communique pledged that the two sides will faithfully carry out the agreement contained in it.

Anti-Strike Legislation

Try Laws Heath Bid

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday challenged militant British labor unions to give his Conservative government's anti-strike legislation a fair trial and then to discuss it with the government.

"This government will be fully prepared in such a process to discuss this with them," Heath said.

"The unions cannot escape their share of responsibility for the impact of free collective bargaining on the economy and on their own members either in prices or in unemployment," he said.

"The alternatives are stark facing this country. They are either legal intervention, which the trade unions reject, or the confrontation which all of us object to, or inflation."

Heath spoke in a House of Commons debate on a Labor opposition censure motion, attacking the government "for the grave injuries to good industrial relations and the general reputation of the law caused by the operation of the Industrial Relations Act."

Quebec Proposal

Stevedores Will Meet

MONTREAL (UPI) — Quebec's 3,200 striking longshoremen were to meet today to consider back-to-work proposals hammered out with federal labor department officials in a last ditch effort to settle the seven-week-old provincial port dispute.

In Ottawa, Parliament was to reconvene today to possibly consider passing strike-ending legislation if the International Longshoremen's Association and the Maritime Employers' Association do not reach an independent agreement.

The labor department officials met separately Monday with both ILA and MEA representatives. Details of the back-to-work proposals were not disclosed, but they reportedly included lifting the employers' suspension of the striking dock workers.

The longshoremen walked off the job May 16 at the province's three main ports in Quebec City, Three Rivers and Montreal in a dispute over the size of work gangs on the docks.

Last Friday about 2,000 ILA members meeting in Montreal voted unanimously to reject an arbitration ruling and remain on strike.

Judge Alan B. Gold, a veteran arbitrator of maritime disputes, ruled Thursday that the longshoremen's strike violated their contract signed last March and was therefore illegal.

Parliament was originally scheduled to adjourn for the summer last Friday. However, House Leader Allan MacEachen postponed adjournment due to "uncertainty" in the docks dispute.

Truman Cheerful

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former president Harry S. Truman was reported cheerful and in satisfactory medical condition Monday at Research Medical centre as his doctor began what was described as routine testing.

Truman, 88, was admitted to the hospital Sunday. Dr. Wallace H. Graham, his personal physician, said he was to be examined for a "lower gastro-intestinal problem."

Durable Peace Found?

SIMLA, India (UPI) — Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto flew home Monday to summon a special session of the national assembly to ratify his agreement with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi ending 25 years of hostility on the subcontinent.

"The agreement we signed last night represents a breakthrough in our relations," he said in a farewell message to Mrs. Gandhi. "I have no doubt that we can set the foundation of durable peace which we owe to our people."

Indians Trust Bhutto

By MYRON L. BELKIND

NEW DELHI (AP) — The most significant development at the India-Pakistan summit meeting just concluded may be that the Indian government has learned to trust Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

Since the summit meeting was announced two months ago, Indian officials repeatedly said India would have to be convinced of the Pakistan president's sincerity before it would agree to any peace settlement.

Shells Again Hit Citadel in Hue

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese artillery fired four rounds into Hue just after dawn today, marking the third day that the old imperial capital has come under shelling attack.

Field reports said at least one person was killed and several were wounded when four 122 m.m. artillery shells struck inside the Citadel.

Government military spokesmen, meanwhile, reported new fighting just to the south of Quang Tri city and west of Hue, and said troops taking part in the Quang Tri counter-offensive also had recaptured three artillery pieces lost in earlier fighting.

At least 101 shells hit the city Monday and Sunday, most directed at the Citadel which serves as the military command post for the northern region. Twelve persons were reported killed in Sunday's attack, the first shelling of the city since the Communist offensive began March 30.

Communist gunners pounded a base camp Monday on the northwestern approach to Hue with about 500 rounds of artillery and mortar fire, a communique said. They followed with a ground attack that was repulsed.

The North Vietnamese have been pounding bases along Hue's western defences since government forces started their drive north last week to recapture Quang Tri province. The country's northernmost province fell May 1.

Fischer Boards Plane

By RAY KERR
Colonist Staff

Don't bet against a possibility that Bobby Fischer of the United States knew all along the prize money in the world championship match starting today would be doubled.

It was a chess game within a chess game which finally ended late Monday night with Fischer boarding a plane for Reykjavik, Iceland, where he meets world champion Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union this afternoon.

It was all made possible through British banker James Slater, who at the last moment doubled the prize fund from $125,000 to $250,000 meaning that now the winner of the 24-game series gets $150,000 and the loser $100,000.

Fischer, of course, accepted, and was gone like a shot in a jet from Kennedy International Airport in New York. Up until the offer came, he'd done everything possible to avoid showing up for the match.

But it seems to me the 27-year-old challenger from Brooklyn knew what he was

Paratroops Stand By

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon said Monday it is ready to station about 2,000 paratroopers from the army's 82nd Airborne Division near Miami Beach before the Democratic National Convention opens there next week.

Protestants Back Down Before Might of U.K.

BELFAST (AP) — About 7,000 club-wielding militants, bent on sealing off one of their Belfast strongholds, backed down Monday night before a massive display of British military muscle.

The Protestants barricaded three other areas earlier in the day but the British drew the line when the masked army advanced on the fourth.

Gen. Robert Ford, commander of British forces in Northern Ireland, said: "We now have pulled back from the precipice," when Protestants armed with cudgels and iron bars gave way in the tense confrontation.

The British military display before irregulars of the Ulster Defence Association was one of the strongest in some time in violence-torn Northern Ireland. Several hundred fully-armed soldiers were involved, supported by armored troop carriers, armored cars, jeeps and heavy trucks.

The confrontation lasted four hours. With the contenders lined up within yards of each other, it threatened to develop into a major battle.

The immediate issue was the determination of Protestant militants to build a steel barricade across Ainsworth Avenue in West Belfast and extend the "no-go" areas they have been steadily building in the capital.

The army denied permission on the grounds the barrier would cut off a number of Roman Catholic families.

An officer of the UDA, the Protestant answer to the Catholic-based Irish Republican Army, said: "We will fight the army if we have to . . . all night and all day if necessary."

At one point, women of the neighborhood formed a line between the two forces to keep them apart.

While the confrontation was going on, police headquarters announced the 399th known fatality in Ulster's three years of turmoil.

Pentagon Reluctant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department refused Monday to say whether the United States has tampered with the weather in Indochina in an effort to hamper North Vietnamese military operations.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Freidheim said the U.S. has never tried to cause rain over North Vietnam. But when asked whether rain-making activities have been attempted in South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia, he replied: "I can't enlarge on that."

Dowding Appeals

KEREMEOS (CP) — Gordon Dowding, New Democratic Party MLA for Burnaby-Edmonds, will appeal a charge of driving without due care and attention.

Final Chapter in Trek

Sons Trickle Back Into Kootenays

The return marks the final chapter in the trek by the radical sect when some 500 members burned their tar-paper shacks at Krestova, in September 1962, and marched to Agassiz to be near about 100 of their brethern who had been arrested, convicted of terrorist activities and sent to the special fireproof prison that was built at a cost of $300,000 to hold them.

The trek has ended as it began with members of the sect still at odds with the law.

Twenty-five were arrested Sunday after a demonstration in front of the home of John Verigin, leader of about 10,000 Orothodox Doukhobors residing in B.C. They are scheduled to appear in court July 25.

The history of the Freedomites, who claim to be pacifists, has been pockmarked with violence, burnings and nude parades since they first came to B.C. from Saskatchewan about 70 years ago.

The trek started on Labor Day, 1962, with the burning of homes at Krestova, situated atop a bleak, sandy hilltop about 15 miles west of Nelson.

The 500 Krestova Freedomites marched westward for several days, their number swelling to about 1,300 men, women and children as other members of the 3,000-strong sect joined their ranks.

The trek continued by cars, buses and trucks late into 1963 with stops here, and at Princeton, Hope and Vancouver, where they lingered for seven months before finally camping outside Mountain Prison in August, 1963, at the same time their imprisoned brethren began a hunger strike.

Both the prisoners and the trekkers maintained the imprisoned Freedomites were unjustly convicted for acts instigated by others and that they wanted a solution to Doukhobor problems. What
